

HUNTING THE WAPITI BY THEODORE ROOSEVELT

[Copyright, 1903, by G. P. Putnam's Sons. Published under arrangement with G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London.]

HUNTING THE WAPITI BY THEODORE ROOSEVELT

On the morning in question we left camp at sunrise. For two or three hours we walked up-hill through a rather open growth of small pines and spruces, the traveling being easy. Then we came to the edge of a deep valley, a couple of miles across. Into this we scrambled, down a steep slope, where the forest had grown up among the immense boulder masses. Finally, in the afternoon, we left the valley and began to climb a steep gorge, down which a mountain torrent roared and foamed in a succession of cataracts.

Three hours' hard climbing brought us to another valley, but of an entirely different character. It was several miles long, but less than a mile broad. Save at the mouth, it was walled in completely by chains of high rock-peaks, their summits snow-capped; the forest extended a short distance up their sides. Hardly had we entered this valley before we caught a glimpse of a yearling elk walking rapidly along a game path some distance ahead. We followed as quickly as we could without making a noise, but after the first glimpse never saw it again; for it is astonishing how fast or get past his guard; but the branching antlers caught every vicious lunge and thrust. This set-to was stopped rather curiously. One of the onlooking elk was a yearling; the other, though scarcely as heavy-bodied as either of the fighters, had a finer head. He was evidently much excited by the battle, and he now began to walk towards the two combatants, nodding his head and uttering a queer, whistling noise. They dared not leave their flanks uncovered to his assault; and as he approached they promptly separated, and walked off side by side a few yards apart. In a moment, however, one spun round and jumped at his old adversary, seeking to stab him in his unprotected flank; but the latter was just as quick, and as before caught the rush on his horns. They closed as furiously as ever; but the utmost either could do was to inflict one or two punches on the neck and shoulders of his foe, where the thick hide served as a shield. Again the peace-maker approached, nodding his head, whistling, and threatening; and again they separated.

This was repeated once or twice; and I began to be afraid lest the breeze which was very light and puffy should shift and give them my wind. So, resting my rifle on my knee I fired twice, putting one bullet behind the shoulder of the peace-maker, and the other behind the shoulder of one of the combatants. Both were deadly shots, but, as so often with wapiti, neither of the wounded animals at the moment showed any signs of being hit. The yearling ran off unscathed. The other three crowded together and trotted behind some spruce on the left, while we ran forward for another shot. In a moment one fell; whereupon the remaining two turned and came back across the glade, trotting to the right. As we opened fire they broke into a lumbering gallop, but were both downed before they got out of sight in the timber.

The wapiti is, next to the moose, the most quarrelsome and pugnacious of American deer. It cannot be said that it is ordinarily a dangerous beast to hunt; yet there are instances in which it has killed a man or a woman. The chief battles of the bulls are of course waged with one another. Before the beginning of the rut they keep by themselves; singly, while the sprouting horns are still very young, at which time they lie in secluded spots and move about as little as possible; in large bands, later in the season. At the beginning of the fall these bands join with one another and with the bands of cows and calves, which have likewise been keeping to themselves during the late winter, the spring, and the summer. Vast herds are thus sometimes formed, containing in the old days when wapiti were plenty, thousands of head. The bulls now begin to fight furiously with one another, and the great herd becomes split into smaller ones. Each of these has one master bull, who has won his position by savage battle, and keeps it by over-coming every rival, whether a solitary bull, or the lord of another herd, who challenges him. When not fighting or love-making he is kept on the run, chasing away the young bulls who venture to pay court to the cows. He has hardly time to eat or sleep, and soon becomes gaunt and worn to a degree.

The battles between the bulls rarely result fatally. After a longer or shorter period of charging, pushing, and struggling the heavier or more enduring of the two begins to shove his weaker antagonist back and round; and the latter then watches his chance and bolts, hotly, but as a rule harmlessly, pursued for a few hundred yards. The massive branching antlers serve as effective guards against the most wicked thrusts. While the antagonists are head on, the worst that can happen is a punch on the shoulder which will not break the thick hide, though it may bruise the flesh underneath.

Wapiti keep their antlers until the spring, whereas deer and moose lose theirs by mid-winter. The bull's behavior in relation to the cow is merely that of a vicious and brutal coward. He bullies her continually, and in times of danger his one thought is for sneaking off to secure his own safety. For all his noble looks he is a very unamiable beast, who behaves with brutal ferocity to the weak, and shows abject terror of the strong. According to his powers, he is guilty of rape, robbery, and even murder. I never felt the least compunction at shooting a bull, but I hate to shoot a cow, even when forced by necessity.

During the rut the bulls are very noisy; and their notes of amorous challenge are called "whistling" by the frontiersmen, very inappropriate. They begin to whistle about ten days before they begin to run; and they have in addition an odd kind of bark, which is only heard occasionally.

Heard at a little distance, and in its proper place, the call of the wapiti is one of the grandest and most beautiful sounds in nature. Especially is this the case when several rivals are answering one another, on some frosty moonlight night in the mountains. Once, while in the mountains, I listened to a peculiarly grand chorus of this kind. We were traveling with pack ponies at the time, and our tent was pitched in a grove of yellow pine, by a brook in the bottom of a valley. On either hand rose the mountains, covered with spruce forest. It was in September, and the first snow had just fallen.

The day before we had walked long and hard; and during the night I slept the heavy sleep of the weary. Early in the morning, just as the east began to grow gray, I waked; and as I did so, the sounds that smote on my ear, caused me to sit up and throw off the warm blankets. Bull elk were challenging among the mountains on both sides of the valley, a little way from us, their notes echoing like the calling of silver bugles. Groping about in the dark, I drew on my trousers, an extra pair of thick socks, and my moccasins, donned a warm jacket, found my fur cap and gloves, and stole out of the tent with my rifle. Two herds were approaching one another from opposite sides of the valley, a short distance above our camp; and the master bulls were roaring defiance as they mustered their harems.

I walked stealthily up the valley, until I felt that I was nearly between the two herds; and then stood motionless under a tall pine. I made up my mind, from the sound of the challenging, now very near me, that one bull on my right was advancing towards a rival on my left, who was answering every call. Soon the former approached so near that I could hear him crack the branches, and beat the bushes with his horns; and I slipped quietly from tree to tree, so as to meet him when he came out into the more open woodland. Day broke, and crimson gleams played across the snow-clad mountains beyond.

He plunged wildly forward.

At last, just as the sun flamed red above the hill-tops, I heard the roar of the wapiti's challenge not fifty yards away; and I cocked and half raised my rifle, and stood motionless. In a moment more, the belt of spruces in front of me swayed and opened, and the lordly bull stepped out. He bore his massive antlers aloft; the snow lay thick on his mane; he sniffed the air and stamped on the ground as he walked. As I drew a bead, the motion caught his eye; and instantly his bearing of haughty and warlike self-confidence changed to one of alarm. My bullet smote through his shoulder-blade, and he plunged wildly forward, and fell full length on the blood-stained snow.

Nothing can be finer than a wapiti bull's carriage when excited or alarmed; he then seems the embodiment of strength and stately grace. But at ordinary times his looks are less attractive, as he walks with his neck level with his body and his head outstretched, his horns lying almost on his shoulders. The favorite gait of the wapiti is the trot, which is very fast, and which they can keep up for countless miles; when suddenly and greatly alarmed, they break into an awkward gallop, which is faster, but which speedily tires them.

At Shively's

There is a peculiar charm about a rural play when presented with fidelity to nature. Such a one is "Uncle Josh Perkins," the realistic comedy-drama, which will hold the boards at Shively's opera house on Monday, Oct. 5, for one night only. It is said to contain just enough tragedy, with comedy elements cleverly interwoven, to attract and retain human interest and funny enough to extract hearty laughter from the most blasé theater-goer. It is said to produce an atmosphere as pure as the scent of new-mown hay, and tells a pretty love story in a highly original manner; splendid stage settings depicting rural scenes of life-like simplicity and well-known landmarks of New York are used in the four acts of the play, which is given zest by the introduction of splendid specialties thoroughly in harmony with the theme of the story throughout the various acts. This attraction promises to be an unusually able one, the statement being based upon reports from the press of other cities and theatrical managers in whose theatres it has appeared the present season.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Beware of Imitations
Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE
Cures all Kidney and Bladder Diseases—Guaranteed
JONES DRUG COMPANY

IF YOU LIKE TO BE DRESSED IN THE SMARTEST STYLE, AND THE BEST QUALITY, NOW'S YOUR CHANCE
You'll Find This Store the Right Place for Distinction in Clothes.

Copyright 1908 by Hart Schaffner & Marx

Hart Schaffner & Marx
clothes are the best ever offered for men to wear; every fabric all-wool, the tailoring done in a way to keep the good style looking right; you will find these clothes the best for your wear, the most perfect clothes made.
We show you just for example one of the new two-button styles; a very snappy, stylish suit.
In addition to a great line of fancy weaves and colors we want you to have one of our fine black suits for dressier-than-business use.
This Store is the Home of Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes
L. ADAMS
"Oregon City's Busy Store"

We'll show you all Sorts of Good Things to Wear besides Clothes; Shirts, Neckwear, Hats, and all the rest.

The crash of the meeting antlers resounding through the valley.

an elk travels, with its ground-covering walk. By the time the sun set we were sure the elk were towards the head of the valley. We utilized the short twilight in arranging our sleeping place for the night, choosing a thick grove of spruce beside a small mountain tarn, at the foot of a great cliff. As the first faint streak of dawn appeared in the dark sky my companion touched me lightly on the arm. The fire was nearly out; we felt numbed by the chill air. At once we sprang up, stretched our arms, shook ourselves, examined our rifles, swallowed a mouthful of two of bread, and walked off through the gloomy forest. At first we could scarcely see our way, but it grew rapidly lighter.

Then, as we trod noiselessly over the dense moss, and on the pine needles under the scattered trees, we heard a sharp clang and clatter up the valley ahead of us. In a little glade, a hundred and twenty-five yards from us, two bull elk were engaged in deadly combat, while two others were looking on. It was a splendid sight. The great beasts faced each other with lowered horns, the manes that covered their thick necks, and the hair on their shoulders, bristling and erect. Then they charged furiously, the crash of the meeting antlers resounding through the valley. The shock threw them both on their haunches; with locked horns and glaring eyes they strove against each other, getting their hind legs well under them, straining every muscle in their huge bodies, and squealing savagely. They were evenly matched in weight, strength, and courage; and push as they might, neither got the upper hand, first one yielding a few inches, then the other, while they swayed to and fro in their struggles, smashing the bushes and ploughing up the soil.

Finally they separated and stood some little distance apart, under the great pines; their sides heaving, and columns of steam rising from their nostrils through the frosty air of the brightening morning. Again they rushed together with a crash, and each strove mightily to overthrow the other.

Harry Knause is in this city again after a year's absence.

Reginald Farnell of St. Johns made a business trip to this city Monday evening.

Charles Truscott has accepted a position with the Pacific Telephone Company.

William Myers, Allen Adams and Thomas Simont of this city left Wednesday for Canby, where they are conducting a booth during the county fair.

Miss Bernice McKinley, of Portland, and George E. McLaughlin were quietly married in George C. Brownell's law office Monday afternoon, the ceremony being performed by Justice of the Peace W. W. H. Samson.

Wanted—Six fresh milk cows, L. Hartke, Mt. Pleasant, Hedger place, one mile east of Oregon City.

Notice to Creditors.

All persons having claims against said estate are notified to present the same to me, at the office of my attorneys in Oregon City, within six months from this date.

Dated October 2d, 1908. CHARLES D. ROBESON, Administrator Aforesaid. C. D. & D. C. LATOURETTE, Attorneys for Estate.

Sheath trousers may now come in line—cut well on the side and at the bottom.

Two Suits to Quiet Title.

During the past week two suits have been instituted in the circuit court to quiet title to certain tracts of land. Mary Maddock has brought suit against Elizabeth Forrest, et al, to quiet title to lot 5 block 161 of this city. Her attorneys are Dimick & Dimick.

Through U'Ren & Schuebel, Louis Tuelohke has instituted proceedings against Mary E. Bruce et al to quiet title to the northeast one-fourth of the James McNary donation land claim, situated in township 2 south of range 2 east.

University Notes

University of Oregon, Eugene, September 30, 1908.—The University will issue in a short time the second number of its bulletin on Correspondence Study Courses. The correspondence work last year met with so encouraging a reception and the demand for it was so great that this department has been greatly strengthened and many new courses are being offered. It is believed that 3000 students will enroll for this work between now and the first of February.

Coach Robert Forbes, the famous Yale end, who was hired by the Associated Students of the University of Oregon to coach their football team, is making a great hit with his men. Fifty men are turning out for practice daily.

The Freshman class at the University of Oregon numbers nearly 320 members.

At a recent meeting of the Sophomore class, Miss Julia Cross was elected secretary and Charles W. Robison treasurer of the class. Both of the newly elected officers are from Oregon City.

HAVE YOU DRIVEN THE MEN

folks into the practice of Economy? Why not show the good example by beginning to economize yourself? Buy whatever you need in the way of Coffee and Tea at this up-to-date store.

Finest M & J Coffee 35c

Best Teas 60c

Harris Grocery

OREGON CITY

For Sale—Two heavy farm wagons, double set harness, one horse seven years old, one 14-inch and one 18-inch plow, ten-foot steel drag, one-horse cultivator. H. Stromer, Oak Grove, Ore., Courtney Station. 4t is due to the uniform high grade dentistry that is always done at this office.

OUR SUCCESS
PLATE WORK
We are doing more plate work than any three dental offices in Oregon City. We do it for less money and guarantee a fit.

At Crown and Bridge Work and Fine Gold Fillings we set the pace. Before you have your dental work done, come and talk it over with us. Free examination.

No Gas, No Cocaine
EXTRACTING FREE AND PAINLESS
when teeth are ordered.

Oregon Dental Parlors
Over Harding's Drug Store.
A written guarantee with all work.

FIVE-MINUTE TALK
How to Keep Away
CHICKEN LICE
MITES
COCKROACHES AND BED BUGS
For a Whole Year by a Single Application of
AVENARIUS CARBOLINEUM
(German Wood Preserver.)
Non-poisonous, Sanitary Odor. Put up in lithographed cans only. Don't let your dealer give you a worthless imitation.
FOR SALE BY ALL DEALERS.
Carbolineum Wood Preserving Co. Portland, Or.
Milwaukee, Wis. New York, N. Y. San Francisco, Cal.
Fisher, Thomsen & Co. Wholesale Agents Dept. 12, Portland, Oregon.
Write for Testimonials.

BEWARE--of Imitations
USE THE GENUINE
AVENARIUS CARBOLINEUM
THERE'S A CHEAP IMITATION
on the market that is being offered at from $1.00 to $1.25 per gallon. The genuine can be bought in quart cans at 50c; 1-gallon cans at $1.50
Insist on the Genuine
Take no other
Put up in lithographed cans
For Sale in Oregon City Stores

SWIFTS PRIDE SOAP
7 Bars for 25c

Wool Soap
Is just what the careful housewife is looking for
We have it in 5c and 10c cakes
Be sure to ask For WOOL SOAP
which washes underwear easily and leaves it soft and unshrunken. Use Wool Soap also for laces and fine fabrics.
My name is on the soap box.
"I wish my soap had been like this."

A. ROBERTSON
The Seventh Street Grocer