PERSONALS

W. S. Wills, of Aurora, was here Tuesday on business.

William Druschel, of Canby, was in town Tuesday on business.

Joe Harless, of Molalla, was in Oregon City Tuesday on business.

Tom McFadden, who has been in Oregon City for the past month, went back to Molalla Tuesday.

Andrew Koehler, one of Canby's leading merchants, was in town the first of the week on business.

Charles Latourette, of Oregon City, Oregon, was the guest of H. B. Latourette and family Christmas.—Fenton (Mich.) Independent.

J. M. Price, one of Oregon City's big merchants, left the latter part of last week for Seattle, where he is looking after some business interests.

David Eby, who has been visiting his son, O. C. Eby, and other Oregon City relatives for the past month, left for his home in Eugene Tuesday morning.

Frank Astman, of Canby, has bought the saloon formerly owned by John Cooke, near the wooden mill, and opened up for business last Saturday. He expects to run an up-to-date place, and extends a cordial invitation for all the boys to come around and see him.

J. W. Gilligan, of Meadowbrook, was in town on business on last Saturday. Mr. Gilligan is a new man to Clackamas county, having moved into the county recently from Fisher, in Washington. He is ranching, has a family, and expects to make this county his home in the future.

The Fenton (Mich.) Independent says: A quiet but beautiful wedding was that of Miss Florence B. Latourette, of Boston, Mass. The service was solemnized in presence of the family and a few intimate friends. Miss Louise Wheeler was bridesmaid and Harold Latourette best man. Miss Latourette is related to some of Oregon City's most prominent people.

M. Michaels, one of Oregon City's up-to-date merchants, left this week for Baker City to look after his business interests. Mr. Michaels has decided to locate at that place and will get into house furniture. He expects to go into the business on a large scale, and without doubt will do a good business there as he has here. His successor, M. Michaels, a kinsman, is now in Oregon City, and will remain here for several days.

You can never buy as cheap now as your opportunity at the wind up sale.—M. Michael, Oregon City.

Grading for the new freight depot has proceeded rapidly for the past week, and with good weather will have been completed in the course of another week.

Several teams and a score of men are employed at the work. It seems certain now that an opera house will be built over the depot.

The Willamette valley has enjoyed a fine winter weather the past several days as perhaps any part of the United States. Bright, sunny days, with the temperature just a little above freezing, has been the rule. Even the sunny South could not produce more ideal weather for midwinter.

The Roseburg Review got out a fine trade edition last week, replete with historical sketches of Oregon, and abounding with information of much value. The edition was beautifully illustrated with half-tone cuts of people, places and live stock, and was altogether a very creditable number.

The concrete walls of the addition to the plant of the P. G. E. Co., 17 inches thick, are approaching completion. The addition lengthens the building about 40 feet, but its width, about 60 feet, is nearly double that of the main building, the floor of which is crowded with ponderous, gigantic electric generators.

The fine weather of the past week has greatly accelerated the work on the new Methodist church building, and should the weather continue for a few days longer fine as it has, all of the outside work will have been done, and rain will not interfere with the inside work. Johnson & Andrews, who have the contract, are pushing things for all they are worth.

The Gladstone Real Estate Association and H. L. Kelly, trustee, have brought suit in the circuit court against T. F. Ryan, to recover 600 acres in Gladstone which were recently purchased at a junk sale of property, against which taxes were due for 1898. Six hundred acres were sold by the court at the junk sale for $423, and in addition to this Judge Ryan bid in 40 lots which H. L. Kelly holds as trustee. The plaintiff's case alleges that the sale was invalid.

While the steamer Lang was on its way, Monday afternoon, the paper mill landing, the wristpin connecting the crankshaft and one of the pitmans dropped out of its socket. Before the engineer could stop the machinery, the piston rod smashed through the cylinder head, the result being that a piece of the stuffing box on the back end of it, several pounds in weight, hit Mate Hackdale on the side of the face and cut open his cheek. The accident laid up the Lang for more than a week.

A young Austrian boy, unable to speak the language of our country, came into town Friday, tired, hungry and worn out. He is a recent arrival from his fatherland and fell into the kindly hands of Secretary Bollack, of the woolen mills, and by him was taken to G. Rosensteir, the clothier, who speaks Austrian, and 10 other languages besides. He talked to the boy who explained his impoverished condition. Mr. Rosensteir gave him some new clothes, which he was sadly in need of, fed him and then took him across the street to the Bon Ton restaurant, which is conducted by an Austrian, and secured a position for him. Mr. Rosensteir came here five years ago from A'asace and Loraine province, and was glad to have the opportunity of doing a charitable act for a homeless and friendless lad.—Record.

Golden Wedding Anniversary.

On the afternoon of Tuesday, January 6th, a party of friends and neighbors of Mrs. Sarah Broughton called unexpectedly upon her to remind her that she had reached the 50th anniversary of her wedding day. Everything was of an informal nature and no program had been arranged, but in response to requests, Mrs. Scott gave a nice recitation, and afterwards joined with Mrs. G. W. Grace in some songs, one being "The Golden Wedding," was very appropriate and its rendering artistic. Mrs. Della Green sang "The Drummer's Wishes."

A gold coin was presented to Mrs. Broughton with the following remarks: "We are gathered here this afternoon to help commemorate an event in your life now fifty years past—your wedding day. Our lots in life, as women, vary in their lines—in the degree of wealth, social distinction, mental gifts or personal beauty bestowed, but there is enough of common joy and sorrow to make us all akin.

"As she passes along through life, certain days come to shine in a woman's memory like so many stars, and the one brightest of them all is her wedding day, the day when she clasped hands with one whom she loved and trusted, and looked forward to an unclouded future.

"Whatever disappointment, sorrow or hardship may follow, we thank God that he gives to our sex this one taste of Paradise.

"Although your companion long since passed away, you have, through all these lonely years, kept his place sacred and the name he left in trust unstained.

"So, in behalf of the friends here, together with many who were unable to be present, I offer you this bit of gold as a token of what we bring to you today— that friendship, sympathy and respect which make up for us all the real gold of life."

Dainty refreshments were then served and the hostess presented each departed guest with a lovely yellow chrysanthemum.

Those present were Mesdames Koerner, P. G. Kester, Yoder, Sylvester Johnson, J. R. Williams, Evan Williams, A. Matheson, G. W. Grace, L. W. Scott, M. A. Thomas, M. W. Miller, Della Green, Dungey, William Estes, Chris Bluhm, B. Beatty, William Wilson, Chris Schuebel, G. Reddaway, Charles Priester, P. Krouse and Isaac Williams; Misses Eleanor, Maggie and Angie Williams.

Rev. Carlisle P. B. Martin, L. L. D.

Waverly, Texas, writes: "One morning, when first rising, I often find a troublesome collection of phlegm, which produces a cough, and is very hard to dislodge; but a small quantity of Ballard's Horehound Syrup will at once dislodge it, and the trouble is over. I know of no medicine that is equal to it, and it is so pleasant to take. I can most cordially recommend it to all persons needing a medicine for throat or lung troubles." Price 25c, 50c, $1.00 bottle at Charman & Co., City Drug Store, Oregon City, Or.

Shod Horses for Lewis and Clark.

"I knew Alexander H. Willard well and he always told me he was one of the men with Lewis and Clark. And here I find his name in the Conquest."

The speaker was Ex-Sheriff, W. C. Ganong of Clackamas county, Oregon, who has been reading "The Conquest, The True Story of Lewis and Clark," by Eva Emery Dye, just published by A. C. McClurg & Co. of Chicago. As a boy of sixteen I crossed the plains to California in 1852, and made my home at the house of Captain Roland Willard, sixteen miles from Sacramento on the lower Stockton road at a place called Franklin. Captain Roland Willard's father, Alexander H. Willard, lived with another son by the name of Ham in Yolo county just across from Sacramento in the Cache Creek country. Every few days the old gentleman, Grandpa Willard, we used to call him, came driving in with his old gray mare and buggy. Why Charlie, he used to say to me, forty years ago I used to shoe my filly myself, but now I'll have to take her to the blacksmith.

"Like a boy I wanted to learn all I could, so while I worked the old man, for I was a boy of work and barber at the ranch, I asked him many questions.

"Yes, Grandpa Willard used to shoe. I was a blacksmith and helped shoe the horses for Lewis and Clark. There were two or three blacksmiths along and we had hard work, especially in the mountains.

"I cannot remember all he said to me, that was fifty years ago, but he told me the Indians looked upon Clark as a God and his red head saved them many a time.

"Grandpa Willard was quite old in 1852 and '53, when I knew him. I know I had lots of trouble in shaving around his wrinkles, but he was a very genial and honest old gentleman and respected by everybody. He was a large man, six feet two, square built, with high cheek bones, a noble face and most kindly spirit.

"No, I do not know where he was born nor where he enlisted with Lewis and Clark. The family might know if you could find them. He came to California from Wisconsin, and had three sons, Hamilton, Roland and Lewis, the youngest, named for Captain Lewis I suppose. Roland was a bachelor and when he died the old man inherited his place with five hundred head of horses and a thousand acres of land, so Alexander H. Willard must have died the richest member of the Lewis and Clark expedition. He died at Franklin, California, and is buried there, but I have forgotten the year. Yes, he had a number of grandchildren, one of them, George Willard, I heard was an attorney and I suppose is living somewhere in California now.

"This is the Alexander H. Willard of the Lewis and Clark journals for whom Willard Creek was named, and on which paying gold was first discovered in Montana.

"All trace of him was lost after the disbanding of the famous expedition. It is hoped his family may be located and further information gleaned as to his early life."

POULTRY RAISING.

A Paying Industry in Clackamas County.

The raising of poultry in Clackamas county has commanded no little attention during the past few years and is steadily growing. A subscriber from Canby writes that Mary F. Houghman, who lives two miles east of Canby has a little farm and keeps a small flock of hens. Last year she sold 2,183 dozen eggs and set for hatching five hundred eggs, and had plenty for the family use beside, and at the end of the year she found by looking over her accounts that she had sold eggs enough at market prices to bring her in the tidy little sum of $472.50. She ships all of her eggs to Portland and obtains the very highest market prices for them.

Poultry raising certainly pays and if one would only take the trouble to go into the business on a large scale he would no doubt make good money at the business.

Best Liniment on Earth.

Henry D. Baldwin, Supt. City Water Works, Shullsburg, Wis., writes: "I have tried many kinds of liniment, but have never received much benefit until I used Ballard's Snow Liniment for rheumatism and pains. I think it the best liniment on earth." 25c, 50c and $1 at Charman & Co., City Drug Store, Oregon City, Oregon.
