A. Erickson's Stock Farm.

A. Erickson's stock farm on the Clackamas wagon road is the only one of its kind in the county. Its raison d'etre is the breeding and training of trotting horses. Such a place is an expensive luxury but Mr. Erickson does not appear to mind that obstacle. He has a string of exceedingly fine thoroughbreds on his farm, equal to the best found anywhere, among them "Bill Fraser," a horse with an acknowledged record for speed on the track, and, as an ambitious turfman, he will spare no efforts to fit them for winning both fame and money in the future. One of his plans is the establishment of a track on the farm for training purposes. Though the place is rendered conspicuous by a number of well-built, handsomely painted buildings, yet last month it was necessary to add a large cow stable to them. It is possible that Mr. Erickson's enterprise may lead others in this county to give attention to the breeding of that beautiful, highly specialized animal, the "fast horse."

School Still in the Race.

A rumor which has been circulated that the public schools have withdrawn from piano contest, is untrue. We wish the public to understand that we are still in the race, and wish all who will, to give us a helping hand to win. Do not forget the children, and remember that they will appreciate the piano.

THE MUNICIPAL FILTER.

Its Establishment is in Accordance With Scientific Sanitation.

The procurement of Bull Run water did not give Portland pure water. It is claimed that the manufacturing plants which need it purer than that which comes through the main, have filtering apparatus and the amount of filth that is strained out is surprising. A moment's reflection will convince any one that a rapid mountain stream like Bull Run must inevitably carry much decaying vegetable matter, besides silt. Oregon City's people will hence have much purer water than those of Portland. All the microbes, excepting a very small percentage, will have been eliminated. It is these minute creatures that breed disease in the human organism.

The Jewell-Hyatt-Warren-American-National-Blessing-New-York type of filters has been installed in numerous cities of the Atlantic seaboard, and it is the most successful and economical system of mechanical filtering devised. The only other system that Oregon City could have adopted, if the board of water commissioners had thought best not to adopt the proposition of the filter combine, is that of natural filtering through about five feet of sand covering an acre of ground, which would have been even more expensive than the plant that has been erected.

The principal parts of the Jewell gravity filter, including those for the use of sulphate of alumina (alum) as a coagulant, are briefly:

1. The tanks for preparation of the alum solution, this having been dissolved before to be added to the unfiltered water.
2. The two settling tanks in which coagulation takes place and the grosser impurities sink to the bottom.
3. The filtering tanks in which the purification is completed through a sand-bed. In these tanks the alum coagulant settles on the surface of the sand as a flocculent film, and materially assists in catching the bacteria.

It is a peculiar fact, observed in Eastern cities by analysing mechanically filtered water, that it contains less alum before filtration than it did before. Its use is common in mechanical filters, wherever its utility is understood.

It is a very important fact that filtration of contaminated water reduces the death-rate from typhoid fever and similar diseases.

The average results obtained with the mechanical filter at East Providence, R. I., give us an idea of what will be accomplished here. Using one grain of sulphate of ammonia to the gallon, the filtered water contained less than the raw water the following percentages of ingredients: One per cent chlorine, 81 per cent ferric oxide, 38 per cent alumina oxide, 29 per cent free ammonia, 63 per cent albuminoid ammonia, and 83 per cent less color. The water had increased 20 per cent in hardness and was alkaline—containing harmless sulphate of lime.

In several Eastern filter plants it has been found by experiment that ground scrap iron compounded in a certain way with sulphur, forming the sulphide (or sulphate) of iron, is a far cheaper, and as efficacious, coagulant alum; but as in either case the chemicals remain among the debris strained out by the sand, the use of the one or the other is a matter of little importance to the consumer. A coagulant will not be used in the city's filter when the small percentage of little bugs in the water renders it unnecessary.

Attention Socialists.

Having been chosen corresponding secretary of the socialist party of Clackamas county, and being almost an entire stranger to the county, and to the people of the county outside of Maple Lane precinct, I hereby call upon all good comrades to aid me in polling the socialist votes of the different precincts of Clackamas county—as the number of votes in each precinct will determine the number of delegates to which the precinct is entitled. It will be necessary to use both judgement and caution as in the first place we wish to have all socialists reported, we do not wish in very outset to overestimate our strength as a party, and I think it would be much better to call a county convention based upon 90 per cent of our actual voting strength, than to call one based upon, say, 120 per cent, as in the first place we would have an actual gain at the polls, which in the second, we would suffer the loss, not only of the overestimated members, but also of public confidence, and at the very outset, would be damaging to our party organization throughout the county and a serious setback to the principles which we advocate.

The help I seek of the comrades is simply this, let some representative socialist in each voting precinct make out and send me a list of all the socialist voters in his precinct who can be depended upon to vote for such candidates, both state and county, that will pledge themselves to conform to, and abide by the principals of scientific and practical socialism. Now please do not leave this for your neighbor, or wait expecting some one else to cover the field, if I should receive two or more reports from the same precinct, well and good, the more the better, one would rectify the other, but by all means see to it that your precinct is reported. Thanking you beforehand for your trouble, yours for socialism.
