ICIPORTANT NEWSPAPER CHANGE

Henry Watterson's Courier-Journal Announces a New Policy.

During three decades the Louisville Courier-Journal has stood unalterably and consicuously before the public as the representative of the great common-ality of the people against both the Robber Baron, seeking through the accretion of ill-got money to steal away people's liberty by stealing away their frauchise rights, and the ready tool of the Robber Baron, the bandit politician, masquerading as a statesman and a patriot the better to serve the ends of his maser. In fulfilling this high function it has sometimes had to go fast and sometimes to go slow, sometimes to cry "onward," and to cry "halt," sometimes to drive at the root of things, and some times to drive ahead; but never chang-ing the direction of its movement and always true to the underlying principle of its being, exp essed by the simple demand for "The Greatest Good to the Greatest Number."

With the advent of the New Year, that is on the first of January, 1903, the Courier-Journal began a campaign from which it looks for commanding results, and the better to reach the objects it has before it, the twice-a-week edition was changed to once-a-week edition, returning to the old Weekly Courier-Journal, which for a quarter of a century was lit-erally a political bible to millions of Americans whe knew they could trust both its prescience and its disinterestedmodern in every respect, and is a paper for the home. It is issued every Wedneeday, and its ten or twelve eight-colnmn pages are filled with the best work of the best writers. The price of the paper is $1 a year, in advance, and it is well worth it.

By a special arrangement with the publishers of the Courier-Journal you can get that paper and the Oregon City Courier for only $2.00.
