Narrow Escape.

William Happersatt met with an accident last Monday at noon that might have terminated fatally. He is an engineer and engaged in running the donkey engine on the Clackamas bridge of the Southern Pacific Railway Company. A large crew of men are working on the bridge. Monday, just before noon, Happersatt left his engine and went over where some of the men were engaged in moving a heavy stick of timber to give them a "lift." Another stick of timber protruded over the bridge's edge and on the end of this he stepped, not dreaming that it would tilt up, but it did and he was plunged downward into the waters of the stick of timber a distance of 30 feet. The water is fifteen or twenty feet deep and man and timber went out of sight but soon reappeared. Happersatt clung onto the timber when he arose and was rescued by fellow workmen. In his fall he barely missed striking a raft on one side and a bent in the bridge on the other. Save for a fractured arm which will lay him up for a few days, he was not injured.

Fell From Balcony.

Mrs. Hill, who lives with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ingram, at the head of Fifth street just below Falls View, met with a very serious and painful accident Tuesday morning. She was leaning against the balcony railing upstairs when the railing gave way and she was precipitated to the ground 15 feet below. The services of four physicians were called and her injuries treated. It was discovered that her left clavicle was fractured and her ribs injured. Whether she was internally injured or not is not yet known, but her condition is still quite serious.

The Boss Worm Medicine.

H. F. Kanne, Druggist, Leighton, Ala., writes: "One of my customers had a child, which was sick, and threw up all food, could retain nothing on its stomach. He bought one bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge, and it brought up 19 worms from the child. It's the best worm medicine in the world." White's Cream Vermifuge is also the children's medicine. It improves their digestion and assimilation of food, strengthens their nervous system and restores them to the health, vigor and clarity of spirits natural to childhood. 25c. at Charman & Co.'s.

DEVORY'S AMBITION.

Why Former Police Chief Will Run For Mayor of New York. The announced determination of William S. Devory, who was formerly chief of police of New York, to run as an independent Democratic candidate for the mayorality of the city promises a picturesque campaign in Gotham next fall. Big Bill's platform is brief and to the point, "The downtown must be raised and have their say." "There seems to be a lot of stuff in the air about Devoryism," said Big Bill recently, discussing his coming campaign, "but I fail to see how it comes in. Of course the Fusion party made a high play on that card and of course cashed in, an' Devory was removed. Now, I ain't no angel, an' I may not go to heaven with a pair of white wings, but none of them political grafters that are runnin' Tammany Hall can keep me from doin' it." "I wouldn't give 50 cents to be mayor of New York except for one thing. I'd like to see the poor man get justice. This town is ripe for a turnin' over like Mayor Jones has given 'em in Toledo, an' Bill Devory is the man who can DEVORY AT THE PUMP. do it. I'll show them grafters a thing or two when I gets to work at 'em next fall." Devory became noted for his terse sayings, couched in the slang of the Bowery, during the time he was chief of police. He has long been popular in his district, where he has spent thousands of dollars in barbecues, excursions and other free blow-outs, besides giving much money in charity to the needy. When he starts his campaign there will be "something doin'," as he would say, and Tammany Hall will "know that it has been to an election." He gets his nickname, "Big Bill," from his immense size. He is six feet tall and weighs about 300 pounds. Devory and his followers meet nightly near his home at a hydrant which has become locally known as "the pump."

STRENUOUS JAMES HOWE. Runs Law Offices in Two Towns Besides Driving a Locomotive. Few men in the great state of Illinois lead so strenuous a life as does James Howe of Galesburg, who besides being an engineer on the Burlington railroad maintains law offices in Chicago and Galesburg and also finds time to take a prominent part in politics. Mr. Howe has been practicing law for three years and for fifteen has been at the throttle of a locomotive. His run now is between Galesburg and Chicago, a distance of 163 miles. Four hours of work every day and four additional hours every alternate day make up his week's service for the road. Every morning the Kansas City fler goes through Galesburg at 4:45 o'clock. Every alternate morning Mr. Howe takes the train into Chicago, arriving there at 9. An hour later he is in his Chicago law office ready to dispense legal lore. At 6 o'clock he starts back with the train to Galesburg. The next morning he is in his Galesburg office deep in briefs until the time comes for him to again don his overalls. Mr. Howe began the study of law seven years ago and was admitted to the bar in 1900. He then opened office at each end of his run and has acquired quite an extensive practice.

A DISAPPEARING RACE.

How the Maoris of New Zealand Disfigure Their Faces. Interest is awakened in the Maoris, the aborigines of New Zealand, by the report that these people are gradually disappearing and will probably become extinct in a few years. When the white men invaded New Zealand less than seventy years ago

TATTOOED FACE OF A MAORI CHIEF. they found it inhabited by over 100,000 people, large of stature, brave and warlike, but the most cruel and dangerous cannibals ever encountered by explorers. Today but 35,000 remain. The people are still fairly large and muscular, and their features, which are not naturally very prepossessing, are made still more repulsive by the extraordinary amount of tattooing displayed on every face. The rather flat noses are covered with tattooed designs, and a most hideous appearance is the result.

Herrick, who is said to be President Roosevelt's choice for the vice presidential nomination next year, is a banker of Cleveland and was a warm friend of the late President McKinley. He was prominently mentioned at one time for the post of minister to Italy. No man in banking is better known in the middle west and southwest than Mr. Herrick. His bank is unlike most banks. Mr. Herrick is a native of Lardin county, O., and was educated at the district school and later at Oberlin college. He studied law, but never practiced. When he arrived in Cleveland in 1875 he was in debt, as he himself says. Today he is worth several millions. He is in his forty-ninth year.
