The country press of Oregon seem to be almost a unit in the hope that Mrs. Whitlock will get the reward of $500 offered by Multnomah county for the apprehension of the murderers of young Morrow. The country press, particularly when it judges from the outside, is a very reliable mentor of such matters. But mark you, the hoggish detectives will come in for a big share.—McMinnville Reporter.

J. W. Barriam, superintendent of the government fish hatchery located at the mouth of Elk creek, expressed 1,800,000 salmon eggs to San Francisco, where they will be placed on board a steamer and taken to the hatchery located at the mouth of Rogue river to be hatched. The eggs were placed in trays; these placed in open boxes packed with ice to prevent propagation until their destination is reached. About 5,000,000 were taken at the Elk creek hatchery this year. The largest number of eggs taken in one day was 385,000, being the spawn of 80 fish. The Elk creek hatchery is one of the most successful and best producing plants on the Pacific coast.—Ashland Record.

Richard Scott, of Milwaukie, president of the state dairymen's association, and F. L. Kent, of Corvallis, secretary, are preparing an elaborate program for the state dairy association at Salem on January 6th, 7th and 8th, during the holding of the farmers' congress. In Oregon dairying has become an industry of great promise and lively interest will be taken in the work of the association. Many prominent speakers will be in attendance, and among them Professor G. L. McKay, connected with the dairy department of the state agricultural college of Iowa at Ames.

Last Friday evening was Woodmen's night in Oregon City. About 200 came up from Portland, accompanied by a team, who conducted the initiation of a large class of new members. At least, 400 Woodmen were present at the lodge meeting, which was held in the armory for the reason that their own hall was not large enough to accommodate those present. In a few days their new hall will be ready for occupancy and will be dedicated with great pomp and ceremony. The freemasons have completed their work, and the hall is a palace of artistic beauty. The arched ceiling is decorated in the most aesthetic designs, and huge paintings at either end of the hall, represents salient features of woodship. Large folding doors connect the hallway with a huge banquet hall, thus making it possible to accommodate several hundred people on special occasions.
