Allen G. White, well known to the older residents of Oregon City, died at his home in Spokane last Friday, aged 49. He had been very ill with pneumonia complications for some time past. His sister, Mrs. Khoades was called to his bedside from here a couple of months ago. The deceased was the only son of the late Colonel W. L. White. Al White as he was best known to his many friends, came into prominence a number of years ago on account of his connection with the Chinese agitation. He assisted Nat L. Baker to deport a boat-load of Chinamen to Portland that were employed in the Oregon City woolen mills. This move ended the employment of Chinese labor in the local woolen mills. Allen G. White was a prominent member of the Maccabees, having passed through all the chairs of Ten, where he held his membership.

He has also rented the upper floor of the new Stratton building next door and will rent it as a lodging house in connection with the restaurant. The building has 24 rooms and has been furnished in good style and being new makes it a desirable rooming place. Mr. Catta will keep the restaurant up to its present high standard.

An interesting experiment is being made by The Ladies Home Journal. Each month the readers of this magazine are asked to answer some question concerning the contents or conduct of the publication, and in order to make it worth while to answer cash prizes are given those who write the best letters, be they of praise or criticism. The idea was first put forth in the September issue, and thousands of persons in all parts of the world—even in Turkey—sent in their opinions as to the best feature of that number. The October question as to the least popular article brought a similar response. Aside from giving every reader not only a chance, but an invitation, to express opinions with the inducement of a possible reward in cash, this plan enables the magazine to find out what is wanted by its wide constituency. It virtually gives the public a hand in the editing.

It is an unrivaled lifesaver when used for desperate lung diseases. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00 at G. A. Harding. Trial bottles free.

The Smart Set for December.

The Smart Set for December contains forty-four signed articles, stories and poems, yet it is not much for quantity as quality that the number is notable. The leading feature is a novelette by Edward S. Van Zile, entitled "How Chopin Came to Remsen," which is fairly hilarious in its depiction of a prosaic lawyer who becomes suddenly seized with the spirit and genius of the immortal composer. It is at once a psychological study and a travesty on the theory of reincarnation. The second contribution of length is a story in the play form, entitled "The Castle-Builders," which is printed anonymously, but from all the ear-marks must have been written by someone high in social position who is absolutely familiar with the characters and surrounding conditions of the recognizable personages so pitilessly dissected. There has not in years been printed another such sensational satire. The Infanta Eulalie writes for the number a very interesting opinion of "The American Girl," whom she studied on the occasion of her memorable visit to the United States. As a companion article, Mrs. M. E. W. Sherwood discusses "L'Americane" as she is found abroad, particularly in Paris.

The Skylark in Oregon.

Whence issues that wonderful singing This beautiful lay that I hear That mellow the air with its ringing And thrills with its rapture my ear? Such harmony strange and surprising Comes not from yon bushes' thick maze, No sound from the earth is uprising, And so to the heavens I gaze. A bird to the sky is ascending, A twinkling of dark in the blue, Which now with a cloudlet is blending And hiding its form from my view. But still in the music downpouring With harmonies, thrilling and loud, While the singer is heavenward soaring Enrapt in a garment of cloud, O, bird with thy rapturous voice, A stranger thou art on this shore. Are these heavens the home of thy choice That were silent through ages before? That were silent with wonder And follows thy course in the sky, Till lost in the cloudlets up yonder Thou singest concealed from the eye. Thou teachest us children of toil A truth by thy heavenward flight, At times to forsake the earth's soil For regions of purer delight. ANDREW FRANZEN.
