"THE SCHOOL OF QUALITY"

Tenth and Morrison, Portland, Oregon. A. P. Armstrong, LL.B., Principal. We occupy two floors 65 by 100 feet, have a $30,000 equipment, employ a large faculty, give individual instruction, receive more calls for office help than we can meet. Our school admittedly leads all others in quality of instruction. It pays to attend such an institution. Said a Business Man: "Keep hammering away everlastingly on thorough work. It will win out in the end." Said an Educator: "The quality of instruction given in your school makes it the standard of its kind in the Northwest." Open all the year. Students admitted at any time. Catalogue free. References: Any bank, any newspaper, any business man in Portland.

Contest for Membership.

Sola Circle, No. 167, Women of Woodcraft, entertained very interestingly in Woodman Hall last Thursday evening. After the regular order of business was transacted, a musical and literary program was carried out which was followed by a social and general good time. The organization is to start a new membership contest. Captains were chosen for three sides. The contest will close about the first of November with a banquet for the winning side. This organization carried out a similar contest last year with most gratifying results and as the members are all alive and awake it is needless to say the membership will be greatly increased before the holidays.

Trafton Dye Returns to College.

Trafton Dye, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Dye, of this city, and who has been traveling in Europe since the latter part of June, returned to New York recently and will resume his course in the Columbia College. Mr. Dye in company with a college chum left New York in June and after arriving in Europe made their trip on bicycles. They visited cities along the Rhine and spent some time viewing the beautiful scenery of the Alps mountains in Switzerland, and taking in Paris seeing the sights of the French metropolis, they went to England, visiting London and other prominent cities. Mr. Dye will take up his second year's course at Columbia College this fall.

DRIED SWAMP MUCK.

Its Benefit in Chemical Fertilizers is Greatly Exaggerated. The practice of using dried muck and peat in mixing chemical fertilizers puts up a problem which farmers ought to understand. Thousands of tons of such muck are used—sold as "muck tankage." We learn of one case where a man started growing celery in a swamp and is said to have nearly failed at it. Then he conceived the idea of drying and pulverizing the soil of that swamp and selling it to fertilizer dealers. This has brought him a fortune. Some samples of this dried peat are said to contain nearly 3 per cent of nitrogen; others carry less. This nitrogen is in an inert form and is of little value as a plant food. Experiments in Illinois showed that such nitrogen was worth about one-half cent a pound as compared with that in dried blood costing 15 cents. Yet the fertilizer manufacturer who sells this muck mixed with other chemicals undertakes to charge 18 cents a pound for it when you buy it. For example, take a brand of fertilizer which is guaranteed to contain in each ton 10 pounds of nitrogen, 100 pounds available phosphoric acid and 100 pounds of potash. It would be possible to supply the potash and phosphoric acid in 200 pounds of muriate and 1,200 pounds of acid phosphate. Then by using 100 pounds of cottonseed meal and 500 pounds of dried muck they could provide more nitrogen than they guaranteed. The object of using the cottonseed meal is to color the muck and thus prevent, if possible, the chemist from detecting it. But see what a nice game this is! The muck furnishes ten or twelve pounds of nitrogen, which gives the fertilizer a valuation of from $1.50 to $2, but which costs perhaps 20 cents. A farmer might use such a fertilizer on his wheat this fall. The potash and phosphoric acid may help, but it is doubtful if his grandchildren will see any benefit from the nitrogen in the muck.

The expense given for using the muck is that it makes a good filler and dries out the other chemicals. No serious objection can be made to its use as a filler, but the nitrogen it contains should not be valued in the fertilizer, for it is not worth the price. It is nearly impossible to detect the muck when cottonseed meal is used with it. The best way to avoid it is to refuse to buy low grade fertilizers or those very low in nitrogen. It is impossible to use large quantities of muck in fertilizers containing 4 per cent or more of nitrogen, because materials containing more nitrogen must be used in order to reach a high per cent. You are most likely to find the muck in the mixtures with about 1 per cent of nitrogen. It does not pay to buy them. Buy the higher grade mixtures and use an equal value in dollars per acre and you will be better off. We believe that farmers are paying millions of hard earned dollars uselessly for this peat nitrogen, many of them already having swamps on their own farms. The chemists must find some way to detect this peat nitrogen, and then we shall work for a law compelling the manufacturer to state that he uses it and that it is not valued the same as other forms.

There was a large number present and they each brought some substantial gift. During the evening refreshments were served and all enjoyed themselves to the fullest.

Best Treatment for a Burn.

If or no other reason, Chamberlain's Salve should be kept in every household on account of its great value in the treatment of burns. It always the pain almost instantly, and unless the injury is a severe one, heals the parts without leaving a scar. This salve is also unequalled for chapped hands, sore nipples and diseases of the skin. Price 25 cents. For sale by Huntley Bros., Oregon City and Molalla.

Home Garden Hints.

Strawberry plants are now making a substantial growth showing. Keep out the weeds, hoe frequently, and in early fall plants will be thrifty to set in a new bed.

It is none too early to manure a piece heavily for rhubarb. Then cultivate it once a week or so to incorporate the manure thoroughly through the soil. Rhubarb is a voracious feeder and requires a large quantity of manure if best results are to be obtained. One plant highly fertilized will yield a surprising quantity of stalks.

Current cuttings of the new wood are easily made and if done in early fall ought to be well rooted so as to be transplanted in spring. In some towns there is never an oversupply of currants, while if around 10 cents per quart can be realized for them they pay well. The large currants are most profitable, such as the cherry.

The asparagus bed ought to have a good coating of manure before winter and then be well cultivated in.

Pick the pears shortly before they ripen.

How to Get Strong.

J. J. Daly, of 1247 W. Congress St., Chicago, tells of a way to become strong: He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters, that I feel it my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Sold under guarantee at Jones Drug Co.'s drug store. 50c.

Heirs to Large Estate.

Mrs. R. E. Woodward, who is one of the heirs of the Springer Estate in Germany which is valued at $200,000, 000, has just received word from her sister, Mrs. John Fields, of Idaho, that the authorities in the old country are endeavoring to locate the descendants of the old estate, and therefore divide and distribute the vast amount of money to those to whom it finally belongs. The heirs of this large fortune are most all in Oregon and Washington. Those in Oregon are most all residents of Oregon City, the names of whom are Mrs. R. E. Woodward, James Kerns, 215 Promenade street; Mrs. Ella Fields, Lyonsdale, Idaho; Mrs. Clara Nebeker, Nappa, Cal., and Thomas Chamberlain, Oregon City.
