DEAD LETTER EXHIBIT.
Quer Articles Displayed at the Alaska Yukon-Pacific Exposition.
In the Post Office exhibit of the United States Government at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition are a dozen or so cases devoted to the Dead Letter Office, and here are to be seen the most curious objects in all the thousands upon thousands that have been misaddressed, insufficiently stamped, or as in many cases, not directed at all.
Here are several hundred revolvers, derringers, pump guns, duelling pistols and all calibre small arms. Knives, silettes, matches and dirks are piled in heaps. Several infernal machines are on show. Knickknacks, photos, curios and hundreds of such articles are displayed. A petrifed plumb pudding and a loaf of bread some 40 years old are in ironical proximity to a dozen or more sets of false teeth, while slug-shots repose suggestively close to unclaimed watches and jewelry.
A watch in battered sections explains its condition by a placard informing the curious that a train ran over the timepiece. A scalp of feminine hair suggests the wild west in its days of savagery. A mail bag, inscribed in Egyptian and bearing the date of 1280 tells the story of how a valuable relic of an early postal service was carelessly lost in the twelfth century; and the postage due stamps, amounting to $1.20, that were on a package, which when opened, contained the body of a dead infant, give clue to a police mystery that was never solved.
Hundreds of like objects, all of interest, ore on show.
