Weidner-Steiner Nuptials.

A pretty wedding was solemnized Thursday August 20th., when Elizabeth Weidner was united in marriage to Frederick Steiner. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Jacob Weidner in the presence of a large number of friends by Rev. Essig, pastor of the German Congregational church of Beaver Creek. The bride's maid was Miss Louise Steiner sister of the groom. Fred Holzman of Canby acted as best man. The bride was arrayed in a gown of dove colored silk elaborately trimmed with white satin, and carried a shower bouquet of beautiful white rose buds.

The room was decorated with roses and sweet peas. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding dinner was served. In the evening the young friends of the bride and groom gathered there and made things interesting in the usual way.

Mr. Steiner having introduced his bride to the company invited them in to partake of the refreshments prepared in anticipation of their coming. It is hardly necessary to add that the evening was delightfully spent and the company at their departure wished the young couple happiness in their new life.

Keen Competition.

There will be keen competition between the different counties in this state, making county exhibits at the state fair this fall. There will be no less than eight counties competing for the different prizes, which will make the greatest show of agricultural and horticultural products ever seen in this state. Most of these exhibits will be taken to St. Louis in 1904 to advertise Oregon's resources, and we predict that Oregon will have the finest display she has ever made at any exposition.

Dragging Pains

2825 Keeley St., CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 2, 1902.
I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Maud Bush

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

New Trusts.

Notwithstanding the decision of Judge Amos M. Thayer of the United States circuit court of appeals in the railroad merger cases, which many overcredulous people thought settled the trust question, the trusts, like John Brown's soul, go forever marching on. Indeed, new ones are constantly forming. The following dispatch, published in the Oregon Daily Journal of Portland, Ore., shows that something is doing among the trusts on the Pacific coast:

San Francisco, July 25.—A colossal deal which is of the greatest importance to the Pacific coast in general and of the northwest in particular is announced today.

At last a gigantic deal has been consummated by Frederick Weyerhaeuser, E. H. Harriman, T. B. Walker and Jacob Blodgett, who have joined forces with James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, and through this combination these persons will practically control the entire production of coast lumber.

E. W. Eberlin, their agent, took the government figures for all timber now standing on the Pacific slope and bought through agents until now these five men with minor associates hold the vast western lumber market in their hands. Weyerhaeuser was the means of getting Harriman and Hill together on the deal.

E. H. Harriman's lands go into the combine with the provision to protect the company's creditors which are pledged as Southern Pacific creditors.

The following dispatch, from the Evening Telegram of Portland, Ore., tells of the formation of still another gigantic trust in still another necessary of life:

San Francisco, July 24.—Another step in the formation of a trust to control the coal supply on this coast was taken yesterday when the Western Fuel company was appointed wholesale distributor for the Beaver-Hill coal company. This means that the Western Fuel company now controls the output of the Beaver-Hill mines in Oregon and that the retailer will henceforth be compelled to pay for the coal such prices as the Western Fuel company may dictate.

The Western Fuel company now is a merger of four different companies. It was formed six months ago, when three local coal companies pooled their interests and issued stock. The companies which combined were the John Rosendorf & Sons company, G. C. Wilson & Co. and John L. Howard, and the mines controlled by the company were those owned by the Rosendorfs at Nainaimo. The Beaver-Hill Coal company owns mines near Coos Bay, Ore. John D. Spreckels is the president of the company and W. G. Stafford has been the distributing agent in this city. The company operates the steamer Casarina, and the bunkers are located at Howard street wharf No. 2.

ASCENT OF MT. JEFFERSON.

Remarkable Feat of Mountain Climbing by S. S. Mohler.

On the ninth day of August S. S. Mohler of this city performed a most remarkable feat of mountain climbing. In the morning at seven o'clock he left his camp at the snowbanks near the foot of the mountain. He was in his shirt sleeves and wore a pair of light tennis shoes, and carried a nine-foot pole on which to unfurl a flag when he reached the top. For six hours he climbed, the four de force being the scaling of the pinnacle, about 500 feet in height and so steep that snow will not stick to it, the pitch of the same being about 70 degrees.

In fact, the awful climb differed but little from mounting the roof of a colossal skyscraper. And indeed colossal is this Mount Jefferson skyscraper. When he reached the crest of the pinnacle, Mr. Mohler straddled it and looked over on the other side, expecting to look down into the gigantic cavity of a dead crater. He saw only the steep mountain flank on the other side. Southward he counted eight snowpeaks and northward six. The panorama of eastern and western Oregon lay before him. For the want of a patriotic emblem more appropriate, he unfurled one of Charles Howard's flour sacks to the thin air, and began the painful descent, as full of toil and peril as the ascent.

The snow and ice covering the bulk of Mt. Jefferson is cut up by deep crevasse running in every direction and sliding down is entirely out of the question. Immense, yawning, ice caves, some many acres in extent, emit steam, being a reminder of the latent volcanic forces which threw out the lava of a dirty red color of which a large part of the mountain is composed and which lies scattered in every direction for miles. The only evidence that a human foot had ever preceded his on the lofty perch which he reached, if it really was one, was two half finished flat arrow heads.

If Mt. Jefferson were formed of solid material, climbing it would be far less dangerous and difficult. As it is, the foot slides and slips on the loose pieces of rock scattered everywhere, in some places many feet deep on top of the snow, and daily large quantities of them rattle down to the base of the mountain. It is up to the boldest of the Mazamas to follow Sidney Mohler up Mt. Jefferson, to replace his flag with a sack from another brand of flour.

About T. Lipton.

About T. Lipton (may his tribe increase!) Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace And saw an angel with a fountain pen Scribbling upon a sheet of foolscap.

Then, Regaining his composure, Tom sat up And asked the angelic one to have a cup Of his best tea. The angel shook his head:

"I'm on the water wagon now," he said About T. Lipton waved his hand; "I see, But, by the way, what writest thou?" said he.

The heavenly vision answered, "Well, I write Here on this little sheet, in black and white, The man whose boat will get the needed piece— The winner in the coming yacht race." The gallant Lipton brightened up.

"Pray tell," He queried, "does the name begin with L?"

"I'm sorry," said his guest. "It is a shame. But as things stand, I cannot write your name."

T. Lipton made reply, "Would I were it, But put me down as one who never quit!"

The angel wrote and vanished. The next night He called on Tom again, but not to write.

Said he, "I have on this large, handsome chart (A fine example of the engraver's art, The names of some true sportsmen—just the best," And lo, T. Lipton's name led all the rest."
