MATCH FOR ANY NAVY.

The reply of Admiral Converse to criticism of the navy's fighting effi-ciency is a temperate and comprehen-sive statement of actual conditions and an analysis of charges.

The Admiral quotes from log-books to refute the statement that the navy has had practically no battle drill The charge since the Spanish war. that the freeboard of battleships is Senator next January. Admiral Converse instances for praise the personnel of the navy, on which in the last analysis its efficiency depends; and in this, at least, the non-expert can heartily agree with him. What weaknesses our ships show they share with other navies; the perfect battleship is yet the goal of the designer. But ship for ship and gun for gun we are, he says, a match for any navy. City Enterprise.

The foregoing articles, taken from the editorial page of the Oregon City Enterprise, stand properly side by side—they are fit company for each oth-er. Inch by inch the Oregon people have crowded in on a coterie of Oregon until the popular election of a United States Senator has bepoliticians come, to all intents and purposes, an accomplished fact. The people vote for United States Senator, the Legislative candidates pledge themselves in advance to formally elect whomsoever gets the largest vote, and, by this means, without an amendment to the United States Constitution, the people, instead of the Legislature, name the Senator. The people of almost every state in the Union are making their fight against the politicians for this privilege. They have contended for it in Oregon for more than twenty years. By a peculiar combination of circumstances, they got this privilege in Oregon, and now on what pretext are we asked to relinquish the constitutional provision commonly known as Statement No. 1, that establishes a means by which the people may say who is the fit and proper person to represent them in the United States Senate? We are told that the people might elect a Democratic Senator and that a Republican Legislature, if pledged to Statement No. 1, would be under ob-ligation to ratify the selection. Does the remnant of an old, crooked polltical ring mean to say that the people of Oregon are not to be trusted with this privilege of electing a Democrat if the dominant party puts forward a man too inefficient or too corrupt to command even a respectable percentage of his party vote? This, and no other, is the logical conclusion of the

This is not a contention between the Republican and Democratic parties It is the fight of the clean element in both of these parties and in all other parties against those who are in politics for the boodle. There are those who wish to return to the old system of electing United States Senators. They yearn for the days that are no more-for the forty days of corruption. crime and debauchery that have heretofore made our Capitol a hotbed of iness and indecency. Will a same people vote for a return to suc Do we want again a Legislature bought and owned by an asconditions? pirant for the Senatorship? Is this what is sought to be accomplished in the name of Republicanism? Never fear; the people will not relinquish what it might take twenty years of heroic strife to regain. It would have been as reasonable for the people, after they had secured it, to have given up Magna Charta. Time does not turn backward in her flight; never has a step forward in the march toward popular government been retracted. There may be Repub-licans in Oregon who would deplore the election of a Democratic United States Senator-there may be those who dread the possibility of such a contingency, but they will not, on account of such fear, surrender their rare prerogative and return to the Legislature the power to elect United States Senators And Senator Fulton, who has placed himself at the head of the broken ranks of the old machine, is on the march to his Waterloo. It is not the dart from the Heney guiver he need fear. Though the famous prosecutor paint him black as night, and though events show the picture a true likeness, a greater impediment than his personal character will rise before him. He has championed the cause of those who oppose the popular election of United States Senators and in his way appears this impassible barrierthe wrath of an outraged people. The treasure we have striven for, the treasure we have already grasped he would snatch from us. Whether or not Heney's charge that Fulton is a boodler be true, it is enough that he consents to wear the Kingly crown of the boodling politicians of Oregon, it is enough that he does not stand up and renounce their plot against popular liberty-for this must he be named enemy of the people.

laud and honor they will glorify his name and place upon his head a crown of glory, and in the dim distance we can faintly see the faithful joining hands and circling round and around, while carried on the winds come the huzzas of "Long live the King de Roosevelt." Will the Republicans all fall in line and declare that they were for Roosevelt first, last and all the time? No; there will be a much divid-ed opinion as to the advisability of fostering such a strenuous policy.

The President got himself into i pretty mix-up recently when he wrote that letter to W. Dudley Foulke, of Richmond, Ind., in which he branded as "false and maticious" the charges that he had misused his authority by appointing men to office in the interest of the Taft Presidential boom. And about this time Mr. Foraker rose to a question of privilege; he produced correspondence relating to the ap-pointment of Charles S. Bryson, whose Ohio, was withheld temporarily for the alleged reason that Bryson had given an interview while in Washing-ton expressing the opinion that Taft was losing ground in the Ohlo con-test. The correspondence showed that Bryson had stood his ground, and his declaration of political independence had resulted in another order from the White House making the appointment. The communications on the subject were between Representative Douglass, of Ohio, and Mr. Bryson. In a very temperate manner Senator Foraker commented on the case, but insisted that the records clearly showed an attempt to 'coerce' Bryson, and that his fearless stand had been responsible for his retention by the President. The Senator said that it was no exaggeration to say that there are 100 cases in Ohio where the appointments had been made for where documentary evidence can be produced."

MANY AIRSHIP CRANKS. Victims of Delusions Write to Senators and Representatives.

Human delusions keep pace with human inventions. A few years ago the United States was filled with men who had delusions about the telephone. A little later disordered brains worked out theories about the phonograph. Now the airship delusion seems to be the rage, says a special Washington correspondent of the New York Post. Hardly a week passes that senators and representatives do not receive letters from harmless cranks who think they have solved the problem of aerial navigation. A few days ago a representative from Illinois received a long letter from a man in Chicago. The first part of the letter was a well written criticism of army engineers and other government officials who have been testing various devices for conquering the air. The representative read on with interest, thinking his correspondent an expert. He was about to dictate a letter of thanks

ing as follows: "If you will let me have $125,000, I will give you the finest airship ever built. I want fifteen acres all fenced There was plenty of rum and in and shops and tools for manufacturing. I will furnish airships for war, freight or passengers-from Chicago to the north pole and back in fourteen days or through the center of the earth and come out at the south pole in seventy days. My airships will carry 200 men and baggage. Let the government put up the money, and I will show you that it can be done. It is up to you whether you intend to Mechanical Stoker For Locomotives. Successful tests have been made by the Erie road of a mechanical stoker, for which it is predicted that it will revolutionize the methods of firing locomotives and effect an immense saving in fuel. With the device in use the fireman simply rakes coal into a conveyor, which deposits it on a shelf inside the fire box, from whence it is blown by steam jets to all portions of the grate, evenly distributed and superheated.
