"NERVE WASTE."

One of the most helpful books on nerve weakness ever issued is that entitled "Nerve Waste," by Dr. Sawyer, of San Francisco, now in its fifth thousand. This work of an experienced and reputable physician is in agreeable contrast to the vast sum of false teaching which prevails on this interesting subject. It abounds in carefully considered and practically advice, and has the two great merits of wisdom and sincerity. It is endorsed by both the religious and secular press. The Chicago Advance says: "A perusal of the book and the application of its principles will put health, hope and heart into thousands of lives that are now suffering through nervous impairment." The book is $1.00, by mail, postpaid. One of the most interesting chapters—chapters XX, on Nerves and Nerve Tonic—has been printed separately as a pamphlet chapter, and will be sent to any address for stamp by the publishers, The Pacific Pub. Co., Box 2658, San Francisco in plain sealed envelope.

WEIR MITCHELL AND WHITMAN.

In Dr. Weir Mitchell's book a pleasant story or two is told of Walt Whitman, the writer, to whom some would deny the name of poet, while others regard him as one of the greatest of all poets. One of the characters in the story of "Dr. North and His Friends" says that Whitman was eaten up by his own vanity, regarding everything he did as of such supreme value that he had lost all power of self criticism and could not tell good from bad or indifferent. Once he was asked if he thought Shakespeare as great a poet as himself. He replied that he had often thought of that, but had never been able to come to a decision. He went to a physician upon an occasion, thinking himself seriously out of health. When he learned that his ailment, whatever it was, could be treated best by living as much as possible out of doors without dosing with medicine, he was leaving in all good humor when he bethought himself of the physician's fee. "How much will it be?" he inquired. "The debt was paid long ago," said the doctor, who knew and liked his writings. "It is you who are still the creditor." Whitman thanked him and went out. Another patient, a lady, had taken his place when he returned, put his two great hands on the table opposite his medical adviser—he had not stopped to knock or announce himself—and said, "That, sir, I call poetry." The lady was scandalized by his abrupt appearance and demeanor and asked as soon as the writer had gone for the second time, "Is the gentleman insane?" but, learning his identity, she wished he had asked for his autograph.

Why Do Cats Hiss?

There are many p'ints about this hen business upon which we all agree and a good many other p'ints wherein we disagree. Now, one pint is a good feed of grain for six hens, but let them scratch for it same as us us do when the grain bill's due. Then ag'in there's that there wash question. We don't all hitch on this pint. Still a pint of meal, a pint of shorts, a pint of ground oats, with a ditto of scraps, make a dozen hens scrap to get it and then scrap to get first on the nest—Dee in Poultry Monthly.

Why Do Cats Hiss?

Why does a cat hiss when angry? Take a tiny kitten at play and make it angry, and it will snarl in its baby fashion and hiss as best it can. Why? Dr. Louis Robinson says that the hissing and spitting of young kittens is probably an instinctive attempt to scare away enemies from the helpless tots by imitating a snake's hiss. A great many creatures that live in shallow holes have a like habit of hissing when annoyed or angered. The tail of a cat seen dimly in the half light of a cave suggests a snake's tail and is often marked in a way to heighten the resemblance. "If," says Dr. Robinson, "this really is an instance of protective mimicry, I think it is probable that the chief foe guarded against was the eagle. Eagles are very fond of cat flesh, and it has been remarked by naturalists that these formidable birds habitually make war upon the smaller feline."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
