According to the rules of war, to the victor belong the spoils, and n doubt there can be some Democratic patriots found who who will accept the postoffice her if it is forced on them. Under the conditions of election Senators Chamberlain and Lane have robbed Mr. Hawley of this patronage, and theirs will be the recommendation that hinds. But don't worty or hurry. It will be two years yet hefore the present postmaster's term expires, and there is certainly no clamor on the part of the public for a change.

There is a big Job, much needed and well started at the upper end of Main street, the improving of the Canemah road, building a river wall and a new sidewalk. The county court has closed the road and the work is well under way. The road and the long stretch of sidewalk will be raised about four feet and a big cement wall will hold the river back. Huge cement walls have already been built fronting the Hawley paper mills, at the end of Main street, with openings for the road and car tracks. In time of high water timbers will fit into these gateways and will keep the river from coming into lower Main street. It will take several weeks to complete the Canemah road and walks.

THE WAY REV. EDWARDS SEES THE SUNDAY PICTURE SHOWS

Does not Agree with the Courier on Sunday Observance .

Editor Courier:-Your article in the last Courier entitled "Picture Show or Poker Game" certainly does suggest "a matter to study over" and I am sorry the editor didn't study over it a little longer before he wrote the article. It goes on the asumption that all the change a human being needs from work is entertainment and relaxation and that if he can't find a fairly innocent kind convenient he will take a dangerous kind.

kind convenient he will take a dangerous kind.

Now I do not think it is putting a fair estimate on the average boy or girl in Oregon City that if he can't have picture shows seven days and nights in the week he is going straight to perdition.

Nobody expects to "drive" anybody to church in these days but that is no reason for making it is as hard as possible for those of unformed habits to go by putting enticing counter-attractions in their way. We want to see our young people both safe and happy and since we do not want them to grow up without moral backbone enough to resist a cheap pleasure when there is something better to do; nor are we willing to believe they are already so destitute of all reverence for Sunday and the church of God that they are utterly unapproachable by any moral or religious appeal.

Boys and girls are naturally religious if the religion be both real and reasonable. There is too much at stake in the wellfare of society to throw out of count the only institution that stands out and out for the training of moral character.

We can't afford to say that relaxation is all a toller needs when not at work. He needs resolution, inspiration and outlook. He needs association with influwhen not at work. He needs resolution, inspiration and outlook. He needs association with influences he does not get on week days nor on the streets.

Religion has given the world the privileges of a Sabbath both as a rest from labor and an opportunity for moral improvement and spiritual quickening. It is only just that the churches should not be unnecessarily hampered in the performance of their work, for it is a work for the betterment of society.

But rather there is evidently an

To say that if picture shows
