The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened to almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and retold by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than I expected. I used other remedies, but Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by G. A. Harding."

THE JOY THAT WAS

I WISH I were a child again
And free from worldly cares,
To gallop free and wild again
Unmindful of the cares;
I wish that I might try again
To see if I could hold
A piece of mother's pie again
Upside down as of old,
And, starting at the pointed place,
Just let it seep through my face.

I wish that I could fare again
Far from the roar and white
And be a boy out there again
To sally plaid with her,
And when she cut the pie again
And handed me a wedge
I'd have a heartful sigh again
And, with the business edge
Inserted in the proper place,
Just let it seep through my face.
—G. M. Kiser in Chicago Record-Herald.

Breaking the News of
A Death Gently

This is a true account of one person's idea of "breaking the news gently." The cook, whose home was off in the country, appeared before the "powers above" with a letter in her hand.

"I'll have to go home for a couple of days, mum," she said. "My cousin's just written to me." And she handed over the crumpled bit of paper with an audible sniff.

"Dear Mary," it ran, "you had better come home at once. Your father is very sick." And it continued with many particulars of the illness.

At the end was a postscript which, like the old joke of a woman's P. S., had the pith of the matter.

"So long as you'll be driving up from the village you may as well bring the undertaker along with you in the wagon."—New York Times.

A Helping Hand.

"Gracious," exclaimed the stranger in the west, "what a cruel country this is!"

"How's that, stranger?" asked the tough citizen.

"Why, I just heard that a fellow was shot down here yesterday for lending a helping hand to a fellow mortal."

"Lending a helping hand, did yeh say?" queried the cowboy. "Why, I remember the case."

"How was it?"

"Alkali Ike was a-playin' a poker game, an' he slipped three aces to his partner under the table. Of course somebody shot him for lendin' that sort of a helpin' hand!"—Baltimore Herald.

An Old Timer's Declaration.

"The stage," remarked Mr. Stormington Barnes, "is not what it used to be."

"I suppose you long for the good old days when people appreciated true art."

"You misunderstand me. What I mean is that we didn't have electric lights and commodious dressing rooms and elaborate scenery as we have now. The stage isn't what it used to be, and I'm glad of it."—Washington Star.

Restricted Activity.

Little Roy, having on a pair of new shoes which fitted rather tight, said impatiently:

"Mamma, I don't like to wear new shoes."

"Why, dear, do they hurt your feet?" asked his mother.

"No," he replied, "they don't hurt, but my toes can't wink."—Little Chronicle.

A Piece of Rope.

"Jigley's drumming up trade for a rope and twine house now."

"Gee whizz! That accounts for it."

"Accounts for what?"

"When I met him on the street yesterday he asked me if I'd have a cigar. He must have given me one of his samples."—Clipper.

A Good Excuse.

Teacher—Why were you absent from school yesterday?

Kid—I was helpin' pa. I chaperoned him to the circus. He couldn't git to go no other way.—New York American.

Penalties of Greatness.

Crawford—I suppose his fame has made him happy.

Crabshaw—Not quite. Ever since he became famous he has been worrying himself trying to originate a deathbed epigram to deliver as his last words.—Puck.

One Great Advantage.

"Hypnotism is a great thing, isn't it?"

"Yes," admitted the demure young thing, "and it is especially serviceable as an excuse when you are caught letting a man kiss you."—Chicago Post.

A Favorable Critic.

"So you regard the success of your play as assured?"

"To a certain extent," replied the author. "No one knows as much about it as I do, and it has made an enormous hit with me."—Washington Star.

All For Her.

Miss Passay (coolly)—And just think! Last evening he suddenly caught me in his arms and kissed me.

Miss Pepprey—He always was a good hearted fellow, and so unselfish!—Indianapolis Sun.

A Matter to Adjust.

Ike—Kentucky courthouses should be made without doors.

Jake—Yes; it's rank cowardice to shoot an innocent bystander from behind a door.—Detroit Free Press.

Considerable to Say.

"What does your wife say when you come home late?"

"Say, do you expect me to reel off a three volume serial at a moment's notice?"—Brooklyn Eagle.

Hardly Synonymous.

Landlady—Is your steak too rare?

New Boarder—Well—er—I must admit it is just a trifle scarce.—
