Death of Ethel Young.

Little Edith Young, the two-year-old aughter of W. H. Young, died at her parent's home in this city Friday night of last week. The child has always been since her earliest babyhood, and while her death was hardly expected so soon, it was considered only a matter of ime when the end must come. Mr. Beaven officiated and the funeral services ere held at the house Sunday afternoon. Ethel was laid to rest at Mountain View cemetery.

Returned from Nome.

J. O. Martin, formerly proprietor of the Racket Store, returned a few days ago from Nome. The nuggets he displayed—even giving away some of them to his intimate friends—were pretty good proof that he had not spent last winter there for his health. Laborer's wages during the summer, he says, were $7 per day, and board $2 per day. The wolfish appetite the northern atmosphere creates enables the boarder to secure, at least, a goodly share of his money's worth. The industrious young man with cles is in demand at Nome; but until farmers have lost in the fire, and their losses range from $25 to $27.0. street, and tendered him a very pleasing surprise party. Thirty young ladies and gentlemen composed the party, and a more delightful time than was there enjoyed could not be well imagined. The guests first assembled at Mrs. C. Nehren's home and at 8:30 made their appearance at the young man's home. Games of the most interesting variety songs and instrumental music occupied the evening to a late hour, and the whole affair was a complete surprise. During the evening the programme was enlivened with several funny songs by the popular Maccabee quartette, and this, together with many other pleasant Leatures, entertained the company.

You Youson. The breaking up of a "log jam" is one of the most thrilling scenes that it is possible to witness when one is in the lumber cutting country. And more epecially so when the weather is cold enough to freeze the logs and make them slippery. Most of the timber that is cut, is floated down a stream to its destination. Through Wisconsin and Minnesota one sees thousands of the logs floating down lezily with the current and pays no attention to them. By and by, one of those logs will get fast to some obstruction. By and by, one of those logs will get fast, then another log will anchor beside the first one, and then another and another, until the river from bank to bank is competely blocked. Now the force of the running water begins to exert itself and the logs begin to pile themselves on top of one another, some on end, some cross ways and in all sorts of fantastic positions, all held in place by the tremendous pressure ex-erted by the water behind them. It is then, that the expert lumberman is called into prompt action, for jam must be broken or the damage, which will be done by the backed up water will be almost irreparable. He puts on his spikes, takes a long iron shod-pole and then he starts out on the logs. A single misstep, a single error of judgement and his life is liable to pay the forfeit of his daring work. Carefully he moves along the logs, and begins to ease the outer ones, one floats away, then another, then two or three. Suddenly the lumberman makes quickly for the shore, for he knows that his part of the work is done, and then with a sullen roar, as if the waters were angry at being cheated out of their prey, the crackling of timber is heard, the pent up water gives a mighty effort and the jam parts. There is a lot of white foam and churning of the water but once parted, in ten minutes time, the logs are peacefully drifting down the of stream again. This log jam is most realistically illustrated in "Yon Yonson" which comes to Shively's Opera House September 19, under the direction of P. J. Kennedy. It is a model of what can be done upon the stage, and none of the details are missing, which go to make it a perfect representation of the real thing. Aside from this effect there is much to "Yon Yonson" which pleases, and the management is said to have een most careful in the selection of the company which presents the play. It is headed by Nelse Erickson, Harry Bond. Harry B. Roche, Clinton Maynard, Harry Hubbard, Sydney Craven, Patti Rosa, Florence Gear, Belle Dolan, Julia Gilmore, Vivian Speucer and "The Lumbermen's celebrated quartette.

Timber Losses.

Springwater, Or., Oct. 7, 1902.
The Timberman: It is with pleasure that I comply with your request of the 25th inst. The damage done in Clackamas county by the fire of Sept. 11-13 is rather hard to estimate. The committee here, of which your correspondent is secretary, is gathering data as fast as possible. The information I am giving possible. The information I am giving you in this letter only covers a territory of about 40 square miles, that is, a strip about ten miles long and about four miles wide. The strip includes the settlements of Kickapoo, Rocky Point and Springwater. I am unable at this time to give the losses sustained at Beaver Creek, Highland, Viola and other points in the county; but I may in the near fu-ture be able to supply the deficiency. In the neighborhood of which I speak, 101 last glacial epoch that part of the globe same made necessary by the total delost, I will say that $100,000 will barely week. From the work of three to four put them in as good condition as before

Now a word as to the timber This part of Clackamas is not noted for its first-class timber for, as a rule, the trees are short and very limby. I find by close inquiry that about 10 sections have been burned over, and with the exception of about two sections the timber stumpage would amount to no more than Saturday night a gay party assembled for cordwood. A good, fair estimate of at the home of Roy Woodward, on Main the loss to timber would be about $7,-500, probably 30,000,000 feet, and this would make fair lumber if sawn in the next three or four years.

While the people of Springwater and vicinity have r ceived considerable aid from Oregon City and elsewhere, in the way of clothing, money, etc., for their immediate wants, yet much suffering will be experienced before spring. While losses have been very heavy, insurance has been light, as only a very few were insured, and then for only a nominal

I admire the position you are taking in regard to setting out forest fires, and could you see the devastation to the farmers here from the carelessness of hunters and campers with their fires, you would say that a law making it a misdemeanor to hunt or put out a camp fire during the dry season would be the proper thing. Give us more stringent fire laws, then call out the army and Cruelly Crushed.

William Bliss when president of the Boston and Albany railroad was once called before the railroad committee of the Massachusetts legislature to testify on traffic matters, and a young member who was serving his first term undertook to examine him.

"I want you to tell me how much it costs to haul a freight car from Boston to Springfield," said the member,

"I don't know," replied Mr. Bliss., "You don't know?"

"That was the answer I gave." "What are you, anyway?"
"President."

"Of what?" "The Boston and Albany railroad,"

"Well, sir," began the legislator in rising voice, "If you are William Bliss, president of the Boston and Albany rallroad, and you don't know what it costs to haul freight from Boston to Springfield, who in the name of heav en does know?"

"No one that I know unless it is a member of the Massachusetts legislature who is serving his first term." Another member continued the examination.

"Old Patch," the Forger.

It was about the year 1784 that the first forgeries on a very large scale were discovered by the Bank of England, and these were done by one man, known from his favorite disguise as "Old Patch." By a large issue of notes spread over a long period he defrauded the bank of more than £200,-000, and, having only one confidant, his mistress, great difficulty was experlenced in tracing the source of the forgerles. "Old Patch" in his checkered career of lottery office keeper, stockbroker and gambler had given banknotes careful study and acquired a knowledge of engraving, paper making and printing. He made his own ink, manufactured the paper and printed the notes on a private press. In various disguises he hired boys from the streets to present the notes. Suspicion was at last aroused by his movements. He was thrown into prison, where he cheated the law by hanging himself in his cell.-London Chronicle.

A Telling Retort.

Fault was found, says the Christian Endeavor World, with the way in which the shorthand writers reported the speeches in a legislative body, They retaliated by giving the speech of one of the members exactly as he made it, with the following result:

"The reporters-ought not to-the reporters ought not to be the ones to judge of what is important-not to say what should be left out—but—the member can only judge of what is important. As I-as my speeches-as the reports-as what I say is reported sometimes, no one-nobody can understand from the reports-what it is-what I mean. So-it strikes me-it has struck me certain matters-things that appear of importance-are sometimes left out omitted. The reporters-the papers folded his arms." -points are reported-I mean-to make a brief statement - what the paper thinks of interest-is reported.'

The Oldest Death Sentence,

The oldest death sentence extant is found in the Amherst papyri containing the trials of state criminals in Egypt, about 1300 B. C. The criminal in this case was found gullty of magic, which his judges state "was worthy of death, which he carried out, and he killed himself," apparently by stabbing, as in the Japanese "harl karl," which is also of very ancient origin.

Among less civilized peoples drown ing would seem to have been the earli-Secretary Springwater Fire Relief est method of legal punishment, for about 450 B. C. the Britons killed their criminals by throwing them into a quagmire. Of other than capital pun-Ishments the oldest recorded comes from Chalden, where it was enacted some 6,000 years ago that when any one maimed a slave "the hand that thus offended should pay him each day a measure of corn."

The "Gold Snake," A Mexican superstition, very common among miners in that country, relates to the "gold snake." This specles of serpent is perfectly harmless and very handsome, being green in color and with a golden tridescence in its scales. Faith is entertained that wherever a gold snake makes its nest there is a ledge containing the precious metal, and there are many miners who will locate a claim at once if they find a gold snake.

Work That the Heart Does.

The work of the heart is the circutation of the life giving blood throughout the body. With each stroke or beat of the heart it projects something like six ounces of blood into the bodily condults, throwing it for a distance of nine feet. That it does sixty-nine times a minute, 4,140 times each hour, 99,360 times in a day, 36,266,400 times in a year and 2,540,337,120 times in a lifetime of seventy years. The blood is propelled by the heart nine feet each beat, 207 yards each minute, seven miles an hour, 169 miles in a day, 61,817 miles in a year and 4,330,120 miles in the seventy years.

The total force exerted by the heart every twenty-four hours has been calculated to be equal to 124 foot tonsthat is, if the whole force expended by the heart in twenty-four hours were gathered into one huge stroke such a power would lift 124 tons one foot off the ground. This being the daily force, that exerted in a year would be equal to 45,200 foot tons and that in a lifetime of seventy years 3:170,303, Such is the enormous amount of work performed by the human heart, which only weighs eleven ounces and is about the size of the closed fist.

Sailors' Curious Pets.

It has been said of the jackie sailor boy that he is so passionately fond of pets he must have something to love, if it is "only a cockroach in a 'bacey box." This statement was founded on fact, for one of the most remarkable pets of an English ship was a monstrous cockroach. He was four inches long and one Inch broad.

One of the sailors had tamed him and built for him a cage with a little kennel in the corner of it. This insect prodigy learned to recognize his master's voice, and when he heard him call would hurry out from his kennel in response.

Among other odd pets that have been beloved by English sailors was a seal, who had a tank residence on board and a daily round of pleasure and duty, his pleasure seven meals a day, his duty a bath after each meal. Another was a deer, who would take a quid of tobacco with so much delight that the fellow feeling aroused by his appreciative taste made him a general favorite.

According to Formula.

Judge Pennypacker was once asked by his brother Harry during a session of court for the loan of $5. Harry walked to the desk and whispered the request in the judge's ear. The latter, looking down over the top of his glasses without the suggestion of a smile, said loud enough to be heard throughout the room:

"Put your application in writing and present it to the court in a proper man-

Mr. Pennypacker, thinking the judge's regard for the dignity of the court, it quietly and seriously and then interrupted the pending trial long enough

Stopped For Once.

A citizen from the frontier, who never had been in Washington before, was visiting a friend in the nation's capital and was taken one day to the gallery of the senate while an important measure was under discussion.

A senator was delivering a long prosy and apparently aimless speech and the visitor soon grew thred of it. "Why doesn't he say something worth listening to?" he whispered to his friend.

"Oh, he's merely talking against

"What's the good of that?" asked the other, aghast. "Time goes on just the same, doesn't it?"

"I suppose it does," replied his friend, looking at his watch and yaws ing; "but it doesn't seem to."

Bis Folded Arms. "Madge, Harry asked me to be his wife last night."

"Oh, I am so delighted!" replied her friend. "How did it happen?"

"Well, you see, he just asked me, and I said 'Yes,' and then he stood up and

"Well, I never! Was he not more interested than that? Whatever did you do at such treatment?"

"What could I do? You see, I was in his arms when he folded them!"

Shock After Burns. Shock, which is always present in severe burns, requires the administration of stimulants. The amount of shock or collapse after any bad injury or sudden fright differs with the character of individuals. Some succumb to it much more readily than others. When serious, the temperature drops below normal, the face is pale, pinched and anxious, the pulse slow and feeble, the body bathed in a cold perspiration. Sometimes there is shivering. Sometimes the mind insistence upon regularity to be merely wanders. Place the patient at once in a horizontal position, the head wrote out the request and handed it to slightly raised. Administer stimuthe clerk of the court, who in turn lants, alcoholic or aromatic vinegar. If passed it to the bench. The judge read whisky or brandy is used, give from a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of hot water every ten minutes until five or six doses have been taken. Surround the body and legs inside the thighs and under the armpits with hot water bags, hot stones-anything to give warmth-but take care not to burn your patient. If the injury is to the head, follow the same treatment, but omit the alcoholic stimulant.

Apples and Currents.

If the liver is sluggish, refusing to work, so that the bile flow is deficient and so all fats remain undigested, the eating of either apples or an abundance of currants will effect a magical change. The jaded organ will be stimulated; all the digestive juices act; the food is all absorbed, and soon the appetite cries for more. Therefore the apple and the currant have been called appetizers because they are the means of bringing appetite to those in search of it. The apple being in season longest has the usual claim to favor as an appetizer, but the currant is almost as deserving of the claim. But it has more waste in the shape of fiber and skin than is found in the apple, the proportion in the currant being over 41/2 per cent, while in the apple it is only 31-5 per cent.

Why Teak Wood Is Durable.

The teak, which has passed into proverb as the best material for shipbuilding, is superior to all other woods from the fact that it contains an essential oil which prevents spikes and nails driven into it from rusting. This property is not possessed by any other wood in the world and furnishes an explanation of the fact that ships built of teak are practically indestructible. Some have been known to last for 150 years, and when broken up their beams were as sound as when first put to-
