AT THE CENTER. For a thousand years astronomers have tried to find the center of the universe.

Where is the center? You are the center. Also I am the center of the universe of my universe.

Which is to say there is more than one center of the universe. There are as many centers as there are sentient beings.

In a subconscious sort of way we all recognize this fact. Unconsciously each of us draws about him certain circles.

There is the small circle which represents our relation to our immediate family or friends, and there is the larger circle which stands for our relation to our neighborhood and city, and so on.

And that is no egotistic view, because, outside God himself, there is no bigger thing in the universe than a man.

You are the axis on which turn all things, and all things are made for you—air, sunshine, day, night, stars, planets—just the same as if you were the only man in the world.

Is it not so? Even the God of all things is in a very real sense your God.

The great trouble with us is that we often get away from the center where we belong. Then there is trouble and friction, lack of harmony.

Do not go wobbling off after this fad and that ism. So long as you stay in your right place there is peace in you and harmony about you, and all things are yours, and naught can harm you.

Stand fast in the center.

MILLSTONES ABOUT THE NECK. Last month jewels to the value of $130,000 belonging to a New York woman were lost or stolen.

Which points a moral. Doubtless you have seen an Indian woman decked in her trinkets of wampum and brass, gewgaws believed to add to the personal charms of Lo, the poor squaw.

Her civilized sister prinks herself out in costly gems with a like purpose. Both follow the brute creation save in this: Among the animals it is the male who seeks to impress the female with his personal charms.

However—the women are not so much to be blamed. No writer has better brought out the follies of the newly rich in this respect than David Graham Phillips, the late author.

He brings out the fact that—the costly baubles worn by the women of this set are largely for the purpose of making known the financial ability of their male supporters.

This is how they advertise: Rather than pay a sandwich man to parade the streets he that wants it known he is rich leads his wife with blazng gems. Society, seeing the money value thus displayed, is appraised that there goes the wife of a millionaire.

Well, you say, one has a right to do as he will with his own. He has not.

Ethically no woman has the right in a city where thousands live on the verge of starvation to go about uselessly.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES

Kidney Diseases Cause Half the Common Aches and Ills of Oregon City People

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking-down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease.

There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and assist them in their work. Oregon City cures are the proof.

Mrs. John Beers, 304 Center St., Oregon City, Ore., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills quickly relieved me of kidney and bladder troubles, evidenced by pain in my back and a tired feeling. Since taking this remedy, I can do my work without becoming worn out and my condition is better in every respect."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Women! If weak, you need Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui is made from gentle herbs, acts in a natural manner, and has no bad results, as some of the strong drugs sometimes used. As a medicine—a tonic—for weak, tired, worn-out women, Cardui has been a popular success for over 50 years.

Take CARDUI The Woman's Tonic Mrs. Lula Walden, of Gramlin, S. C., followed this advice. Read her letter: "I was so weak, when I first began to take Cardui, that it tired me to walk just a little. Now, I can do all the general housework, for a family of 9." Try Cardui for your troubles. It may be the very remedy you need.

RUN! Ever see a fullback make a run with the ball? It is an exciting spectacle. The fellow runs in the face of many odds and tremendous opposition, but— He runs. He knows there is a bare chance, and he takes that chance. He knows that other fellows as snappy as spring steel will tackle him. He may be tripped or knocked off his feet, plied upon maybe, but— He holds the ball and runs. See him dodge like a fox. Watch him circle around the others. Note how he twists and plunges hither and yon, but always, always with the hope of the touchdown before his eyes. He runs like a streak. And if a deft tackle or the momentum of his clinging foe plunges him down he plunges down running. Which is the way to win. It is the way to win a touchdown in football and the way to win success in life. Life is a tremendous game in which you must run the race that is set before you—a race wherein if you go down you must go down running. It is against odds. Rivals will trip you on the run if they can; competitors will clog your progress and tackle you high or low. They want that ball, and they will get it if they can. Run! Touchdowns are rare, but they are possible. You may get to the goal, and if you do for you are laudible of the crowd, the cheers of the multitude. The crowd will cheer your pluck and persistence, and you will extort admiration from your rivals. Life is a strenuous game. Today under the competitive system men struggle with each other as fiercely almost as did the gladiators in the arenas at Rome and Corinth. Therefore girl your loins. Get into the game for all there is in you, for if you enter the lists panic stricken and afraid it is easy to see your finish. Get the ball and run. Run as if your life depended upon your mashing your way through the opposing lines. Maybe your life does depend upon it. Woman loves a clear, rosy complexion.
