"GRAND STAND" METHODS.

Three months ago the Courier, in the issue of July 26, expressed its opinion of the natural result of the Administration's "grand stand" methods.

Readers who passed that editorial up as an unwarranted alarm will be more disposed, after the developments of the last three months, to give it a second thought.

Following this issue of July 26, the Courier received a number of letters decrying any criticism of the assaults that were being made on the large financial interests. To quote from the much-objected-to editorial: "No other government on earth, either now or ever, has been engaged in such a deadly and destructive warfare upon National business credit and security values. The large aggregations of wealth really represent the savings of the middle as well as the wealthy class. Through the management of great financiers these savings go to the development of the natural resources of the country. Labor, well-paid, lives and dresses well and the products of the soil and of the factory find a ready sale at high prices. This explains the present era of universal prosperity in the United States."

"The relentless assault that is being made by the Government on the representatives of the accumulated wealth of the country will render it impossible for them to make the money at their command pay a substantial interest rate. This, coupled with a feeling of insecurity and uncertainty regarding the outcome of present disturbances, will cause fortunes, great and small, and the savings of smaller property holders, to be hoarded. Then development of natural resources must cease. Labor must come idle. The markets for the products of the soil and of the factory will be greatly decreased and we will reap the harvest of an insane agitation against the large financial concerns."

We have not yet experienced the evil days that this mad policy threatens. We hope they may not come upon us. But unless the malignant Rockefeller, the hated Morgan, the vilified Harriman and their associates succeed in stemming the tide of disaster that threatens to sweep over the whole country, and in the vortex of which they have thrown their millions, we will experience the natural result of the governmental machinery of a great country being turned against its financial institutions.

No, to be sure this is not popular. Nothing is popular but to hurray Roosevelt and damn Harriman. But what idol of the hour that did not become the most despised of men on the morrow. Politicians should get in the "band wagon"—there will be ample time to get out as the Roosevelt star begins to wobble. Sure! Politicians will be found in the "band wagon."

But the Sovereign People—what will it say to the coterie at the head of our Nation that has donated the garb and stolen the thunder of the common agitator. That has hurrayed Hearst and damn Bryan, and that has left conservative Bryan pondering over the doctrines of ancient history. Will this Sovereign People fall in with the political game that is the other fellow's game? Does not the most worshipful dealer play with marked cards?

When the wheels of the factories cease to turn and the railroads discontinue their extensions it is not the Morgans and the Rockefellers that go hungry to bed. After all it is so very important whether we pay 15 cents or 14 cents a gallon for oil? Couldn't we manage to pay even the higher price if conditions could be permitted to remain as they are? How blind we have been to applaud the policy that now threatens our undoing.

OREGON APPLES.

Farmers are bringing into Oregon City hundreds of boxes of apples. Most of them are suitable for table use if eaten within a few days. A few of them are free from bluish and will keep a good while in the winter. But the greater part of this crop here is the product of old, little cared for orchards and is not a desirable fruit.

The farmers complain that there is no market here for their apples and that after hauling them to town they must practically give them away. What is the cause of this condition and what the remedy? Would really choice apples find a market here?

To the latter query the answer must be no. A mining property may be very rich but unless located in an established mining district it will sell as readily as an ordinary prospect situated in a developed mining region. So of fruit. It is idle to suppose that there will be a local demand for the fruit produced in a state, the whole western portion of which is especially adapted to fruit raising. The market must be found in densely populated districts that can not be supplied from the surrounding territory. Buyers are looking for fruit to supply those places. But when they come to Oregon they go to such well-known fruit districts as Rogue River Valley or Hood River. They pay $3 a box for Spitzenbergs that we must sell for $1.

Clackamas County is capable of producing five times as many choice apples as Wasco County. But Hood River is known the world over for her apples and strawberries. That locality has done two things. It has first produced hundreds of acres of the finest fruit that can be found in any locality of equal area. In the second, then it has made this fact known to the whole world. In other words it has worked on the fundamental principle that there must be a selling industry coupled with a fruit growing industry. Rogue River followed the same plan.

Individual effort will not make a fruit section of Clackamas County. There must be unity of action among organized growers.

If ten enterprising, progressive farmers of Eastern Clackamas County would each set out 20 acres in apples of choice varieties in one locality the foundation would be laid for a great fruit district that would rival Hood River or Rogue River. But setting out such orchards would be half the battle. They must be cultivated and cared for with increasing diligence. The first fruit must be of the highest quality and such as might not be expected to come up to a very high standard should be fed to the hogs. Successful fruit districts have their inferior product but it is kept off the market. And the marketing of the first produced must be preceded by a first planned campaign of publicity. Agricultural and horticultural publications shall be full of the wonders of the Clackamas County apple lands. Every box of apples put out for the first year should create a market for a hundred boxes the next year. For the fruit is grown in the locality in which the fruit is stamped on each box.

It's lots of trouble to be sure. Unceasing effort is the price of success, however, and we should either make the proper effort or else accept failure as a matter of course and the natural result of nonprogressive methods.

There is no need for our farmers to indulge this bitter feeling over the absence of satisfactory markets. Large producers, successful manufacturers, all great business enterprises that have had an output to market have had to create their market. The time spent in brooding and grumbling can be utilized to great advantage in an intelligent effort to improve the conditions complained of.

GOSSIP AS A LEAD TO DIVORCE.

Laying aside the question of right and wrong and granting simply that divorce is an institution of more or less prominence in our day and generation, let us consider for a moment a cause in a direction usually overlooked.

The grounds given with sickening regularity in the newspaper reports of the complaints for divorce and with more or less frankness in the complaints themselves contain the monotonous round of cruelty, expressed in many and varied forms, of incompatibility of temper and of desertion.

These three classes of trouble, with the endless changes rung upon them, make up the grounds with which we are all tolerably familiar.

There is another, however, and a far more fundamental reason for divorce that seems to us to underlie the common familiar causes and to be, as it were, a background and a basic principle of all of them.

This is the middle-class interference and careless discussion commonly known by the term "gossip."

We are not speaking of the malicious gossip of the tabloid, done with the intent to commit mischief. That, it seems to us, is not so bad, for it can be met and combated for what it is.

There is another kind of gossip, however, which does more harm in the world than any amount of malicious slander. That is the careless, thoughtless discussion of a neighbor's affairs, often harmless in its intent, but productive of incalculable harm. This has broken up more homes and caused more business for the divorce court than almost any amount of the cruelty in its varied forms, charged in the complaints.

By reason of the fact that this gossip is idle and often told with the desire to "make talk" by those whose empty heads can produce nothing better or more worth while in the way of conversation, it is more likely to spread and gain in the telling than a malicious slander which can be choked off before it has done irreparable damage.

We firmly believe we are not exaggerating when we say that we would rather have a deliberate and malicious falsehood told about us than have our affairs and our doings talked over and commented upon in the course of the idle chatter that too often passes for conversation.

As to how this can be called a cause of divorce seems obvious. It is known how a tale will gain in the telling, and no matter how harmless a bit of gossip may be at the start, before it has gone a great way some of the "they say's" are quite apt to have found their way into the ears of the neighbors. The neighbors who keep a watch to see what the people on the other side of them are saying and doing are only too glad of the chance to pick up a piece of "news" that they can retail and thus start on its way a story that grows until by the time it reaches the ears of those who hear the innocent cause it is magnified until there is little semblance to the original happening. If family relations are a little strained, this may be all that is needed to bring about an open rupture, and the divorce court is the result.

If it were in the power of man to frame laws regulating the speech of a community, no penalty could be too severe for those who gossip.

A Pennsylvania doctor writes an account of a brain he has just dissected that was the smallest ever recorded. But as the man it belonged to is dead, he will not be able to get back with any mean remark about good things and small packages.

This objection of the powers to our sending the battleship squadron to the Pacific sounds a good deal like the neighbors raising a kick because a man wanted to clean a shotgun in his own backyard.

A Texas man has just left $100,000 to the woman who nursed him in his last illness. This probably was a testimonial of gratitude for her not keeping him alive and marrying him.

This proposal to give the Philippines to the United States sounds like a thingy voted through to one of the other of them, we scarcely know which.

CHURCH DRAWS PEOPLE.

Rev. John M. Linden Will Talk on "Swearing" Next Sunday Night.

The improvements recently completed on the First Baptist Church building and the series of sermons on the Ten Commandments by the pastor, Rev. John M. Linden, are proving attractive. The subject at last Sunday night's service was "Idol Worship Forbidden," and Mr. Linden pointed out the modern idols that were unconsciously, sometimes unwittingly, worshipped. The church was packed with people, and the pastor announced that the subject for next Sunday night by saying:

"If you hear any man swear on the street this week, ask him to come to church next Sunday night to hear the sermon on the third commandment discussed, 'Why Use the Holy Name to Swear With?'"

An attractive feature of all of the services hereafter will be the volunteer chorists, which will sing all the late and popular hymns.

Goodfellowship Meeting.

The members of the First Presbyterian Church held a "Good Fellowship and Acquaintance" meeting Friday, with the object of bringing the congregation closer together and present and receive suggestions along the line of church work. At 3 o'clock the work of the Ladies Aid Society was taken up, and afterwards the work of the missionary societies. Sabbath school matters occupied the attention of the meeting until late in the afternoon, when a bountiful supper was served by the women of the church, and 120 people participated in the toothsome menu. In the evening there was a literary program and a discussion of the young people's work and the music of the choir. Miss Ellen Brobst and Miss Florence Price rendered vocal numbers, and there were recitations by Miss Gussie Humphrey and Violet Beaulieu. Frank Aldridge also rendered a vocal solo.

ROOSEVELT CALLS A HALT.

Tells Senator Bourne Third Term Boom Must Cease.

An interesting development of the day at the White House, says a Washington dispatch, will make the third term boomers a little cautious.

There is excellent authority for the statement that the President has informed Mr. Bourne that his persistent third term propaganda is not receiving hearty endorsement at the White House. Senator Bourne has been a frequent caller at the White House and on leaving has always given out an interview reiterating in one form or another his opinion that the President must be nominated whether he gives his consent or not.

The President has gone so far as to inform Senator Bourne that he will be better pleased with his friendship if he will discontinue his propaganda.

ACTRESS MAKES A HIT.

Mrs. Lena Nelson Lawrence Appears in Her Home Town.

One of the largest houses that greeted any company at the Shively was Friday night, when "The Denver Express" was presented by a strong company, standing room was only to be had to those who had not purchased tickets early. Mrs. Lena Nelson Lawrence, daughter of County Assessor and Mrs. A. Nelson, of this city, and formerly of Oregon City, had one of the leading parts, "Mrs. Annesly Hobart, a social mystery." Mrs. Lawrence's acting was excellent, and was presented with beautiful floral offerings by her friends, who had come to see Mrs. Lawrence's first appearance before an audience in her home town.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Mrs. Charman Sues Executors.

Mrs. Lena Charman has brought suit against George H. Wishart, C. H. Canfield, and T. L. Charman, executors of the estate of the late Elmer E. Charman, husband of the plaintiff, to foreclose a mortgage on a lot 80x120 feet on the corner of Main and Ninth streets. On June 10, 1890, she loaned E. E. Charman $3000, taking his promissory note and a mortgage on the lot, on which there is a house. Mrs. Charman claimed and allowed the property for a residence and was permitted to live there by order of the County Court. She asks that the property be sold and the proceeds be devoted towards the payment of the note, and for $500 attorney's fees.

Gymnastic apparatus is being placed in the Armory and the hall will be used as a recreation place for the members of the company.

He Fought at Gettysburg.

David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., who lost a foot at Gettysburg, writes: "Electric Bitters have done me more good than any medicine I ever took. For several years I had stomach trouble, and paid out much money for medicine to little purpose, until I began taking Electric Bitters. I would not take $500 for what they have done for me." Grand tonic for the aged and for female weaknesses. Great alterative and body builder; best of all for indigestion and weak kidneys. Guaranteed by Howell & Jones, druggists, 50c.

Sluggish Liver Foe to Ambition.

You can not accomplish very much if your liver is inactive as you feel very dull, your eyes are heavy and slight exertion exhausts you. Orinax Liver Syrup stimulates the liver and bowels and makes you feel bright and active. Orinax Liver Syrup does not nauseate or gripe and is mild and very pleasant to take. Orinax is more effective than pills or ordinary cathartics. Refuse substitutes.

J. D. Raney, of Boring.

J. D. Raney, a woodenter, was found dead in bed at Boring Saturday morning. He was called at the usual hour, and as he did not respond an investigation was made. Raney was an old man, and had no family at Boring, but a brother lives at Gresham. Coroner Holman went to Boring and found that death was due to heart disease.

GRANDPARENTS TELL ABOUT PE-RU-NA.

Catarrh Fifteen Years.

Mrs. S. A. Rogers, LeMoore, Cal., writes:
"I had chronic catarrh of fifteen years standing, and death seemed to stare me in the face. I tried several so-called catarrh remedies, and without avail. I took fifteen bottles of Peruna and five bottles of Manalin, and I am completely cured. All the catarrh symptoms are gone, my digestion is good, my appetite is good, and I rest well at night. I am seventy years of age and I hope to live many more years to praise Peruna to all my friends who suffer from catarrh as I did."

Rheumatism of Old Age.

Mrs. Caroline Trunk, 1205 Jefferson Ave., Peoria, Ill., writes:
"I had a very painful trouble for six years, consisting of rheumatism in the back and in the thigh. I used a great deal of medicine, but it did not help me. Then I used Dr. Hartman's Peruna, and two bottles of this entirely freed me of the rheumatism. I wish to keep both Peruna and Manalin always in the house. This is the best medicine that I can recommend any one to take for rheumatism."

Catarrh All Through My System.

Mr. Robert Metters, Murdoch, Cass Co., Neb., Box 45, writes:
"I commenced to take Peruna the first of last February. I took it as nearly as possible according to directions. I also got a Peruna Almanac and for the first time learned that my trouble was systemic catarrh. I had catarrh from my head all through my system. I took Peruna until I was entirely cured."

Cough at 1 Indigestion.

Thos. Beckwith, 11 Kitchell St., Auburn, N. Y., writes:
"I was troubled with a cough and indigestion. Thanks to your advice and Peruna I am in good health now. I was talking with an old friend last week. He told me he took Peruna last winter, and he is in the best of health, working every day and speaks highly of your medicine. I shall feel it my duty to recommend Peruna to all my friends."

A great many testimonials from people of high rank and people in the ordinary walks of life, are received every month. Catarrh in all its phases, catarrh of the different organs of the body; acute catarrh, chronic catarrh, catarrh that has baffled other remedies—all these are giving to Peruna a qualified and unqualified endorsement.
