THE WORMWOOD AND THE GALL.

That the Courier's mild statement of facts in its issue of July tenth stirred considerable bile, is evidenced by the prompt reply it brought forth in the Sunday Oregonian.

The Oregonian supported the primary law, but never approved Statement No. 1. It favored the initiative and referendum, but has expressed its disapproval of many of the methods and measures employed in use and misuse of it.

Why does the Oregonian rage at the initiative and referendum, the direct primary law and Statement No. 1? Because the editor is disappointed in the action of these laws. Evidently Mr. Scott believed what so many people feared, that these laws would make a new boss for Oregon, greater than Mitchell or Lotan, Simon or Carey, and that this new boss would be H. W. Scott, because he controlled the great Daily Oregonian.

The great Denver convention is over and the greatest hero of the platform, the ablest orator of the world, twice defeated for the presidency, the deepest and wisest thinker in public life, William J. Bryan, has for the third time received at the hands of the democrats the nomination for the greatest honor within the gift of a nation, to be its president.

Mr. Bryan has been so long before the public that to enlarge him would be time wasted, but we say that in the lapse of time since his nomination in 1900 the man has grown broader, many of his advanced ideas have been accepted by either party and our greatest men in politics and out have been putting into practice many of his teachings.

His complete control of the Denver convention and the utter routing of the attempts at class rule prove him to be the man of the hour in this country as in the two that he preceded, then accepted as the greatest political battles ever fought.

Bryan is a wonder power, his might is unmeasurable and his counsel wise. States that wish the election of their representatives through the voice of the people, or are waiting for the end of boss rule, will receive the cooperation of the chief executive, if Bryan should be successful in the candidacy.

The "Chicago to ocean" balloon race with nine entries foreshadows the day of a New York to Paris balloon speed contest. The airship, to judge from the space devoted to it in the news columns, has already made the motor car a back number in popular interest.

To have killed half a hundred and injured over eleven hundred persons as an incident to the celebration of the Fourth is proof that even in these effeminate days the nation is losing none of the old spirit of patriotism.

"Taft at Work and Play" is the subject of a newspaper article. It remains for the Denver convention to decide whether he will have a fight or a frolic.

Down on the Farm. Chicken raising is becoming so popular that our readers are always interested in notes about chicks great and small and words of advice as to their care.

The best way is to shut up all fowls for twenty-four hours before killing, and give neither "bibe nor sap." They will then be quite empty, and will kill and truss up in a very much firmer and sweeter condition than if shipped with dehydrating foods and evil smelling fluids.

Cats are just as good a food as you need for chickens, but feed them yourself, and don't let the turks wallow through the outdoors.

If there is ever a time for lazy folks to hatch chicks it is now, when the weather is favorable and nature provides so abundantly for them.

Like to hide away under a hen? Lift the roosts and give the pest a dose that will drive them out for good and all.

Fine wire netting about the yard of the little chicks will keep out rats, unless they dig under. If the do that, better get a cement floor under the enclosure.

Partly decayed meat is little better than a dose of arsenic for hens. It is surely not fit for them to eat. Limberneck is now believed to be caused by that kind of poison.

You cannot blame a hungry cat for devouring birds at nesting time and picking up a young chicken once in a while. Feed the cats extra well and they will not be apt to form these bad habits.

In setting a hen late in the season, when the weather is warm, it is well either to make the nest on the ground, or to put a sod in the bottom of it, so that there may be some degree of coolness and moisture.

The most profitable hens as a rule are not the stylish ones. This is a good time to dispose of the old stock that is not needed. During hot weather special care should be taken not to over-crowd nor over-heat.

To keep them growing, the cockerels need a little more feed than do the pullets. It isn't good for hens to roost in a draft. Locate the windows a little way from the roosts.

When the clouds look threatening it is time to look after the little turkeys that are running with the hens.

Over Thirty-Five Years. In 1872 there was a great deal of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment.

Go to the beaches, brethren; it is the hot season. Pull off your boots, roll up your trousers and wade around till you reduce that superfluous fat of intellect with which some of you appear to be overburdened.

FREE FROM FRAUD OR GUILT. Graft is surely but steadily being uprooted, yet, for indeed it had succeeded in securing very deep root in

An Honest Doctor

Advised Peruna.

Robust Health Ruined.

My robust health ruined. Exposure and dampness had ruined my once robust health. I had contracted the bronchial tubes, and for a time there was a doubt as to my recovery.

My good honest old doctor advised me to take Peruna, which I did and in a short time my health began to improve very rapidly, the bronchial trouble gradually disappeared, and in three months my health was fully restored.

"Accept a grateful man's thanks for his restoration to perfect health."
