name of Wilson will run the lodging house.

Peter Wilson, of Logan, was in Oregon City on Monday, attending to business. Mr. Wilson is an old resident of this valley, having located here in 1858. He says that he has lived in a great many states, and that he thinks Oregon is the best state of them all, and the Willamette valley the best part of Oregon. He is now seventy years of age, and expects to live and die in this valley.

The O. R. & W. P. Company are making plans to build a commodious depot in the south end of town. Two or three of the unsightly buildings which have long disgraced that end of town are being razed to make room for the company's new structure, which will add greatly to the general appearance of south Main street. There is room for a good deal of improvement in that end of town.

Oscar Jones died Monday morning, at his home, near Abernathy. He was 38 years of age. His remains were taken to Highland for burial on Thursday. Mr. Jones was a mill man, and had a large number of close friends and acquaintances in Clackamas county. He had a sister in eastern Oregon, and it was in order to give her time to get here that his remains were kept and his burial so long deferred.

John McLennon, of Whatcom county, Wash., and Mrs. R. Chittick, of this county, were quietly married at the home of Rev. J. V. Craig, Monday evening, at 5 o'clock. After the wedding the bridal party left on the train for Los Angeles, Cal., where they will remain during the rainy season. In the spring they will return to Washington, where they will make their home. The bride is quite a popular Clackamas county lady and has many friends. The groom has mining interests in Washington and British Columbia and is quite well-to-do.

Thomas Crowley met with a piece of good fortune, last week. Forty-seven years ago his father gave him an old muzzle-loading rifle. Mr. Crowley was at that time a boy of ten. Just forty years ago he sold this old gun to a party in Cedar Springs, this state. A few days ago Mr. Crowley was in a second-hand store in this city when he found the gun that he had parted with, forty years ago. He immediately struck a bargain with the keeper of the second-hand store, and bought the gun for fifty cents. A hundred times that amount would not buy the gun from him. The gun is of the cap and ball variety, such as was used in the middle part of the last century.

The heavy rains of the past week have put many of the streams of Clackamas county out of their banks, and some of the smaller ones are little less than roaring mountain torrents. Reports from the vicinity of Clear Creek, the Molalla river, Milk Creek, and other streams in the eastern section, state that they are very high. Water from the Willamette has backed up the Abernathy and covered a good deal of the public road north of town. Whole acres of water cover much of the low ground along this creek, and parties who have come over the Abernathy road state that they were forced to ride five or six miles around in order to get into the town. The Willamette has also been and is yet very high, and a very few inches more of water will put it up over the street-car track, south of town.

More Divorce Suits Filed in Circuit Court.

Florence B. Wilcox brought suit in the circuit court, Monday, through her attorney for a divorce against her husband, H. D. Wilcox, former city superintendent of schools in Oregon City. The charge is desertion. Mr. Wilcox resigned his position before the beginning of the term and shortly afterwards left the city. The plaintiff asks for $15 a month alimony for the support of the minor child.

T. B. Wallace has brought suit in the circuit court against his wife, Martha A. Wallace, for a divorce on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. The complaint states that the plaintiff was married to the defendant at Aurora, N. Y., May 28, 1871, and that within a few days after marriage the defendant began and pursued a course of cruel and inhuman treatment, and heaped upon him intolerable abuse, which became more violent and frequent during the years they lived together; that defendant had a violent temper which she could not control, and would heap personal indignities which rendered plaintiff's life burdensome; that the defendant insisted in having the title of all community property in her name, and if he did not consult her wishes, would abuse plaintiff. The complaint further alleges that in the spring of 1895 the defendant said to plaintiff in connection with other abuse that "the sweetest music to my ears would be to hear the clods drop on your coffin," and applied the foregoing to plaintiff; that plaintiff was forced to leave defendant in July, 1895, and has since continued to live apart from her.

Paper Companies to Use Crude Oil for Fuel.

The Willamette Pulp & Paper Company and the Crown Paper Company will in the near future use crude oil for fuel in their mills in Oregon City. Contracts have already been made with a California oil company, and while the mills have been given until 1904 to get ready, it is probable they will be able to use the new fuel by May 1, 1903. The two paper companies consume 175 cords of wood a day, which means many thousand gallons of oil a day when the change takes place. The Crown Paper Company will erect its storage tanks here, and its reservoirs will hold 400,000 gallons, giving the company a supply for 3½ months. It will be necessary to keep this large amount of oil on hand, owing to the low stage of water at the Clackamas rapids during certain months of the year. As the Willamette mills burn four times as much wood their tanks will be much larger, unless they provide some means of shipping the oil by rail during low water.

It has been stated that a steamer will be especially built to carry the oil to the mills and will discharge the oil direct to the reservoirs by means of a powerful pump. Portland will likely be made the base of supply, and the oil company will erect large tanks. The National Transportation Company will carry the oil from California on its ocean tank steamers and its representative is now in Portland looking for a site.

A New Road Up the Bluff.

On Wednesday evening of next week, a special meeting of the city council will be held for the purpose of considering the advisability of ordering the street commissioner to open the new road up the bluff in the south part of the city. An ordinance exists covering this improvement, and all that is needed is action by the council. This matter of giving the southern part of the city a wagon road eastward has been thrashed over not a little, and not a few property owners would be considerably benefited. It is said that whereas the Singer hill grade is nearly ten per cent, that of the proposed piece of road would be about seven. The estimated cost is about $3,000, of which citizens will directly contribute one-half.
