legislature passed. We objected to the bill because it discriminated, because it was class to dread. pension, because it only provided for certain needy.

Right? Sure it is right as far as the law goes, but if right is right, let us organize for a general system and take it down the line.

The question is, how much right can Oregon stand with taxpayers saying "I came in to pay my rent (taxes) today?"

When we start in on this private pension business we might as well clear the decks for action, and the legislature might as well face it now as later that if Oregon is going to pension its needy it must cut down its you make improvements on your place public appropriations.

If a mother whose husband is in children so equally is the father who taxation reform in British Columbia, it and have it filed in Washington, found guilty of selling liquor to minhis family's needs.

If the father is entitled to a state says: pension because he cannot labor ,so in equal justice is the cripple who sells pencils and shoe strings.

And if the children of the man in jail are entitled to state pensions, so equally is the boy or girl who has no parents and who is not old enough to earn a living.

If the man who is unable to support his family because of illness should he would not hesitate to give a corhave a pension so in justice should the man who has passed the milestone ially if he had fine blooded stock. which incapacitates him for daily

And so you run on. There is no end to private pensions once started. That they should be, I do not dispute, but a state like Oregon cannot have annual appropriations of five labor or by employing labor to im-or six million dollars and take on prove it. There would be a great pro-ilated another chunk, she will quit this pension system. We've got to use the knife if we use pensions.

We've got to cut the stuffing out of all appropriations if we go into the pension business, for the people can't stand greater tax burdens.

It's a question of whether or not we are ready to clip at one end to fill out on the other.

INVESTIGATE.

We want to see the ition that a mass meeting be called thousands and thousands of uncultivfor the purpose of investigating the ated acres settled upon and put into

There is considerable talk that this policy to tax men for doing what all is a "political deal" and that E. D. Olds is evening up some old time matters that he thought did not balance. But let us see if this is sufficient

There are the names of many mer on these petitions that stand ace high in this county, and who any man would hesitate to charge with aiding anyone to pull chestnuts out of the

On the other hand, if an investigation is held and the officials are found to be conducting their departments proposed and according to law, Ed Olds would have gained mighty little out of the matter.

So the better way to look at it is that it is a mighty good idea for the men who furnish the cash to balance the cash once in a while and look over the day book.

The man whose business isn't afraid of the law need not have any fear of having an expert show up his busi-

Away back in effete old Massachusetts the other day the legislature adopted a resolution favoring govern

The legislature couldn't get away rom the proofs, so they "resoluted." And this is but one of hundreds of ombines that skin us every day.

And we will keep on "resoluting" and making public sentiment until This mttter is far above a personal some resolutions will get started in matter. It isn't an Olds issue. It is the big legislature and go through. We are driving fast toward public
