Having A Good Time.

Last Monday the old and capacious school house in district No. 33, was filled by a mostly crowd to witness the school board pull off the annual school election, as there are usually lively times on such occasions, and not infrequently a wild and violent display of Athletics, accompanied by adjectives of no uncertain meaning. Aside from these amusements there is much more interest taken in school election than there is in that of county or state, as the position of school officer is much sought after, being con-sidered as far above the common county officer as the tower of Pisa is above a bole in the ground. The people have good reasons for taking a lively interest in their school as it has turned out some of the best teachers out of school, all of which no doubt tends to equip the em-bryo American citizen to make a success in the world.

Promptly at 2 p. m. the board called order. The all important business of the day was electing one director and one school clerk for the ensuing year. The clerk read some instructions from the county superintendent to procedure in the election, and the board was unanimous in the opinion that they could make neither head, nor tail to them. After some complimentary remarks about a legislature making laws that none could understand two heavy-weight Union Hall.

The blind musicians, Messrs. Charles Nevergall and Thomas Winesett, gave an entertainment in Union Hall last Saturday evening, June 21st. The ex-cellent program was highly appreciated by all those present. The blind boys intend to travel over the greater part of the states of Washington, Idaho and Montana, besides the whole of Oregon. It is to be earnestly hoped that they will meet with success and secure the funds to establish a home in Portland for the blind. They want a place where the blind can be taught some practical occupation. May success crown their efforts in their noble work is the wish of their many friends.
