

GROWING

Our business is growing because we pay closest attention to every part of it. Our greatest ambition is to make a success of this store---not an ordinary 30c. success, but a success that will be talked about far and wide. We try to treat every customer so honestly and agreeably that he will feel like apologizing for trading any place else. If any customer ever has a complaint to make about a transaction here, he is met more than half way ---the mistake is cheerfully rectified. We want no dissatisfied customers, will have none if you only let us know if ever anything is not just exactly as it should be.

- CHAUTAQUA.
- Ninth Annual Assembly at Gladstone Park.
- The Chautauqua Assembly at Gladstone Park, which closes tomorrow, has been a success financially as well as educationally. The two lectures of Henry Watterson packed the auditorium. The concert on Saturday and Wednesday also drew forth crowded houses. If the management could have secured another great man for the second week it would have helped out. Secretary Cross is to be congratulated on the result of this meeting. The transportation service of the railroad was not as satisfactory as the electric cars for the reason that it did not run trains often enough. It is understood that by another year the electric cars will run to the park. The baseball game each afternoon at 3:30 helped wonderfully to keep up the attendance.
- NOTES.
- Miss Dollie Cross ably assisted her father as secretary and ground manager and Miss Daisy Cross acted as post-mistress.
- J. S. Pardon and H. C. Stevens acted as ticket sellers. T. M. Gault, J. E. Jack and E. H. Cooper were gate-keepers. J. J. Cooke was grand marshal of the grounds. G. W. Church sold camp chairs over and over again.
- More than the usual number of campers enjoyed the cool shade of the grove.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Commissioner of Pensions Evans underwent a trying ordeal recently that added to his gray hairs. He is a great stickler for punctuality, and the clerks are required to begin and cease work at the sound of a great gong that can be heard all over the large building.

An electrician was up on a twenty foot ladder repairing a line connecting the commissioner's telephone. He lost his balance and fell. In plunging downward he caught a bunch of wires and carried them with him. Among these was the wire running to the gong. The big bell promptly sounded the alarm for quitting work, although it was then only 3:20 p. m. All the clerks made a bustle to get away without delay.

The commissioner tried to prevent the exodus. He sounded the signal for beginning work, but it did not meet with success. After trying for ten minutes to stop the stampede he gave it up and sounded the signal for closing the day's work, and everybody got a thirty minute holiday.

Sunday Golfers Agitated.

A very serious question is disturbing the congressional golf contingent who follow the little white ball on Sunday. Senator Dillingham and Representative Allen have introduced in the senate and house respectively a bill which is designed, as its title indicates, to protect the first day of the week. It is a very drastic measure, forbidding the sale of anything on Sunday except tobacco, cigars, newspapers, drugs and coffins and making it unlawful to work on building or railroad construction, so that if a railroad track should be damaged by a wreck it could not be repaired. But the clause that interests the golf players is as follows:

"Nor shall any public playing of football or baseball or any other kind of playing, sports, pastimes or diversions disturbing the peace and quiet of the day be practiced by any person or persons within the District of Columbia on Sunday."

Quite a discussion was held in the cloakroom of the house the other day as to whether this language forbade golf playing by individuals on private club links on Sunday.

"Don't worry," said a certain western member who plays golf on Sunday as he joined the conference; "the bill will never pass."

The Memorial Bridge.

The special committee of the department of the Potomac, G. A. R., is making another hard effort to secure the final steps to the erection of a memorial bridge. The committee, composed of Thomas S. Hopkins, John McElroy and B. F. Bingham, the commander of the department, called on the president to again urge his good offices and aid in getting congress to make an appropriation to provide for the laying of the cornerstone of the proposed bridge during the national encampment of the G. A. R. in October. It is earnestly hoped that congress can be induced to take this step. The president is deeply interested and will give whatever aid he can. Mr. Hopkins and the members of the committee urged the president to send a special message to congress asking an appropriation for the first work toward the bridge.

The president may not do this, as he dislikes to establish a precedent of this kind, but he did not decline to do so and is going to give the request consideration. It is felt that a special message would awaken congress and result in some action being taken. The president will probably talk to some influential senators and representatives about the proposed bridge.

Mercer's Omibus Bill.

Representative Mercer, who successfully piloted the omnibus public building bill through the house, says that the measure was the first one of its kind ever passed.

"I found a precedent," said Mr. Mercer, "away back in the year one, when an omnibus lighthouse bill was passed, but the effort to pass an omnibus public building bill was never tried before. The success of the experiment proved its wisdom. The last time we undertook to provide for public buildings we were at work for four days in the house and appropriated $19,000,000. This time we only appropriated $17,000,000 and got the bill through in three hours. When you remember the total amount for public buildings suggested in the bills introduced aggregated $07,000,000, I think the country will appreciate the care as well as the skill we had to exercise in order to secure a measure that would command the approval of the house."

The Senate Doctor.

Representative Gaines of Tennessee once studied medicine. In fact, he graduated in that profession ten years ago from the University of Tennessee, but drifted to the practice of law and then into politics. There are not many physicians in the house, while in the senate Dr. Gallinger is the best known example of a medical man in politics. On more than one occasion Dr. Gallinger's services have been required in cases where senators or others have been suddenly taken ill. Indeed, it was largely at his suggestion that a miniature drugstore was established in the office of the sergeant at arms. There is a little cupboard in the room which is filled with bottles of emergency medicines, while such old reliable remedies as blue mass pills and quinine capsules are always to be obtained. The little drugstore is quite a feature at the capitol.

Cowboys Pay a Call.

Five or six cowboys who knew the president personally when he was living on his ranch in the Dakotas called at the White House one day last week with Senator Millard of Nebraska. They received a most friendly greeting from the president.

Tired

that's all. No energy, no vim, no vigor, no ambition. The head aches, thoughts are confused, memory fails. Life becomes a round of work but half accomplished, of eating that does not nourish, of sleep that fails to refresh and of resting that never rests. That's the beginning of nervous prostration.

"I never had anything do me so much good as Dr. Miles' Nervine. I was tired, nervous, sleepless and worn-out and Nervine cured me. I know of nothing so good for indigestion and general building up of the system."
