Today's Suggestion by Ellen Stan.

THE one piece tailored cloth dress will be much worn for the early fall with furs instead of the jacket suit. This feature will interest women who are now planning their wardrobe for the coming season. The costume illustrated would be a pleasing model for such a dress, and later on it could be used for an afternoon suit. It may be made with or without the panel in front, and such materials as lightweight broadcloth and serge, cashmere, henrietta and mohair, as well as the heavy weight silks, would be attractive and serviceable.

Any one who has done sewing for herself will readily see that the design is so simple that it can be copied successfully even by the most inexperienced, and where so much of the daintiness of a costume depends on the material selected there is no need of choosing more than a simple design to accomplish the desired effect.

This is a thoroughly practical and simple costume and would be especially attractive developed in a dark wistaria broadcloth. Buttons covered with satin to match in color would give a dainty finish to the panel, and the collar and cuffs can be of the satin finely tucked. The belt should also be of the satin drawn in soft folds and either fastened under a dainty bow or rosette or arranged under the panel in front.

For a more dressy costume this would be charming carried out in smoke gray crepe de chine. The princess panel can be decorated with a pretty floral design in heavy silk floss. The neck and sleeves can be finished with embroidered collar and cuffs or lace dyed to match the color of the material. A fold to finish the collar and cuffs of a soft silk in a pink shade would give a pleasing note of color to the costume.

A tobacco brown serge would be pretty as well as serviceable for street wear. The buttons can be covered with satin of a light shade of brown and decorated with dark brown silk to match the color of the material.

This costume closes on the left side of the front and may be made with or without the princess panel. The skirt is also gored and in round length. The pattern is cut in seven sizes—from 32 to 44 inches bust measure. To copy it for the average person it requires 9 1/2 yards of material 27 inches wide or 7 1/2 yards 36 inches wide.

Any reader of this paper who desires to secure this pattern may do so by sending 10 cents to this office. Give the number, 4812, state size desired and write the full address plainly. The pattern will be forwarded promptly by mail.
