

CIRCUIT COURT MATTERS QUIET

Mrs. Jackson Asked for $3,000 Damages.

JUDGE GRANTS NON-SUIT

Only One Case Tuesday--Divorce Granted Plaintiff Mary Bruce.

The trial of the suit of Loretta A. Jackson vs. Oregon Electric Railway Company took up most of the day in the Circuit Court, Friday. Mrs. Jackson, the plaintiff, commenced the latter part of last year. In her complaint she alleged that a car on that line had been chartered for 25 people, including herself and four children, which were approved by the agent of the road, who directed them to get aboard the car and take seats. When about three miles out of Portland, in the vicinity of Wilsonville, the conductor came along and refused to accept her ticket and those of the children, and put them off in a very boisterous and ungentlemanly manner, for which she asked $3000 damages. When they got aboard another car at Wilsonville, the conductor of that car also refused to accept her ticket and compelled them all to pay fare to Chemahua, the point for which they held their tickets, and for this she asked the further sum of $3000. On the first cause the case was non-suited by Judge McBride, for the reason that the cause for action originated in Multnomah county and was completed there, but the second cause, originating in Clackamas county, was in his jurisdiction. After considerable testimony had been submitted Harrison Allen, the company's attorney moved for a non-suit, on the ground that the conductor of the second car was not bound to honor the tickets, they being good for only the special car that was chartered. Judge Campbell granted the motion for the non-suit, on the grounds that the conductor of the second car was not bound to honor the tickets held by the plaintiff and her children, and had no authority to do so. In the first case, however, he said that the conductor of the special car had exceeded his authority in putting Mrs. Jackson and her children off the car, as they had a legal right to be carried to their destination. Allen R. Joy appeared for the plaintiff, and Harrison Allen and C. E. McCullough for the company.

Matters were quiet in the Circuit Court Tuesday, only one case coming up for trial, the divorce suit of Mary E. Bruce vs. H. T. Bruce. The same was a default case, and a decree of divorce was granted by Judge Eakin to the plaintiff.

Charles Moehnke, by his attorney, C. H. Dye filed a lien Tuesday, upon an acre in the Robertson tract, the property of Mrs. Maybelle M. Robertson, for the sum of $116.75, for lumber furnished for a building on the land, up to May 22 last.

OFFICERS AND TOUGHS ENCOUNTER AT ESTACADA.

Officer Gets Broken Nose and the Toughs are Jailed and Fined.

Three Portland toughs, Jack Wright, Ira Hartsell and Jim Hood with three female companions, while at Estacada, last Sunday, and loaded up with Bouillon de Weinhard and Hop Gold, made attempts to astonish the natives, who, however, declined the astonishment. They ran up against the marshal and his deputies, whom Wright and Hartsell tried to do up, posing as terrors to sheriffs and pot-roast saloons of undertakers and surgeons. Hood submitted to the law, and paid his fine. After a hard fight in which one of the officers received a broken nose, Wright and Hartsell were landed in jail, where they languished until Monday, when they were landed before Recorder Johnson on charges of being drunk, disorderly and resisting an officer. Wright pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined $119.50. Hood pleaded guilty to the drunk and disorderly charge, and not guilty to the resistance to the officer. He stood a trial on the charge, was convicted and paid a fine of $4.50. Wright and the three women left for Portland Sunday night. Their companions left Monday afternoon, sadder if not wiser.

YOUNG MOEHNKE BADLY INJURED

Has Thigh Deeply Gashed by Saw Wednesday--Will Not Be Crippled

A very serious accident occurred at Clarkes Wednesday afternoon at the Everhardt Shingle Mill, when Charles Moehnke, son of Gottfried Moehnke, of that precinct, was caught in the edging saw at the mill, receiving a terrible cut in the right leg extending down a distance of about ten inches. The young man was attempting to pass the saw and came too close, resulting in being caught and receiving the long gash as stated, which upon examination was found to be a flesh wound and about an inch deep. The unfortunate young man was brought to this city and given surgical attention by Doctors Sommer and Mount, and was at once removed to the home of relatives in this city. Mr. Moehnke is getting along nicely. A watch which he carried in his trousers pocket received the force of the saw teeth and undoubtedly prevented a much more serious cut.

What with viewing the parades, the rose show, attending various gatherings and entertaining their out-of-town guests, Portland people have put in a busy week and are content to rest after the six days of merry making.

When the festival closed Saturday night in a blaze of glory, it was pronounced the most successful affair of the kind ever held on the Pacific Coast. During the past week the Presbyterians Brotherhood Convention was held in Portland; the county commissioners and judges of the state met at the Commercial Club; the Oregon Pioneer Association held its annual reunion; officials of the Seattle fair visited the festival; Scottish Rite Masons held a reunion and initiation; Chicago business men came to the festival by special train and were entertained by the Commercial Club and Rose Festival; Admiral Ilich and his staff of Japanese naval officers were festival guests. Constable Dave Brittenstein, of Estacada, brought two young lads into town, Monday, from Garfield, in the west, but held already as violators of the law, David Deltrich, aged 15 and Oliver Bowman, 13 years, charged with larceny and malicious mischief. The boys carried away from the home of John Honebone at Garfield, three guns, 15 dollars in cash and two $40 checks, and loaded a shot gun up to the muzzle with buck shot, fired the charge into the Honebone residence through a window, demolishing the window, scattering fragments of the glass and the shot all over the room, filling the wall with lead and terrifying the occupants.

They were brought into the Juvenile Court, Tuesday, before Judge Dimick and found guilty. The Deltrich boy was sent to the Reform School, where he will realize that the way of the transgressor is hard, and young Bowman was sentenced to the Reform School also, but in his case, on his sincere promise to be a dutiful son to his aged sire and a model boy hereafter, sentence was suspended for three years.

DEATH CALLS GRAND WOMAN

Mrs. Fannie Cochran Summoned from Earthly Toil

WAS HONORED PIONEER

Prominent Factor in Building Oregon When Staunch Women Were Needed

Mrs. Fannie L. Cochran, a well-known and highly esteemed pioneer lady of this city, died at her home on Washington street, Saturday evening, of heart trouble, from which she had suffered for a long time. Mrs. Cochran was the widow of the late Hiram J. Cochran, some time mayor of Oregon City. Seven daughters were born to them, five of whom survive--Mrs. J. B. Robinson, of Chico Calif.; Mrs. J. P. Keating, of Portland; Misses Harriet, Louise and Nan Cochran, of this city. She leaves four sisters--Mrs. J. D. Biles, Mrs. M. K. West, Mrs. T. M. K. Smith and Miss Eleanor Kelly, all of Portland.

Fannie L. Cochran was born at St. Thomas, Can., 59 years ago. When a girl of 12 she crossed the Isthmus of Panama with her father, the late Captain William Kelly, of the United States Army, who was stationed at Vancouver, Wash. There she grew to womanhood. In those days hospitals and other provisions for caring for the poor and the sick were scarce and to meet a pressing need, Mrs. Cochran, with a number of other girls, organized a society known as the "Ladies of Charity," and of which she, at the age of 18, was chosen president. A small building was secured, which served as a hospital of six beds, and here the sick and the injured were nursed back to health, or tenderly cared for till death removed them beyond the reach of human help.

The work grew to such an extent that the resources of the "Ladies of Charity" were shortly over taxed, and they appealed for assistance to the Rev. Bishop Blanchet, the head of the Roman Catholic missions of the Northwest, and in response six Sisters of Charity, with Mother Joseph as Sister Superior, journeyed west from Canada to assume charge of the hospital work. Ultimately a larger building and a new location were needed. These were found in Portland, and St. Vincent's Hospital, with its splendid equipment, ministering to thousands of sick and unfortunate, stands as a fitting memorial to the devotion of Mrs. Cochran and her companions.

When the Civil War broke out Mrs. Cochran was again ready to take up her work for others by supplying the soldiers on the battlefield with medicines and other necessities, and was president of the Ladies' Sanitary Society of Vancouver, an organization well known for its philanthropic work. At the breaking out of the Spanish-American War she drafted the constitution and by-laws of the society, known as the Woman's Emergency Corps.

Her funeral services were held at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. T. F. Bowen officiating, assisted by Rev. P. K. Hammond. A large congregation assembled to honor her memory, and the floral tributes to her memory were unusually numerous and beautiful, a silent manifestation of the high place she was held in the esteem of her neighbors. The pall-bearers were Bruce C. Curry, F. T. Griffith, H. L. Kelly, A. B. Graham, J. P. Lovett and J. W. Moffatt. Her interment, which was private, was in the Mountain View cemetery.
