Mr. Zeigler of Barlow, had a narrow escape Tuesday from a terrible death. He was peeling chitem trees in his pasture when a vicious hog belonging to himself rushed upon him and gashed him with his long tusks. The man was no match for the savage animal but a faithful bull dog immediately engaged in the conflict and finally succeeded in driving his master's assailant away. The loss of blood proved almost fatal to Mr. Zeigler before aid could be secured.

W. J. Lawson, formerly in the employ of G. Rosenstein as clerk, faced Justice Stipp Tuesday to answer a complaint charging him with petty larceny. He was found guilty, but sentence was suspended and the stolen goods returned. Lawson is alleged to have stolen a suit of clothes and other goods from the store of Mr. Rosenstein. His defense was that he had bought the articles he was accused of stealing from other parties. As there was a reasonable doubt as to the guilt of the defendant, it was thought best to recover the goods and suspend sentence.

DUODECIMALISMS.

In Theory the Number 12 is a Better Unit Than 10.

Herbert Spencer was ever opposed to the metric system. He was no such fool as to call the present British reckoning in pounds, shillings and pence satisfactory. His point was that the number 12 was a better unit than 10. Twelve is twice divisible where 10 is only once divisible. One-quarter of 10 is 2 1/2, not an integral number. There are other reasons, based upon the observed workings of the human mind, all tending to show that to reckon in dozens is more natural than to reckon in tens as soon as man grows beyond the finger counting stage.

In scientific duodecimalism new characters would have to be designed for 10 and 11, while 12 itself would be written 10. The number now called 144 would be written as 100, and 1,728 would be 1,000. The present number 100 would be 84. In the course of a hundred years or so, when people had got used to it, the duodecimal system would be just as convenient as the decimal. Twelve inches would make a foot, twelve feet a rod, and so on.

In theory duodecimalism is sound. But it is not an easy thing to change a people's standards of money, weights and measures.—New York World.

WASHINGTON'S METHODS.

The Way the Father of His Country Conducted Receptions.

Presidential receptions at the White House nowadays are vastly different from those given by the Father of His Country when he was at the head of the government. Philadelphia was then the scene. The president rented a house at Sixth and Market streets for $3,000 a year and dressed himself much more elaborately than he had for similar occasions in New York.

On the occasion of a presidential reception a chosen few were admitted and formed a circle around the reception room. Then the president made the round, favoring each with a formal bow and a few words. Then he returned to his position before the fireplace, and they in turn were conducted to him, bowed and retired.

There was no handshaking, his hands "being so bestowed as to indicate that the salutation was not to be accompanied with shaking hands." At these levees our first president shone, too, in the matter of dress. Washington is described as resplendent in black velvet, silver knee and shoe buckles, long black silk stockings, his powdered hair tied in a silk bag or cue behind. He wore yellow gloves and held a cocked hat in his hand.—Exchange.

Out of Tune.

A piano tuner employed by a city firm was sent to a certain suburb to tune a piano. He found the instrument in good condition and not in the least need of attention.

A few days later the firm received a letter from the owner of the piano, a lady of musical intention, stating that the piano had not been properly tuned. It was no better than before.

After receiving a reprimand from his employer the hapless tuner made another trip to the suburbs and again tested every note, only to find, as before, no fault with the instrument. This time he told the lady so.

"Yes," she said, "it does seem all right, doesn't it, when you play on it, but as soon as I begin to sing it gets all out of tune again."

Letter From Dr. E.S. Bollinger.

Oregon City, Ore., June 1, 1903.

Editor Courier:—Some weeks ago an article ascribed to Bishop Hall of Vermont appeared in your paper, warning your readers against the perils of local option. After reading the same my curiosity was aroused to know more of Bishop Hall and the situation of the liquor problem in Vermont. Consequently I wrote to one of the leading clergymen of Burlington, the Bishop's resident city, enclosing the clipping from the "Courier."

From the reply I have learned that Bishop Hall is a genuine Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and that he expressed, in a general way, the prevailing sentiment of Vermont, for the state voted in a referendum vote in February, 1903, with a small majority, to substitute a local option law for the prohibition law. You will notice that the Bishop's sentiments were expressed in favor of local option. And now the amusing part of it all is that a gun that was reverberating in favor of local option in the valleys of the Green mountains is made to reverberate among the hills of Clackamas county and the state of Oregon against local option. How things do change in traveling across the continent!

Furthermore, I have learned that a large number of the voters of Vermont are French Canadians, and that it is not believed that Bishop Hall voiced the sentiments of the intelligent American stock on the issue between prohibition and local option. My informant also says of the situation in Burlington, the largest city of the state, now having saloons under local option, "Local finances have altered for the worse, the trade has been hurt. Men protected from temptation before have fallen, and people grow callous to a grave, social and moral, and economic evil." Very Respectfully, E. S. BOLLINGER.

That Tired Feeling.

If you are languid, depressed and incapable for work, it indicates that your liver is out of order. Herbine will assist nature to throw off headaches, rheumatism and ailments akin to nervousness and restore the energies and vitality of sound and perfect health. J. J. Hubbard, Temple, Texas, writes, March 22, 1902: "I have used Herbine for the past two years. It has done me more good than all the doctors. When I feel bad and have that tired feeling, I take a dose of Herbine. It is the best medicine ever made for chills and fever." 50 cents a bottle. Sold by Charman & Co.

A CONTINUAL STRAIN.

Many men and women are constantly subjected to what they commonly term "a continual strain" because of some financial or family trouble. It wears and distresses them both mentally and physically, affecting their nerves badly and bringing on liver and kidney ailments, with the attendant evils of constipation, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, low vitality and despondency. They cannot, as a rule, get rid of this "continual strain," but they can remedy its health-destroying effects by taking frequent doses of Green's August Flower. It tones up the liver, stimulates the kidneys, insures healthy bodily functions, gives vim and spirit to one's whole being and eventually dispels the physical or mental distress caused by that "continual strain." Trial bottle of August Flower, 25 cents; regular size, 75 cents. At Charman & Co's.
