James Jeffries.

John Weismantel Expresses Holds His Title of Champion of the World.

> He Is the Big Fighting Machine of the Modern Prize Ring.

> No man can stand before him. Jeffries is again proclaimed the champion prize fighter of the world, The following description of the battle between him and Examiner by Ashton Stevens:

"The best of it was its brevity. Kipling couldn't write a shorter, swifter ing completion and it is a good thing melodrama, barely thirty-eight minand ought to have been built; but every utes, including entre acts, and three out man in the district ought to have been of every four of those minutes panting with action such has never been devised Now, my property is not in this sewer by the dramatist of commerce. It was district. The main line of the new sewer | melodrama that played tunes up and runs out Jackson street, one block west down your vertebrae, that had you now of my property. Not a single piece of as pink as the bared actors, now erupproperty on Van Buren street was put tive with the goose-flesh of shock and in the new district although some of it surprise; and throughout its ten tense city for the last three years and whose of the good fellows. The street pense, never a balt in your demand for ing election, will not be a candidate to good time, to take care of the "high and sewer committee run up an entire the sequel. It leaped from climax to block to get to my property and singled climax curningly, ingeniously and al-

new sewer line more than a full block I ever seen such a crowd. Surely, never is the man who will pick up his job when away. I would not complain at this at Gran opera, where Eames, Sembrich, he is done with it. About the only mean Ginnis, Sherman J. Burford, Dr. C. D. Rooms No. 4 and 5, Stevens Building, Main St. Were it not for the fact that I was so De Reszke, Flankon and Scovi were in thing a fellow can say about Mayor Dim's Love and George Heffner. The boys arsingled out. The cost is very consider the bill and millions on millions in diaable. I did not need the sewer at all monds burned in the horseshoe. And I as my property stands upon high ground had thought that the grand opera audiand is well drained. Had the committee ence represented the limit of extravataken in the property of my neighbors gance. Beside this gathering in the it would have been all right. But being Mechanics' Pavilion last night an opera life. There are two things in Texas that crowd. Boat races, yacht races, foot an old-man and neither a Republican or crowd is a bargain counter bagatelle. I a Catholic, they bounced upon me and sat among men that had paid forty-fifty against my protest and over my will dollars for hard-bottomed, weak-backed they forced me into a district I did not chairs and boasted of their lucky pur-

> Most artfully modern was the ending, ten off all right. I was not able to find wieh its triumph for the villain. Mr. out who was responsible for this dirty Jeffries was the ideal villain, patient, and unreascnable piece of work. I went gloating, inevitable. The crowd-the to Clyde Huntley and he said Sheehan bit of it in which I sat-hated the villain was doing it and that he was the man to with a fervor rarely found in a cheapside see. I went to Brother Dimick, our af- playhouse. Mr. Jeffries wore make-up fable mayor, and who is my good friend, to be hated in. In Jeffries' eyes there glimmered not

Corbett sas the hero without heroics;

Only his manner-so contemporary and so gentle of balance-saved him from demigodliness. But it was hard to realize shat he had once been a circuit monologuist. His humer was finer than that, He smiled as the youngest officer smiles when he goes on the forlornest hope. He boxed in epigrams. Always there was wit in the reply of his lean whit? arm, and always there was hope in his eourageous hope, although it was founded in your fear for him. Yet he never elicited mere "under-dog" sympathy. He was, indeed, never the under dog-that is, never till the last of the last scene, when he doubled an I fell and doubled and fell again under the ram of the bison. No; he had your hope stronger than your judgment. He made the inevitable unbelievable. It would be, you thought, the conventional ending of the conventional melodrama, with the hero high and the bad one low. At any second the hero would shoot out the long arm of coincidence and finish it all in the good old-fashioned way. That would be in keeping with his "aside" to the spectators: 'I'm a pretty hard old guy to knock out, am't I?"

The line was colloquial, but sincere, and won applause, if not victory. I did not know that there was so much applause in the world as was lavished on the more fortunate adventures of Corbett, sye, on his very defeat. And I can

Dog Days.

Political Prognostications, and Information About things of Which We Know Nothing:

Few Impossibilities, and Other Things That Will Probably Not Happen.

With the temperature up in the nineties, with everybody out of town, even the printer's devil, excepting the editor, who must furnish copy and other things to his readers, we are prone to moralize. News is very "scace" this week. Noth ing much doing. No fights, no "blud" flowing, everybody gone who can get an election in Oregon City for Mayor. succeed himself. He has his eye on sevthat is about the meanest thing you can say about anybody, we have known fray quite a number of good fellows nowever who have made that fatal mistake in voting the Republican ticket.

Madame rumor on her round has told man Koerner also has political ambitions ell would not object to the job. That is a pretty good bunch of fellows from which to pick, They are all members of the "common council" Inasmuch as there paper.

"Sees through a glass darkly" is why was $50.00 in gold. isn't Clyde Huntley a candidate for mayor? There are good fellows the world over and the "righter" has seen some of Republican party. He would make an would then obey the Republican maxim, thing. Y u can "jest" leave things road." laying an und loose.

It is also rumored that Charles Albright, one of Oregon City's popular meat merchants, will likely be in the race for Mayor. Mr. Albright has not yet announced his intentions but may do so at any time. Politics is somewhat catching in Oregon City just at present.

By the way there is also a rumor afloat that Mr. Ed. Jack who made the race for sheriff on the Ortizens ticket last year and was defeated by Sheriff John R. Shaver, may seek the nomination upon the Democratic tickel next year and try conclusions with Mr. Shaver again. Mr. Jack is deservedly popular, and while Sheriff Shaver is not an easy man to handle Mr. Jack would make a good showing. However, the June election is nine months off, so it is idle to moralize over the matter.

Hon, Harver Cross, C. H. Dye, George Harding, Mr. W. A. Huntley and all of the other gentlamen who were connected with the management of the Chautauqua this year are entitled to a vote of thanks from the promoters of the Lewis and Clark Fair, for bringing out to this coast Hon. Champ Clark, and the Honorable Senator J. P. Doliver, both of whom pledged their support to a large appropriation by the Federal Congress to aid the Fair. Each of them indicated that they would be willing to give it as much as $1,000,000. No two men in the Congress of the United States have more influence than these two distinguished citizens, one a democrat and the other a Republican one of them a member of the House The Baseball club of the Barclay High school will journey to Canby on next What they have promised will no doubt be done.
