There are many other matters of less importance, and the voter to be fully informed on the many matters to be voted on will have to do some careful reading and thinking.

A NATIONAL FARCE.

John Stark Says Presidential Fuss is Just Horse Play.

Editor Courier:—
"In my snail days, when I was green," I held as maxim that "when rogues fall out honest men will get their dues." That sounded good to me, but so far the only result of falling out has been the lawyers got the fees. But that lawyers and honesty are synonymous I have never heard from the critics of language.

On the surface it appears that two well known crooks are at odds—one would think so at least from the conduct of these two worthies. However I am as yet unconvinced that it is not a farce on a large scale, played to full galleries. While both speak ill of each other, so far nothing has been said but what everyone knew who read the news of the time, in fact much more of the same kind could be brought forward.

Take for instance Toothadore swearing off his personal taxes and then taking the gubernatorial office, after disqualifying himself by his tax-dodging. Then also his connection with the Alton loot, in calling out the militia in the Croton dam strike.

And we hear very little of the judicial acts of "Injunction Bill," of which the less said the better. If these two official clowns were to really get mad at one another, what a fine lot of inside history we would be treated to. But perhaps some people will think nothing ray could be told on their idols, but these worshippers can easily find that their gods have feet of clay.

Years ago I read of some of the methods followed by crooks in large cities. One was that two men would become involved in a quarrel on the street. The passers by stopping soon formed a crowd, when a third party would go through the pockets of the gaping crowd; perhaps a policeman would take the two belligerents into custody, take them around the corner and turn them loose, and after a while some of the victims would realize they had been fleeced.

Now while I am aware that the presidential office is worth while to scrap over, still it looks to me as only a few job. Teddy says he will support the nominee. Could Bill do less? These two vote-boggers certainly do strip the halo. I wonder that so many suckers will continue to bawl for either. After the expose from such source it seems as if any normal-minded person might say with Caliban: "Thrice double blessed as was I to think this drunkard was a god or worship that dull fool."

That is the result of hero worship. If either of these men were really indispensable, what would become of us if God, in his infinite wisdom, should call them away? Surely we must all perish! But perhaps God so loved the people he sent them to rule over us. If so, which one?

We will all see through the play when the curtain goes down. At any rate they certainly have need to vary the program, as the old numbers can no longer be depended on to draw paying houses.

The Danger After Grip.

lies often in a run down system. Weakness, nervousness, lack of appetite, energy and ambition, with disordered liver and kidneys often follow an attack of this wretched disease. The greatest need then is Electric Bitters, the glorious tonic, blood purifier and regulator of stomach, liver and kidneys. Thousands have proved that they wonderfully strengthened the nerves, build up the system and restore to health and good spirits after an attack of grip. If suffering try them. Only 50c. SORROWFUL DROWNING.

Accidental Death of Roy Pelkey in Teasle Creek.

Last week the Courier had a brief account of the death of Roy Pelkey, and we print the following details of the unfortunate accident, contributed from Molalla.

Roy Pelkey was accidentally drowned in a small mill dam on the saw mill of Fred Martenson, three and a half miles south of Molalla, Monday May 6.

Roy, with his younger brother, Eugene, called at the farm of Herbert Engle for the purpose of buying some pigs. They were ready to start home when Eugene proposed that they go and look at the new dam, which had been just completed and the gate shut. The pond was full of water to the depth of five or six feet. Eugene walked out on some logs when in some way he lost his balance and fell in the pond. He was unable to swim, but at a call for help his brother, went to his assistance, grasped his brother's hand, and he was pulled into the water. Both boys sank, but when they came to the surface called for help. Herbert Engle being close by jumped in and caught the boys, and they pulled him under.

In the meantime the cries for help had been heard by the mill hands who were at supper. They hurried to the rescue and succeeded in getting Eugene and Herbert out. Roy was under some logs and the water was muddy by reason of heavy rains, and the men were unable to locate the drowning man.

The water was nastily drawn off and the body recovered. Dr. Todd was summoned and he came in his car as fast as possible, but life was extinct. All was done that could be done, but without avail. A telephone call was sent to his father and mother telling them of the sad misfortune. The grief stricken father hurried to the scene of the accident and had the body removed to his home, about one-fourth mile distant.

The sudden horror of the awful tragedy forced upon the mother caused a nervous collapse, and grave fears are entertained that she may not recover.

The drowned boy leaves to mourn his untimely death father, mother, three brothers and three sisters, besides a host of friends, whose grief-stricken and tear-stained faces told of their great sorrow.

Roy was 21 years and 5 months old, of pleasing manners, kind disposition and he was a general favorite among his friends. He was the second youngest son of Margaret and Mitchell Pelkey.

The interment took place at the Odd Fellows cemetery, where a large concourse of sorrowing friends gathered to attend the last sad rites of their departed friend. The services were conducted by Rev. Trullinger. The grave was covered with the most beautiful offerings that sorrowing friends could design.

We miss thee from our home, dear We miss thee from thy place; A shadow o'er thy life is cast, We miss the sunshine of thy face, We miss thy kind and willing hand

Thy fond and earnest care, Our home is dark without thee, We miss thee everywhere.

John F. Stark.

MUST BELIEVE IT

When Well-Known Oregon City People Tell it So Plainly

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen of Oregon City, the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every backache sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will find profit in the reading.

William McLarty, 1521 Washington Street, Oregon City, Oregon, says: "The public statement I gave in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills in January, 1906, still holds good as I have had no return attack of kidney trouble. I was afflicted with backache and pains through my loins and could not sleep well as no position I assumed was comfortable. My strength and energy left me and I was miserable when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. Deciding to try them, I procured a box at the Huntley Bros. Drug Co., and by the time I had taken the contents, I felt so much better in every way that I did not consider it necessary to continue their use. I have been convinced that Doan's Kidney Pills are a reliable kidney remedy."

Now he is sound and well and weighs 218 pounds. For many years our family has used this wonderful remedy for coughs and colds with excellent results. It's quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed.
