NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Friday, January 31.

Oregon A dispatch from Washington states that the Oregon senators and representatives have united in signing a letter, which they will lay before the secretary of the interior, with the appeal of Governor Geer, the chief justice, and two associate justices of the state, besides other officials and prominent citizens of Oregon, vigorously protesting against the displacement of Oregon men as forestry officers in the reserves of that state, and the substitution of Eastern men in their stead. We are of the opinion," says the delegation, "that there are many men residing in Oregon, who, by both education and long experience of forest life, are as fully capable of filling these positions as are men from the East, who are mere theorists, and who have never had any experience in connection with this important subject. We trust, in the selection of foresters in the future, these statements will have careful consideration."

The sale of 8,000 acres near Milan, Wash., to the Sawmill Phoenix, is announced today. W. C. Edwards, of the Elk mills, has also purchased 9000 acres. Sales aggregating about 50 square miles to mill-owners have been announced this week. The Northern Pacific has two or three hundred thousand acres of timber land in Western Oregon.

Wade Jack Wade and William Dalton, who murdered James B. Morrow in Portland, about two months previous, were hanged in the court house square in Portland at 7:30 yesterday morning. Wade walked to the gallows in a state of indifference, and advised his audience to avoid "the tracks of Jack." Dalton said: "Through I received salvation behind the bars, I glorify the name of the Heavenly Father, forever and forever," he concluded after his farewell address. He also said, "I do not know if my friends will do as I do, but I do know that the Saviour who shed his precious blood for me will bring me into the house of life." Wade was apparently tearful, and some people in the crowd seemed to think it all just a little amusing. "Temptation is the ruin of many a man it," Dalton went on. "I pray for you my dear boys, and if there is an infidel in this crowd I'll give my life for his saving. I'll do it! I'll do it, and I praise the Lord for giving me strength to say so." Wade had a bravado air, and said but little. The drop of the rope killed Dalton in two minutes, but Wade breathed about 12 minutes. About 400 people were present at the hanging, having accepted invitations to be present. Dalton's spiritual advisors, the Marshals, were with him to the last. After the autopsy, the bodies were turned over to the coroner for burial.

Sunday Morning, February 2.

Chinese At Pekin yesterday, the Empress Dowager Empress and Emperor received the ladies and children of the diplomatic corps in the palace. The audience was the most revolutionary event since the return of the court to Pekin. The exclusiveness of Chinese royalty and the prejudices against the meeting of the sexes was waived and the function was less formal than is usual in the European courts. The Dowager Empress occupied the throne, with a brilliant assemblage of princesses and court ladies about her. The emperor was seated on a small platform in the center of the room. The visitors, upon entering, bowed twice to the emperor, and several of them ascended to the throne and bowed to the Dowager Empress. Mrs. Conger, wife of United States Minister Conger, read a speech, which was translated by Secretary Williams. The Dowager Empress' reply was exceedingly friendly in tone. It was in part as follows: "Last year the dissensions in the palace caused a revolution which compelled our hasty departure, but it is a great gratification to us that our return to the capital has caused such rejoicing in China and abroad." Baron Zsichmann, the Austrian minister, and doyen, of the diplomatic corps, presented all the ladies to the Dowager

Empress, who took the hand of each of them. They were next presented to the emperor, who also shook hands with them. The guests then retired to an ante-room. The Dowager Empress, entering the room, grasped Mrs. Conger's hand, which she held for some minutes, trembling, weeping and sobbing loudly and exclaiming in broken sentences that the attack on the legations was a terrible mistake, and that she repented it bitterly. In reply Mrs. Conger assured her that the past would be forgotten. Bracelets and rings of great value were then placed on Mrs. Conger's wrists and fingers. Other ladies of the diplomatic corps were then presented and warmly greeted.

Following the reception a banquet was served. The Dowager Empress talked animatedly. She said that China would abandon her policy of isolation and adopt the best features of Western life and would send many students abroad. Afterward the Dowager Empress and the Emperor mingled with their guests, and her majesty conversed with every one, and particularly noticed the children. The emperor was addressed through an interpreter, and bowed without speaking.

HOW SOME THINGS LOOK TO A MAN UP A TREE.

PERSONS who heard Rabbi Wise's lecture on "Israel's Gifts to the World," before the Mens' Club at the Congregational church last week, were favorably impressed with his high class intellectual oratory, and were visibly influenced with new thoughts, after hearing some historical facts presented in a new light. The speaker proved by Holy Writ and concurrent history that Israel laid the foundation of all that is best and morally superior in the world. The Jews furnished the principles of law, governments—all from the Mosaic law. The Jews furnished the Bible—old and new. Christ was a Jew, the son of a Jewish mother. The Jews had given the world a religion. Christ had been crucified for the world, and the Jews were still being crucified. They had been persecuted, suffered death, because they were Jews—all for their religion. Even now there being persecuted in Roumania, Russia and Germany. In pointing a finger of scorn at the Jews they say that Judas was a Jew, but they forget that Christ was a Jew. It was the Romans, not the Jews that crucified Christ. The Jews from the beginning, have ever been earnest pleaders of liberty.

It is a fact, however, not touched upon in Rabbi Wise's lecture, the Jews of America, E. gland and France are the financiers, the politicians, statesmen and marchants of these countries. Not only this, but they are distinguishing themselves in the professions, journalism, the stage, and are prominent everywhere.

SOME county papers are printing lists of the heavy taxpayers. As the present assessment law does not provide for deduction of indebtedness, the amount of tax some individuals pay, is no indication of their wealth. A person may be mortgaged for more than he is worth, and have his name on many security bonds, yet if his debts were paid, he would not own a spot to lay his head. In the old days when the assessor deducted indebtedness, it was possible to know who were the owners of wealth.

IT is a noteworthy fact that the business of Oregon City had increased to appreciable proportions during the past year. There were an increased number of mercantile houses, and it took a small army of clerks in the aggregate to wait on the numerous customers at certain seasons of the year. Of course, there is a reason for this improved condition of affairs. The principal cause was the improvement of several county roads leading to the city. President Cross and other members of the board having labored diligently to this end. Good roads leading from certain sections enabled the people to drive to the county seat with comfort. The establishment of a commission house also materially aided in making Oregon City a better market town. All these things encouraged the merchants to keep better and larger stocks. The banks claim that the deposits have appreciably increased from the sections tapped by improved roads during the past year. Oregon City needs more of these roads to connect other sections of the county.

A NUMBER of Clackamas county farmers raised dollar wheat during the past season. However, it was marketed in the form of hog flesh. Thousands of hogs in the aggregate, were butchered by Clackamas county farmers, and but very little wheat was sold in the raw state.

IT looks as though Receiver Gallo-way might hold down his place in the local land office for some time to come. Simon is evidently getting in some telling work in holding up Bibee's appointment. It has been hinted that Simon wants George A. Steel appointed register of the Oregon City land office, and might consent to a compromise on this proposition.
