Be it enacted by the Legislative Assembly of the State of Oregon:

That an act entitled "An Act to amend sections 4081 and 4082 of Hill's Annotated Laws of Oregon, and to provide for the election of road supervisors," passed at the twentieth regular session of the Legislative Assembly of the State of Oregon, and approved February 17, 1900, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 4081. The county courts in the several counties in this state shall, as often as they may deem necessary, but not oftener than once in two years, divide their respective counties, or any part thereof, into suitable and convenient road districts, each of which shall be numbered, and cause a brief description of the same to be entered on the county records. No road district shall be so made that it shall be partly in one election precinct and partly in another, but each road district shall be so formed as to lie wholly within one election precinct; provided, that all the territory within any incorporated town or city may be one road district. Each county court, at the January term, 1902, thereof, shall so arrange the road districts in the county as to conform to the provisions of this section; and at the January term of said court every two years thereafter, and at no other time, make such change in road districts as may be deemed necessary; but no changes, either in road districts or in election precincts, shall be made which shall interfere with the relative arrangement thereof as provided in this section.

Section 4082. At the general election in 1902, and every two years thereafter, there shall be elected in each election precinct in this state, in which there is one or more road districts, as provided in section 4081, a road supervisor for each road district in such election precinct, who shall be a resident of the road district for which he is elected, and shall hold his office for two years, or until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. At such election every person entitled to vote for precinct officers in a given precinct shall be entitled to vote for one road supervisor for each road district in such precinct. Before entering upon the discharge of his duties, each road supervisor shall take an oath to faithfully discharge the duties of his office; and when any person shall fail or refuse to accept the office of road supervisor he shall be fined in the sum of $25, which fine shall be appropriated to road purposes in the road district in which such person shall have been elected. Such fine shall be imposed and collected by any justice of the peace in the county in which such road district shall be located, or by the county court of such county, and the amount of such fine shall be turned over to the road supervisor of the precinct in which it is to be used. All vacancies in the office of road supervisor shall be filled by the county court at the next term thereof after such vacancy shall have occurred.

Approved February 27, 1901.

The above is the present Road Supervisor Law of this state. I voted for it. The law can be found in the Session Laws of 1901, page 288. The record of my vote for this bill can be found in the Senate Journal of 1901 at page 853.

BERT BATTY SUICIDES.

Well Known Canby Young Man Shoots Himself and Falls Into the River.

Last Sunday the body of Bert Batty, who disappeared from his home, near Canby, on the previous Friday, was found with a bullet hole in his body. When he did not return home, a search was instituted and his footsteps were tracked to the Molalla river. Suicide was at once suspected, and a diver was summoned from Portland. Coroner Strickland held an inquest Sunday afternoon, the jury returning a verdict of suicide, while temporarily insane.

Young Batty had evidently set out on the bank of the river, when he fired the contents of the revolver into his left breast, so that his body would fall into the river.

There was no known cause for young Batty's suicide. He was 20 years old, and an exemplary young man. He took an absorbing interest in horticultural and agricultural matters, and contributed many articles to agricultural papers. He was the son of George S. Batty, formerly a prominent real estate and railroad man of Portland, but now manager of a trolley line system in Chicago. He is the principal owner of the big prune farm, near Canby, where Mrs. Batty and the children have made their home for some time past.

Look Out for False Reports.

As the campaign is about to close and election day approaching, rumors and falsehoods are likely to be started against our candidates in order to injure their chances of election.

There have been rumors circulated against some of our candidates as to their being in trades with some candidates on the republican ticket. We hereby denounce such statements as false. The citizens convention has presented you a ticket composed of men of honor and integrity; men worthy of your support, and we, the undersigned committee, being in close touch with all the candidates throughout, and at the close of this campaign, can say to you that there are no trades by our candidates, nor by this committee, and we beseech you to stand by our candidates, who are men we can assure you of whose record in office you will be proud.

Yours for better conditions in Clackamas county,

J. J. COOK, Chairman,
ELMER DIXON, Secretary,
GEORGE OGLE,
J. P. LOVETT,
H. E. CROSS, Committee.

Opinions of a Socialist.

The war between the citizens and republicans is raging on the Molalla. Neither side have resorted to the water cure, but it seems that the republicans have captured the only saloon in town. The socialists have donned the red cross and are trying to rescue the wounded and dying, and will do their best to save a majority.

Some of the citizens candidates were here recently and made a splendid showing for their side. No party could have made a better selection of men, but what can good men accomplish in these days of rank, rotten corruption. What can Grace, Eastham, Clark, Hedges and the other candidates, accomplish without corporation boodle, free railroad passes, false promises of offices, pensions, etc.

The "boss" said in his speech here that politics was a trade and he thought he understood the trade, and we are just foolish enough to believe him.

Yes, if good reliable men are what the citizens are after, we believe they have them on their ticket, and their cause is just. They also had an excellent man on their ticket here in the person of Jake Reuck, but he saw fit to decline.

You people who wanted to hear and learn just how the political trade is worked turned out and heard Clark and Eastham, but if you wanted to learn how to correct all the ills that are distressing us, you heard Fred Meindl.

Thus:
For governor—
12 X Geo. E. Chamberlain... Democrat

The Oregon City correspondent of the Oregonian yesterday (Thursday) states that the "fusionists give up Clackamas county." The citizens ticket, which is meant, has given up nothing, and are more elated than ever over the probable result of Monday's election. Intelligent voters should not believe all the stuff published by at last moment, especially false election bet reports.

The Civic Federation of Portland, of which Thomas N. Strong is chairman, has gotten out a pamphlet giving biographical sketches of candidates for office. Of candidates for joint senator, it says:

FOR JOINT SENATOR.

HERBERT HOLMAN—Aged 40 years; republican; manager Kellogg Transportation Company. Is a resident of the city of many years' standing, a capable man of good character.

RICHARD SCOTT—Age about 65 years, republican; father on a large scale, living near Milwaukie, in Clackamas county. A public-spirited man of unusual ability and a good deal of public experience; of unquestioned personal integrity, and much trusted in the community in which he lives. Election advised.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

Several Interesting Functions During the Week.

SATURDAY CLUB ENTERTAINMENT.

The Saturday Club Grecian tea and entertainment at Woodmen hall Tuesday night, was greeted with a crowded house. The musical and literary program consisted of readings by Miss Hazel Hoopengardner, of Portland; instrumental duet by Misses Echo Samaras, a piano solo by Miss Edna Caulfield and vocal solos by Mrs. W. B. Wingless and Miss Mary Conyers.

One of the special features was the Grecian drill in costume, by the following 10 young women: Meta Finley, Grace Marshall, Mary Ross, Inez Adair, Carrie Gregerson, Ethel Cheney, Edith Cheney, Lizzie Walker, Bessie Wood, Miss Dalton.

An especially pleasing feature was the may pole drill, by 16 girls, who assumed different roles, as follows:

Queen, Donnie Shaw; crown-bearer, Oliver Baumann; maids of honor, Olga McClure and Wilda Harris; attendants, Bessie Albright, Mary Ross, Florence White, Clarissa Zumwalt, Maude Woodward, Evelyn Harding, Vera Hart, Lillie Griseon, Florence Grace, Wanda Baxter, Louise Walker, Lillie Troxel.

Tea and cake were served to the guests at the close of the program.

DEBATIC CLUB MUSICALS.

The Debatic Club gave their closing musicale to a number of invited friends at the Woodmen hall Monday night. The numbers were all technical selections, and an analysis was read after each piece by Mrs. Robert A. Miller. The accompanists were Mrs. L. L. Porter and Miss Mattie Draper; the vocalists were Mrs. Ed Sheahan, Mrs. R. C. Ganong, Miss Imogen Harding, Miss Lulu Daper and Miss Mary Conyers. The pianists were Misses Edna Caulfield, Veda Williams, Mattie Draper and Mrs. Porter.

COMPANY A FLAG RAISING.

Company A. O. N. G., dedicated its new flag Wednesday night with appropriate exercises. A representative crowd of people were present, and complimented the excellent exhibition drill. Stirring and appropriate addresses were made by Father A. Hillebrand, Dr. W. E. Carl and Senator Brownell. Dancing followed until a late hour. Turney furnishing the music. The armory was tastefully decorated with flags.

Local Matters of All Sorts.

Deputy Organizer J. H. Howard instituted Local Union, No. 1131, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Wednesday night. The following officers were elected: President, J. K. Morris; vice-president, C. H. Loys; secretary, C. B. Johnson; treasurer, E. B. Andrews; conductor, P. J. Lutz; warden, J. W. Braken; trustees, E. W. Scott, A. J. Maville, Amos Seaman; committee on constitution, A. J. Maville, O. P. Earlish, Z. T. Wood. There are 31 charter members.

The Pacific synod of the Lutheran church convened yesterday. The program was printed in full last week, but there are some changes on account of the non-arrival of Rev. Martin, of Salt Lake, and one or two others. Rev. O. E. W. Stever and Rev. Yung will preach tonight.

The Indian War Veterans desire to thank the people for contributing to the purchase of the markers for the 26 graves in the city cemetery, and for other localities in the county. Captain John Kelly and Jap Slover have placed the markers, and the Grand Army and Relief Corps will decorate their graves along with those of other soldiers.

Very impressive memorial services were held at the Methodist church last Sunday, under the auspices of Meade Post and Relief Corps. The procession was attended by Company A and the Parkside Band. Exercises have been held in St. John's and the public schools, during the week.

Romance of the Corinthian Column.

In the winter a young girl had died in Corinth. Some time afterward her maid gathered together various trinkets and playthings which the girl had loved and brought them to the girl's grave. There she placed them in a basket near the monument and put a large square tile upon the basket to prevent the wind from overturning it. It happened that under the basket was a root of an acanthus plant. When spring came, the acanthus sprouted, but its shoots were not able to pierce the basket, and accordingly they grew around it, having the basket in their midst. Such of the long leaves as grew up against the four protruding corners of the tile on the top of the basket curled round under these corners and formed pretty volutes.

Kallimachos, the sculptor, walking that way one day, saw this and immediately conceived the notion that the form of the basket with the plaque on top of it and surrounded by the leaves and stalks of acanthus would be a comely heading for columns in architecture. He from this idea formed the beautiful Corinthian style of capital. Such, at least, is the story as the architect Vitruvius told it 1,900 years ago.

Too Much Apathy.

Couldock's company was once barnstorming through Virginia. It was at Petersburg, and the play was "The Chimney Corner." All through the audience sat in distressing silence, neither laughing nor shedding a tear, although "The Chimney Corner" abounds with humor and pathos and the company then producing it was of great merit for those times. Couldock appeared to pay no attention to the apathy of his audience until just at the close of the performance. The concluding lines of the play are somewhat to this effect: "You, John, are happy, and so are you, Ellen; so am I, and so are we all. Let us hope that our friends the public share our happiness."

But, to the surprise of everybody, Couldock fell into a towering passion when he reached these lines, and in thundering tones he said, "You, John, are happy, and so are you, Ellen; so am I, and so are we all except the fools that have been sitting like stouthearts in front of the footlights tonight!"

A Golf Story.

A well known Scotch "meenister" took up golf and despite great practice could not succeed in passing the tyro stage. His simple exclamations of "Tut, tut!" "Oh, dear, now!" "Well, well!" and the like were plain evidences of a perturbed spirit.

One day, when the perspiration flowed freely from his lofty brow and his honest countenance shone with a lustre and radiance which, alas, were not due to calmness of soul, but rather the heat of the sun and his laborious efforts to move the obstinate gutta percha from its station on the tee, he was tempted to indulge in strong language. "Dear, dear, but I'll have to gie it up! I'll have to gie it up!" he said at last, with a despairing look at the ball.

"Give up the game, Mr. D.!" exclaimed his friend, who had been a witness of his attempts.

"Na, na—the meenistry!" answered the other, with a sigh.

The Sacred Bone.

The bone lun, or the "resurrection bone," is at the lower extremity of the spinal column. The Jewish rabbis taught that it was incorruptible, and from it, as from a seed, the human body would spring at the resurrection. There is a Jewish tradition that the Emperor Hadrian questioned a rabbi as to the existence of this bone and was convinced by the production of one by the Jewish teacher. Various attempts were made to destroy it. It was cast into a furnace and came forth unscathed; it was steeped in boiling water, but remained unsoftened; it was smitten with a hammer, and the hammer was broken. Some trace of the former reverence for the bone is found in the modern name.

Crabs and Lobsters.

There are many curious points about crabs and lobsters. Every one of either genus is provided with a big claw for crushing and a small claw adapted by its shape for cutting as scissors do. With these two claws they tear the food they capture into fragments and feed themselves literally from "hand to mouth." But there is every reason to suppose that the claws are intended quite as much for fighting as for eating purposes, inasmuch as such powerful hands are not needed for devouring the soft food they prefer.

Power of Expression.

Our language has a wonderful power of expression. On one occasion, we are told, a doctor of divinity rang the changes on "He that hath ears to hear let him hear." "He that is accessible to aricular vibration," said the doctor, "let him not close the gates of his tympana."

Then, again, we have that old-fashioned saying "The more the merrier" delightfully translated in this way: "Multitudinous assemblages are the most provocative of calculatory hilarity."

A Personal Impression.

"Did Noah only take two of each kind of animal in de ark wif 'im?" said Mr. Erastus Pinkley.

"Dat's what I un'stan't," said Miss Miami Brown.

"Well, course, Noah was runnin' de boat, but I would er' spected dat he'd er' laid in an extra supply of pork an' chickens."—Washington Star.

HE SAVED THE SCOW

A CLEVER BIT OF STRATEGY IN AN ENGINEERING JOB.

How a Young American Engineer Brought His Spirit of Invention to Aid in Solving a Wreck Problem in South America.

"It is easy enough for an engineer to show ability in New York or in other big towns where he can get about all the tools and conveniences ever devised. It is when an engineer finds himself in the wilds of a jungle or up in the mountains, hundreds of miles from civilization, that his own natural ingenuity and invention count," said a veteran engineer to a youngster who had been admitted to the ranks of the Engineers' club.

"Down in Surinam, Dutch Guiana, where the arrival of a sailing schooner causes a sensation, where a mail steamer enters the muddy harbor once in two weeks to carry two hours to get rid of its mail and to take on a few passengers, there was once a young American engineer who showed that he had the proper spirit of invention to advance him to the front ranks of the profession. Like all the best inventions, his was the simplest one, and it was one that was widely talked about among the profession to the credit of the inventor.

"To understand the story properly you need a triding insight into Surinam and its habits. Here Indians may be seen on the streets wearing only a breechcloth. The white population is so scarce that all are thrown together as if in one large family, Englishmen, Americans, Germans, Dutchmen and Frenchmen all combining together and forming clubs and society to keep themselves from dying of sheer loneliness.

"In this primitive town there was a man who held the splendid monopoly of owning a large scow. That, up there, seems a remarkably small thing to be proud of, but the value of even a scow depends entirely upon where the scow is and what it will cost to replace it. This particular scow had been built by American ship carpenters sent especially from the United States at great expense. There was not another scow in the entire harbor, and about all of the heavy river work to be done for the city and plantations and mining companies was done by this one vessel. Its loss, therefore, would have been not only a severe one for the owner, who had a monopoly of the business in those days, but it would have been little short of a national calamity.

"One day, while the scow was anchored in midstream, one of those smashing black squalls for which the tropics are famous broke over the river, and for twenty minutes you could not see ten feet away or hear a man shouting at your elbow. When the storm finally abated, the scow was not to be seen, and it was found she had gone down deck load and all. To most of us there seemed about as much chance of raising the vessel as there would be to raise an ocean steamer sunk in the middle of the Atlantic.

"It was about this time that the young engineer took a hand in the problem. He asked the dimensions of the scow and was told that it was 12 by 60 feet, and then he announced that if the owner would provide him with four men he would raise the scow for a certain sum of money. The bargain was made, though the contractor refused to say how he would go about the job.

"Now, you must know that aside from the ebb and flood tide, which alternate every six hours, there is also what is known as a spring tide. This comes with the full of the moon, and it has the effect of making a higher flood tide than any during the month. The opposite to the spring tide is the neap tide, and that happens at the dark of the moon, with the effect that at no other tide during the month is the ebb tide so low as it is at that time. The difference in the height of water between the ebb at neap tide and the flood at spring tide is considerable.

"The engineer waited until neap tide. On that day he towed a number of logs down the river. These he anchored over the scow and sent men below to fasten chains to one side of the scow, and these he fastened to the logs on the surface. Then he waited patiently. As the spring tide approached he towed other logs down the river until he had enough to make quite a raft, and on the day of the highest tide all the logs were tied together and fastened. The tide rose steadily, and the more it rose the more the raft went down under the strain of the pull on the chains.

At last, just as it seemed that the raft was unequal to the occasion, it was seen to bob up violently, and a moment later there was a commotion in the water, and the scow appeared. What had happened, of course, was this: The chains pulling upward on one side of the scow tilted it more and more until the deck load began to slide off, and finally, when all the stones had slid into the river, the scow came up under its own buoyancy. The remainder was simple. The vessel was towed to the shore, where it was hauled up on the sand, and when the water receded holes bored into the hull caused the scow to empty. Later the holes were plugged up again, and the old ship was as fine as silk."—New York Times.
