The same rigid scrutiny of fabrics the same smart tailoring for boys' clothing as for men's. Styles that have the boyish grace with the manly finish.

Beautiful suits for the little fellows; strong, sturdy suits for the older boys—practical and novel; a splendid collection of boys' clothes that is not matched anywhere—that no parents of boys can afford to miss seeing. Many, indeed, express surprise that we can give so much for the price, and it has troubled us more to supply the demand than it has to sell these goods. "Brevity is the soul of wit." The following are briefly stated with no pretensions, but there's wisdom in buying them, to-wit:

Children's Suits $3.50 and $5.00 a Suit
Youth's Suits Ages 14 to 19, $7.50 a Suit

L. H. Kirchem, of Logan, one of the active promoters of the Clear Creek Creamery Company, was in town Saturday, and stated that the new machinery would not be installed, until it is definitely ascertained just what capacity will be needed. However, this will not long delay putting the creamery into active operation. A move is on foot to get the residents of Damascus, Eagle Creek and contiguous sections, sufficiently interested to guarantee milk in quantities to justify the establishment of skimming stations and milk routes.

Farmers, generally, do not take kindly to delivering milk to a skimming station or creamery, as it involves output of labor at stated hours every day, that could be applied elsewhere. Creameries move along in the most satisfactory way, where the milk is collected at the farmer's door. Mr. Kirchem thinks that the best plan is for each producer to be supplied with a small separator, enabling him to save his sweet milk.

H. E. Cross, manager of the Clackamas Development Company, is having a survey of the Clackamas river made, to determine the improvements necessary to make the stream navigable for sawlogs. It is the announced intention of the company to build a dam across the Clackamas, near Gladstone next summer, to control the water for motive power for a sawmill.

The fall catch of salmon has been remarkably good in the Clackamas and Willamette rivers, until the recent rains raised the waters. George Himler and several of the fishermen were securing as high as 300 fish for a night's work.

His latest night's work was 50 silver sides and a 30 pound steelhead. The latter is one of the largest ever reported to have been caught in this vicinity. Salmon now bring low prices in the Portland market, the average price paid being 2 1/2 cents per pound.

A joint meeting of the teachers of Clackamas and Marion counties, will be held at Aurora on Saturday, December 7th. The program will begin at 10:30 a. m., and the following numbers have been arranged: "Attention," Mary S. Barlow, principal of the Barlow school; "History, Intermediate Division," William Parker, principal of the Woodburn school; "School Discipline," A. T. Winches, principal of the Canby school; "Geography, Making Use of Maps," C. H. Jones, editor Oregon Teachers' Monthly. The meeting was arranged by County Superintendent Zinser and Superintendent E. T. Moores, of Marion county.

State Game Warden Van Dusen practically recommends the discontinuance of the Upper Clackamas hatchery in his report recently made to the state. He that the flume is built along a rocky bluff, where the water becomes of too great a temperature for successful fish propagation, also that there is danger of the flume being carried away by unexpected slides, thus causing serious loss. The fish warden says: "The situation of this plant is such that we can always count on 2,000,000, or 3,000,000 young fry a year, and to go the expense of getting and caring for such a number, and taking the chances that we do of losing nearly the entire output, without a word of warning, and without any chance of saving them, is, in my estimation, bad policy."

Mrs. John Weismandel received injuries from a fall last Friday, that will make her a cripple for life. She was out in the yard and stepping on a board slipped and fell causing a severe fracture of the right thigh, near the joint. She was alone at the time, and lay in the pelting rain for an hour before she was able to drag herself into the kitchen of her home. She repeatedly tried to call her daughter, Mrs. Dan Lyons, who lives a short distance away, but failed to attract the attention of anyone, until Mr. Schroeder's arrived with his bakery delivery wagon, and found her lying on the floor. He aroused the neighborhood, and a physician was summoned. Mrs. Weismandel is 68 years old, and it is not likely that she will ever be able to use the limb in walking.
