On account of striking a quarry of stone the steam shovel engaged in filling the trestle of the O. W. P. Railway Company at the Clackamas river was compelled to abandon work Tuesday. The trestle is a quarter of a mile long and the filling of it means the moving of an immense amount of dirt. It also means a good long job for the large force of men employed upon it. The steam shovel will be moved to another location when the work will be resumed.

An amusing incident occurred on an Oregon City street car last Sunday evening. A large crowd of Oregon City people were returning from Portland and coming down a heavy grade a trolley wire broke and began to beat upon the roof of the car. The noise made by the broken wire resembled a series of pistol shots. On the alert for holdups the entire crowd jumped from their seats and started for the door. One man shoved his pocketbook down the leg of his pantaloons and crawled under the seat.

An electric freight car on the O. W. P. & Railway Company's line became derailed Friday evening and delayed traffic for several hours. The accident occurred on the trestle side of the Clackamas river. Carpenters were engaged in repairing the trestle left a 12 x 4 stick of timber in the middle of the track which caused the difficulty. No one was injured, but it was a narrow escape, for if the car had gone a few feet further it would have tumbled over the trestle a distance of fifty feet to the ground below.

The Allen Stock Company completed a week's engagement here last Saturday night. Every play put on during the entire week was up to the expectations of the audience. There was not a single "bum" performance during the whole week. The production of "The Black Heifer" Saturday evening was as amusing a farce comedy as was ever put on the local stage, and literally brought down the house on more than one occasion. The specialties introduced between acts were all good. The songs of George Walsh were highly commendable, while as for little Vera Felton, she was a decided "hit" of the show. While a mere child of ten or twelve tender summers she is an actress with more expression than ordinarily falls to humankind. Her appearance was always a signal for prolonged applause and she was repeatedly encored. While the company was good the show was not a success financially as the crowds who witnessed the performance were not large enough to support a company of 20 people. They promise to make Oregon City again, however, and it is to be hoped that their patronage will be better next time.

A Japanese wedding will take place next Tuesday evening, June 30th, at Shively's opera house, the contracting parties are as yet unknown, but it is rumored that they are well known in this city.
