Tuesday was a mighty busy day in this city and shoppers were out by the hundreds and in spite of the disagreeable weather, they flooded the stores until late on Christmas eve. Charity work was far more general than any previous year, owing to the excellent organization. All afternoon from the Episcopal headquarters which were kept at Cross & Hammonds law office, a continual stream of bundles containing candy, nuts and toys, poured out for various destinations in the city where the unfortunate people lived. The work was under the supervision of William Hammond and Mr. Robinson. Nor was the charity all confined to one movement. Many cases were reported which were attended to by individuals who sustained the expense. For instance Mr. Streibig, the butcher, found a forlorn little chap who was trying to sell some empty bottle that he could purchase a few Christmas presents. The little fellow was in rags, and Mr. Streibig waltzed him to a local clothing store, bought him a complete new outfit that certainly did gladden the heart of the youngster, and then sent him on his way rejoicing. READY FOR THE BIRDS.

County Poultry Association Has Arrangements Completed.

Friday and Saturday, January 3 and 4, are the dates for the big poultry show for this county, in the armory hall in this city, and there is every indication that it will exceed last year's big success.

This poultry show was tried as an experiment a year ago, and it was such a fine success that it guaranteed a permanent organization and yearly exhibits, and this year it bids fair to be a hummer.

M. J. Lazelle is manager of the show, and he says there is no doubt but there will be from 600 to 700 birds entered, and several hundreds of dollars will be awarded in premiums. There were 400 for a starter last year, and that meeting was only an experiment.

On another page of this paper you will find the classifications, and awards for the show. The time is short and you want to get very busy with your entries. A card to M. J. Lazelle will bring you any information you may care for.
