James Groshong, of Marquam, called at the COURIER office Saturday. He states that plans for the annual fair at Marquam will be made in the course of a few weeks. This fair is an institution in which all Clackamas county should be interested, and it is hoped that the exhibits and attendance this year will surpass all previous records.

Troubles with the census taker and a number of other minor troubles have all been placed in the extreme rear and this is how the Seattle Times feels about its latest burden: "To be beaten in the opening game before a crowd of 6000 friendly spectators was had enough but to be beaten by the tailenders was more than the most loyal fan could bear.

The case of the will of Lars Anderson, which has been disputed by relatives of the deceased, will be treated before the county court next Tuesday, that date having been set on Monday. The deceased left a will in favor of a nephew, and other nephews will claim that undue influence sufficient to constitute fraud was used in securing the signature of Anderson to the document.

In the last few days there has been a slight falling off in the number of home-seekers coming to Oregon City, but there have been a number of inquiries concerning timber lands. There is no question that taking up the best of the government lands yet remaining will prove profitable to those so situated that they can comply with the requirements of law.

John T. Myers, the postmaster at Dodge, this county, has sent to this city some specimens of excellent winter apples which are raised in his neighborhood. The specimens are Baldwins, and in excellent condition. That section of the foothills is capable of producing excellent apples which keep until the following June. And this without any spraying for moths or other insects, as they are unknown there.

Disappointment is felt here by a number of young men over the failure to pass of the Alaska Fisheries Bill as there seemed to be an opportunity for profitable employment for them in the propagation of Alaska salmon. There are many young men who are giving the best part of their lives to this branch of Uncle Sam's service at a comparatively low salary.

A prominent dairyman of the Needy section informs us that the high price paid by a Portland firm for butter fat and the consequent high price of butter has had an injurious effect on the present price. While butter fat was at the top price shipments came in from California which could be sold at a lower price. The large Portland firm could stand such adversity for a time but it made matters difficult for country creameries.

Work was commenced Monday by Assessor Nelson in re-assessing the property in the corporate limits of Oregon City. This work is done in order to equalize the assessment and to include the new buildings and the new stocks of goods which have been added since the last assessment. Here will be practically no change in the prevailing assessment, except in some cases where the equalizing demands a slight rise or lowering in values.

What promised to be an exciting run-away occurred Saturday morning near the Southern Pacific depot. An express team frightened a locomotive started down Seventh street in a manner that made pedestrians seek cover. As the team tried to make the turn to go up Main street the wagon came in contact with the curb which enabled the driver to gain time enough to get into the wagon and bring the frightened horses to a standstill.

Some of our citizens have been thinking of investing in lemon farms in the San Diego country but investigation shows that while lemons grow very nicely in that section, the quality is not considered the best. The Portland brokers have difficulty in working off consignments of that stock. It seems

The Best Paint at the Price of the Cheapest

For Many years we have been making a study of the paint business until now we believe we are in a position to give the average paint buyer good advice. If there was one kind of paint better than another for economy and durability we wanted to sell it. That is natural, because paint is only one of many things we have to sell and if we have the BEST paint our customers are likely to give us credit for having the best drugs. Therefore, when we did finally consent to take the agency of the Sherwin-Williams Paint, it was because we had gone into the paint business carefully, weighed the matter thoroughly, and found there was nothing on the market, anywhere, quite equal to Sherwin-Williams Paint. We might have had any of the so called high grade paints, but while they were as high in price none of them were so high in quality or covering capacity as the Sherwin-Williams Paint. Before you buy your material come in and let us talk it over with you. There is many a trick in the paint business; if you come to us we may be able to help you avoid some of them.

ered with snow. In some localities the ground is so rough and brush-covered that the crew will be obliged to pack their blankets all day on the line, and the cook and his helper will have to carry the camp outfit from place to place on their backs. With the addition of storms of chilling rain, that sort of life is very strenuous.

Among the recent arrivals in this city is W. H. Savage of Cheboygan, Mich. Mr. Savage came here to escape the severe weather which is so common in the northern part of Michigan. Two weeks ago the thermometer was one degree above zero for three mornings in succession in Mr. Savage's home town. He has been assured that it rains all the time here, but nevertheless he is delighted with the prospect of drowning instead of freezing to death.

On Saturday evening of last week Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Nash entertained a number of young people at their home in Gladstone in honor of Miss Esther and Clark Devereaux, niece and nephew of Mrs. Nash, who are visiting here at present. Contests and games including flinch made the evening a merry one. First prizes were awarded Esther Devereaux and Percv Gausfield, and the consolation prizes Misses Louva Randall and Inez Adair. Dainty refreshments were served and a few numbers on the phonograph closed a most enjoyable evening.

On Monday evening, H. H. Johnson and Bert Stricklin left for Idaho to make a beginning on a surveying contract which will require seven months. The land to be surveyed lies in the mountains which are as yet more or less cov-
