FARMERS INSTITUTE.

Springwater People Acquit Themselves Creditably.

One of the most successful farmers' institutes ever held in Oregon, was conducted under the auspices of Springwater Grange, assisted by professors of the state agricultural college. The institute lasted two days, and the Springwater people did themselves credit.

A Lacey gave the address of welcome, which was in part as follows:

The importance of the meeting, and the changes that are necessary for the agriculturist to make, we have lessened to work than formerly, and the producer has become an important factor.

Dr. James Withycombe, of the state agricultural responded. Among other things, he said the institute is yours. Praised the soil of that vicinity, and called attention to the fact that farmers should keep pace with the times and be educated up-to-date. The soil is the farmers' capital, and recommended diversified farming. This vicinity was well adapted to stock and dairying.

Professor F. L. Kent called attention to the advantages of the hand cream separator. He had been familiar with its use for the past five or six years. The advantage of the hand cream separator that the farmer can keep the skim milk and feed it warm to the calves. He recommended feeding the calf its mother's milk until it is eight days old, then mix oil meal with milk two weeks, then give it ground oats and wheat, fed dry.

Rev. Julian Hatch, of Springwater, was the next speaker, and advocated woman suffrage, and the disfranchisement of the ignorant and vicious.

Dr. Withycombe also discussed intensive agriculture, and urged a rotation of crops. Summer fallows is exhausting to the soil, and takes away the humus. He also told them to save the barnyard manure, and not let it leach under the eaves of the barn. Clover is a good fertilizer, and the roots go down into the subsoil. Do not haul off your clover hay; feed it on the farm, as three times more stock can be kept by soiling, than by pasturing.

Professor Kent told about the model dairyman. He must take an interest in the cows; be kind to them; understand the make-up of the animal. Weed out the poor cows. The successful dairyman keeps his cows going in winter and summer. Be very careful not to disturb the cows just before milking, and the milking should be done regularly.

SECOND DAY.

John Stormer gave some excellent suggestions on sheep raising. He advised keeping a general purpose sheep. Every farmer should keep a few sheep. They are profitable, and besides keep the weeds and briars down, and are excellent soil fertilizers.

Edwin Bates led in a discussion of growing and drying prunes. He contended that they should be planted on rolling ground, facing the north-west, and explained different methods of drying.

Dr. Withycombe discussed forage crops. He recommended the raising of red clover. His plan was to sow rape with oats, the former in the proportion of two pounds per acre. After the oats is taken off, the ground will afford excellent pasture.

Mrs S E. Bates gave an excellent discourse on poultry raising. She claimed that there should be a law passed providing a bounty on the scalps of vultures that play havoc with chicken yards. She said that the best all-round chicken was the Plymouth Rock or cross with the leghorn. The best way to set a hen is to fill a box half full of dirt, dampen it, and cover with straw. She considered that broilers were the most profitable to raise for market.

Dr. Withycombe also discussed silos and ensilage. He considered that the best plan of silo structure was a circular wooden affair, tongued and grooved and fastened with wire hoops. Corn makes the best ensilage and clover and peas next. Clover for silage should be cut in full bloom, and vetch when pods form. Tramp down compact, put grass or any green substance on top. The foundation should be concrete. Plants should be hauled in as soon as cut.

Professor Kent explained the workings of the Babcock test.

One of the features of the institute was the address of A. M. Shibley. His topic was "Discontent, Doubt and Energy to Overcome." In part he spoke of Adam and Eve, the first agriculturists, Genesis 2-15. And the Lord God took that man and put him into the garden of Eden, to dress it and to keep it from the subtlety of the Devil. Adam and Eve got discontented and full of doubt, and did not have the moral courage to withstand the wiles of the Devil, the curse was pronounced on the ground, so we have to make our living by the sweat of our brow. We are here to discuss the best means to that end. Our fathers their discontent abandoned their homes, and came to America and landed on Plymouth Rock, which was one of the origins of this great empire. The discontent of our forefathers, with Washington at the head, was the beginning of the greatest free nation in the world, which is destined to enlighten the earth. The speaker followed with some personal reminiscences.

The professors of the Oregon Agricultural followed with an exhibition of stereopticon views.

The people of Springwater gave excellent programs of music, song and recitations interspersed between the addresses and instructive papers. Among those who contributed numbers were:

On the first day was a recitation by Master Roy Lacey, song by Mr. and Mrs. Miller, song by the Shibley family, recitation by Dollie Guntridge, recitation by Miss Mattie Tucker, song by Mr. and Mrs. Miller.

On the second day there was instrumental music, recitation by Walter Pruden, song by Mr. and Mrs. Miller, recitation by Miss Dollie Leellen, recitation by Miss Ethel Lewellen, songs by the Shibley family, also recitations by Lora Stormer, Gertie Pruden, Mrs. Miller and Irene Lacey.

He Kept His Leg.

Twelve years ago J. W. Sullivan, of Hartford, Conn., scratched his leg with a rusty wire. Inflammation and blood poisoning set in. For two years he suffered intensely. Then the best doctors urged amputation, "but," he writes, "I used one bottle of Electric Bitters and my leg was sound and well as ever."

For Eruptions, Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum, sores and all blood disorders Electric Bitters has no rival on earth. Try them. George A. Harding will guarantee satisfaction or refund money. Only 50c.
