Thomas Clancy, of Litchfield, Neb., wrote us a few weeks ago about his ex-perience with Dr. Gunn's Blood and Nerve Tonic. As his case may be simi- black as ink. This the professor had lar to others it naturally would be of interest to them to know the result of his test. He had been haunted for years with a gradual growing weakness until he was reduced to almost a shadow. His complexion was sallow and pimply, had dizzy and sinking spells, with loss of memory and ambition. Always felt tired and outdone, suffered greatly with nervousness, and felt that his heart's action was weak. His digestion was so poor his system received no nutriment. He says he commenced the use of this Tonic, taking one tablet after each meal. He did not notice much change after using one box only he enjoyed his meals petter, still he kept on until he had used six boxes. He used the last box more than six months ago. When he stopped the use of Tonic he weighed 28 pounds Has not been sick a day since, and is well in both mind and body. Dr. Gunn's Blood & Nerve Tonic is the best medicine in the world for pale, weak or sick-ly women. her with it. At the moment she fell into the water Professor Rusk, whose eye was following the focused rays of the sun, exclaimed:

"By thunder!" "Allen! Allen!" shricked the girl.

"Rusk! Herel Quick!" cried Ward instead of jumping after his fiancee.

What had caused the professor's exclamation was a ten armed cuttlefish lazily swimming toward the yacht. taking in everything in the shape of food that came in its way. Swallowing Miss Lily's bait, it moved along the yacht's side from stem to stern at a distance of about thirty feet, towing the poor girl, who was sustained by air under her petticoats. It was not long before the fish reached a point opposite Professor Rusk.

The professor's first impulse was to jump for Miss Martindale, his second to find some means to paralyze the cuttlefish and detach her. As the monster floated under the focused rays, his great arms moving languidly like the cars of a drifting man-of-war's boat, Rusk, estimating for the refraction of the water, turned the rays straight into the fish's right eye. Instantly a black cloud issued from the great oval body, and in less than a minute the water about it was as not calculated upon. The fish, corscious of danger, had placed itself on the defensive, and now that it was invisible the work of detaching Lily was more difficult than ever. Placed in position to be used at any moment was a gigantic net of small wire cable strands, with apparatus for throwing it. It was an invention of Professor Rusk and had been con structed and fixed to the yacht's side for the purpose of taking specimens of large cuttlefish. The captain of the yacht had come up, and Rusk, pointing to the ink cloud in the water, signaled him to cast the net. The captain pulled a lever, guiding the net by a recond lever as it fell, covering the surface at the ink cloud, where the net sank out of eight. Meanwhile, Rusk, drawing his pocketknife, jumped into the ocean, swam for Miss Martindale, such force as to tear the net in many places, but was held until it could be killed. It weighed two and a half tons, and its longer tentacles were fortyeight feet.

When the yacht returned to port there was a change in the matrimonial gave her fiance the "dead cut" during the return voyage, and when she stepped on the dock was betrothed to
