It is reported that the Portland City & Oregon Railway Company will in the near future change that portion of its line at Milwaukie trestle to run parallel with the river west of the present route. The object in this plan is said to be to avoid the necessity of rebuilding the trestle, which is rapidly approaching a decayed condition. The line if changed will follow the county road near where the old Standard mill formerly stood. The right of way has been secured for new line from the county board of commissioners.

There is a refreshing absence of anything offensive and an abundance of wholesome fun in the performance of Richards & Pringle's Mammoth Minstrel organization that is at the Opera House Saturday night. This big attraction caters to the most refined patronage and furnishes hours of solid enjoyment without a suggestive utterance during the whole performance, and this has been the phenomenal success of this big combination. Its 50 performers are selected from the best in the colored minstrel line, and every act presented is bright, brisk and original and sure to please the most critical. This season's organization is pronounced the strongest and most satisfactory this enterprising firm has ever put into the amusement field. Be sure and see the magnificent street parade given each day during the company's engagement at 2:30 p. m.

Richards & Pringle's Minstrels.

The rare combination of old-time minstrelsy and the bright new ideas in this line of entertainment is seen in the mammoth minstrel organization of Richards & Pringle's that will be seen at Shively's Opera House on Saturday, September 21.

Its program is a revel of bright minstrel ideas retaining the pleasing traditions of "Old Plantation Days" as well as the gaudy, dandified acts of today and runs the entire gamut of the best in vaudeville and minstrelsy.

Every feature is now this season, and the organization is the best effort of its enterprising management. A special train of the company's own Pullman cars are used in its transportation and the street parade which takes place at 2:30 p. m. on the day of the company's arrival in this city, is one of the most pleasing spectacles one would wish to witness, as it introduces new features and many of them. Watch and wait for the big event. Seats on sale at Hunley's.

The Oregon State Fair at Salem, September 23d to 29th, 1901, inclusive, promises to be the very best that has yet been held. New features for amusement and instruction have been added, and particular attention will be given to the stock exhibit, owing to the great and constantly increasing interest in dairy-ry throughout the state. For this occasion the Southern Pacific Co. will make a rate of one fare for the round trip, from all stations in Oregon to Salem and return, and it is hoped that every one who can do so will show his appreciation by taking advantage of this opportunity to pass a few days pleasantly and profitably at our state capital.

We would suggest to all of our readers who visit the Carnival at Portland, or the street fair at The Dalles, that they should not fail to take advantage of this opportunity to take a trip on the Bailey Gatzert, between Portland and The Dalles, the scenic route of the Columbia river.

The September Magazine Number of the Outlook contains half a dozen or more fully illustrated articles, an equal number of full-page portraits of men and women of the day, a long section of the new novel by Ralph Connor, the author of "The Sky Pilot," called "The Man from Glenary," and the usual carefully-prepared history of the week, editorials, book reviews, etc., etc. Among the more notable illustrated articles is that on Pittsburgh, by Lillian W. Betts, originally illustrated from many photographs lately taken for the purpose by Mr. Henry Hoyt Moore. Mr. Rih's "The Making of an American" is also very fully illustrated; the chapter in this issue tells the story of New York police reform under Commissioner Roosevelt. Other illustrated articles are "The New Bishop of London," by William Durban, "In the Cotton Fields," by Max Bennett Thrasher, and "Philippine Educational Exhibit," ($3 a year, The Outlook Company, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York.)

Don't forget Saturday, Sept. 21, is the date for the minstrels.
