The directors of the Willamette Valley Chautauqua Association met Wednesday afternoon and audited bills presented to the association from the season just closed. More bills are to come in, so the officers cannot yet say how much money they will make from the assembly the middle of this month. The gross receipts were $5005, and they estimate that 25,000 people attended during the season. They decided to have the grandstand shingled, and expect to erect another grandstand of the same dimensions as the present one, as the present one is inadequate for the accommodations at present. It is expected also that they will paint the roof of the main auditorium. There is some talk of extending the season next year, but the only feasible plan which the directors favor is the holding of a summer school two weeks prior to the opening of the Chautauqua proper. Teachers can camp on the grounds and there prepare for their fall examinations. In the evenings a popular programme would be arranged.

The death of James M. Welch in Stockton, Cal., was announced here this week. Mr. Welch died Tuesday. He was formerly a resident of this city, of which he was at one time mayor. He was 60 years old when he died.

At the wind-up of the Spiritist camp meeting at New Era the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Green Love, of Portland, president; B. F. Asherton, of Portland, vice-president; John Burgoyne, of New Era, treasurer; Mrs. Fred Meindl, of Oregon City, secretary; George Lazelle, of Oregon City, corresponding secretary. At a special meeting of the city council Tuesday night, the ordinance providing for the improvement of Center street one block further south was read the second time and passed. The City Engineer was instructed to prepare plans for the improvement of Third Street from Main to Railroad Avenue. An estimate of the cost of improvement will be made. The recorder was instructed to ask for bids for 500 yards or more of crushed rock for the improvement of Molalla Ave. The recorder was instructed to present a bill to the city water commission of $4.50 for protecting a water main on Center street. The third estimate by the city engineer as to the amount due the contractor for the Center street improvement was found to be $1276.17, and a warrant for that amount was ordered drawn on the proper funds.

Work on the new oil tanks and pulp mill now being erected by the Willamette Pulp & Paper Company is being pushed. The pneumatic riveter at work on the tanks, can be heard all over town. Instead of concrete tanks to hold the crude oil, the Willamette Company is erecting receptacles of steel. Standing on a concrete foundation 15 feet high, they are themselves 30 feet in the air. When finished, their capacity will be 30,000 gallons of crude oil. About 350 men are at work on the pulp mill building. Five derricks are kept at work lifting rock, concrete and sand. A tiny trolley car, propelled by electricity, runs out on an improvised track, and dumps the concrete into the forms built to give it its permanent shape. This mill when completed will mean a larger payroll for Oregon City and will materially increase the already large output of manufacturing products here.

Ferdinand Repke arrived the first of the week from the Polish provinces of Russia, and will make his home with his brother, Edward, at Elwood. He speaks no English, and made the long journey across the continent alone in safety. He tells of the difficulty in getting away from Russia at this time, as the authorities wish to retain all their able bodied men to enlist if necessary in the army. His passport away from the country cost him $30, and he was advised not to come by the Russian authorities who told him that the Americans were starving to death because of a famine in this country. A party of Russians had planned to come at the same time as he did, but because of the stories the Russians told of the hardships they would encounter in the United States, they were persuaded to stay. Repke was surprised that he was allowed to go and come as he pleased in this country, as in Russia one must first obtain passports before he can leave his village, and then he is constantly watched by the officials. He is greatly in love with this country already.

PAINTING THE ROOF

Many people put off painting their roofs until they are covered with moss, thinking no doubt, they are practicing economy when really they are permitting a good roof to go to pieces for the want of a few dollars worth of paint.

From our experience we are satisfied there is no paint quite so good for roof as Sherwin & Williams Creosote Paint. but on account of the price ($1.25 per gallon) many people think they cannot afford it; and for those people who want something that will wear well, at a low price we have secured the famous Trinidad Roof Paint. It is a brilliant black, is equally good for tin, iron or wood, will fill cracks and prevent leaks. One gallon will cover about 300 square feet of tin, iron or smooth wood. We are making a special price of 80 cents per gallon to introduce this paint.

Warner Grange.

Warner Grange celebrated Independence Day on Saturday by the rendering of an appropriate program. The worthy master, Mr. France, read the Declaration of Independence, and Mr. McArthur read the story of the series of events that led up to its promulgation. Miss Bettie France also read a selection appropriate to the occasion and Miss Irwin, of Barlow Grange, who evidently loves music, sang several solos to organ accompaniment.

The Grange ordered the purchase of 24 new badges.

The master appointed Sisters Bettie France, Blanchard and Dix, the Messrs. Frederick, Laskie and Dix, committee on collecting exhibit for the session of the National Grange at Portland.

The matter was brought up that there will be a rash among the Patrons for the seventh degree, conferred only by the National Grange.

HARD TO UNDERSTAND.

The Cabman's Vocabulary Was Puzzling to the Stranger.

He was a scholarly looking Englishman, with the abstracted appearance of a student about him, and he wanted to take a ride to a suburban locality and back. "What will be your charge?" he asked the cabman.

"Two plunks," replied cabby.

"Two what?"

"Plunks—bones—cases. Ain't you on?"

"On?" echoed the other in bewilderment. "Not until I know how much it is to cost me for the trip. That is what I am asking you."

"That's what I'm tellin' you. Two daddies. See?"

"I beg pardon. That is equally mystifying. Either I have failed to make you understand me or I am singularly deficient in apprehending the vocabulary of commerce. May I ask you to make one more effort to tell me what my fare will be for the proposed trip?"

"Told you five or six times. Two bucks; two cart wheels."

A light seemed to dawn upon the befogged mind of the scholarly person.

"Could you," he said, "by any possibility mean $2?"

"Sure. That's what I've been tellin' you all along, but you don't seem to understand English."

A few moments later one might have seen a cab making its way toward the suburbs. On the driver's seat was a brisk looking personage with his "plunk" hat tilted back on his head, and on the inside was a passenger who was industriously jotting down something in his notebook.—Youth's Companion.
