

8 Cents

Eight cents a pound is what a young woman paid for twelve pounds of flesh.

She was thin and weak and paid one dollar for a bottle of Scott's Emulsion, and by taking regular doses had gained twelve pounds in weight before the bottle was finished.

Eight cents a pound is cheap for such valuable material. Some pay more, some less, some get nothing for their money. You get your money's worth when you buy Scott's Emulsion.

THE DUST SPRAY.

Its Advantages and Disadvantages. Machine and Formula.

In response to general interest in the subject the Country Gentleman has collected information from various fruit growers and also presents a cut which gives some idea of the construction of one type of apparatus or dust spraying. The cylinder is the dust box, and the wheel works the air blast. D. W. Maxwell says:

Lime being your conveyor, you have a basis upon which you can make a compound with perfect safety to your foliage that will exterminate insect life. You will never see any discoloring of fruit. It gives you a perfect foliage. In the liquid process you cannot have thorough work, but in the dust every particle of the tree is covered, not only that, but everything around it. As a fungicide there is no comparison of the two methods nor in destroying the cankerworm and codling moth. You can spray from forty to fifty acres in a day of trees from fifteen to twenty years old at one-half the expense of liquid spraying; cost of material per tree, 8 cents. By our experience we have perfected a formula.

How to Make the Spray.

One barrel of fresh lime, 25 pounds bluestone, 5 pounds concentrated lye, 25 pounds powdered sulphur, 5 pounds paris green (pure). Increase the paris green to 10 pounds for cankerworms. Break the lime into small pieces and put it into a box 3 by 8 feet. Dissolve the bluestone in boiling water, 6 gallons. Dissolve the lye in 5 gallons hot water. Keep the two solutions separate. Take a sprinkler and sprinkle the solutions on the lime. If not enough to slack into dust, use water. Cover over the dust when through slacking. Make a sieve of fine wire and attach a long handle. Sieve out the dust. Rub the sulphur through sieve into the dust and put the paris green in. Stir thoroughly. Be careful not to get the dust too damp. Your compound is now ready for use. Spray just before the bloom opens, then as it drops, then once a week until you have sprayed six times, then once every two weeks until the 1st of August.

A Conservative View.

J. M. Stedman of the Missouri experiment station writes: I can briefly say that the dust process cannot take the place of the liquid process for applying insecticides in all cases, but that in many instances it is just as effectual, while in a few it seems to be more effectual. Where one has a number of small plants, such as cabbages, strawberries and the like, it frequently happens that the dust process is more effectual than the liquid and also has an advantage over the liquid process, in that it is much more readily managed. On the other hand, in spraying large orchard trees it is not as effectual, especially for the codling moth, as is the liquid. Many orchards are located on steep hillsides, where it is practically impossible for a team to draw a heavy load of water. The ground in other orchards is so soft during the spring that it is practically impossible to draw a heavily loaded water tank through the orchard. In still other orchards the location is such that it is impossible to obtain sufficient water for the spraying. In such instances it becomes a matter of using the dust process or none at all.

Handy in the Garden.

For the garden the dust process is so much lighter that a person can readily carry the machine and do the dusting that would require a barrel of water in case of the liquid process. The dust process also has an advantage in that in many instances it is much more readily made up, and many people will use a small hand dust machine where they will not go to the trouble of using a liquid one. The paris green or other arsenical poison used in the dust machine readily floats in the air and is blown a considerable distance by the wind, so that in dusting the trees one should be careful to see that the dust does not blow in the face, otherwise one is apt to inhale too much arsenical poison. The horses should also be kept away from the dust. It is advisable in the use of the dust to apply it early in the morning while the dew is upon the plants or soon after a rain, and it is also well to apply the dust when there is a slight breeze.

Farmers and Cannerymen.

The Farmers' Protective association of central New York is making trouble for the canning factories in setting prices for which the members are willing to grow their produce instead of taking the prices offered, as heretofore. The scale adopted is considerably in advance of what was received by farmers last year. Some factories have granted a slight increase. In Maryland there are much agitation and conflict between growers and packers of tomatoes, along the eastern shore. Country Gentleman.

Leave the Old Hen in Peace.

During the hatching, if you are wise, you will not be too curious, but will allow the instinct of the hen to do her work. It may be well to quietly reach under her and remove such eggshells as can be removed, without disturbing her, but nothing further should be attempted.
