Things to Look After

Rev. John Ovell, of Portland, Swedish missionary worker, was in the city Thursday, looking over the prospect of the building of a Swedish Methodist church here. He will preach in the M. E. church in this city Thursday night of next week, and all are · cordially invited.

In connection with the above the Courier learns that the Swedish people not only hope to build a church in this city, but to found a collge in this locality, and we were informed this week that the Moody Land Co. which has a big developement work planned for the west side, has offered five acres of land as a gift if the college will be located there.

And again, in the same connection, Oregon City should be alive to these moves. What the west side can do this side can do. We should not sit with folded hands and watch the west side grow.

THE GARDEN CITY IS AN ESSENTIAL

ENGLAND.

A Self Sustaining Unit, Well Planned and Laid Out and Kept Up Through Co-operative Work of the Tenants. The Example of Letchworth.

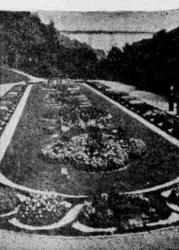

The garden city movement began and has reached its highest development in England. It has gained headway steadily and has spread to the continent, where Germany is rapidly coming to the front in relation to it. The garden city movement is essentially a housing movement and offers a solution for congestion and overcrowding in industrial urban centers. It is also a method for the establishment of new industrial communities. Considered from a financial point of view, garden cities may be divided into three types-(1) purely philanthropic where there are no profits accruing to any one; such a garden city is Bourneville; (2) philanthropic investments, where profits are limited to a small dividend, as at Letchworth, the first garden city; (3) purely business enterprises, permeated by good will and enlightenment. Port Sunlight, near Liverpool, is perhaps the best representative of this type in England, and Hellerau is the best German example.

The real garden city is a city and a self sustaining unit. It is not a suburb atached to some other city. The highest type of garden city is not the one with a single dominating industrial establishment, but is one built up about a number of manufacturing enterprises. Letchworth is the best example of the garden city and the only one of this type.

The garden city has filled an intense want in the development of the mod-The numbers shrank to four and then ern city and in the program of housing were recruited by two new mem- reform. of the future development of the city in the hands of a centralized body. which holds and controls all the land. These garden cities of Europe are full of suggestion for America. There are cities everywhere in this country which are growing and are trying to attract manufacturers. The feeble efforts of the board of trade that pledges merchants and employers to print on the backs of their envelopes "Trade In Smithtown" or "Jonesville Is the Place to Build Your Factory" are truly pitiful. The success of Letchworth from a purely economic standpoint demonstrates the direction of real success. More of our own hustling little communities which have industrial ambitions might take the cue.

On the other hand, as a method of improving the conditions in our great cities and as a means of furthering this growth along healthful and decent lines, the garden cities also offer a suggestion. Industrial suburbs developed about our great cities, particularly in the vicinity of New York, would doubt less be successful. Philanthropic or municipal efforts in this direction would produce tangible results. Already we find industrial suburbs springing up in the immediate neighborhood of our great industrial centers. The laying out of such suburban districts and their development along garden city lines American Red Cross for relief work in | Would belp to solve more than one vex-

Forty-sixth Annual Meeting Well Attended.

Reports of Secretary Show Many New Granges Organized-Order Is Financially Strong-New Legislation Conservative and Helpful to Agriculture.

The forty-sixth annual session of the national grange concluded its meetings in Spokane, Wash., on Nov. 22. There were twenty-nine of the thirty grange states of the Union represented, Kentucky's delegates being detained by illness. The secretary reported that 472 new granges had been organized the past year and about thirty reorganized. The financial condition of the Order is strong, there being about $100,000 to the credit of the Order in current and invested funds.

The legislation of the forty-sixth session was comprehensive, conservative and rational. Among the more important public questions discussed and resolutions acted upon were the follow-

To appoint a committee to confer with President Elect Woodrow Wilson about the appointment of a capable representa tive of farming interests as secretary of agriculture; asking that any revision of our banking laws shall be made in the interest of the people and not the money enders; asking the state granges at their annual meetings to urge the ratification by the legislatures of the amendment to the constitution providing for the elecvote; opposing the granting of public franchises for the enrichment of the poor at the expense of the people and to the alienation of public lands except for legitimate purposes; favoring the conservation of all natural resources, public lands, water power, coal lands, mineral deposits, etc.; opposing the transportation of intoxicating liquors into states and districts where their manufacture is prohibited by law; indorsing the Page-Wilson vocation al education bill. In the matter of co-operation uniform co-operation laws in the several states were advocated, and the Wisconsin law was referred to as a desirable model. A special committee was authorized to study and summarize the results of various investigations conducted by congress and other reliable sources concerning the manipulation of stocks and bonds whereby nearly all manufactured articles cost the consumer many times the necessary cost of labor and material. The committee on agriculture favored the immediate repeal of the Canadian reciprocity law, opposed the Lever oleomargarine bill, demanded the enactment of a law to prevent the fraudulent sale of butter substitutes by prohibiting their manter substitutes by prohibiting their manufacture and sale when containing a higher shade of yellow than that produced by the admixture of 55 per cent pure white;

the admixture of 55 per cent pure white; also laws for the protection of insect eating birds were recommended.

The committee on forestry recommended that the federal government locate army camps throughout the national forest reserves for the accommodation of a patrol system, this patrol to be taken from the standing army. They also favored organized co-operation between nation, state and county for the prevention of forest fires.

of forest fires. Regarding postal improvement, the com-mittee thought the time had not yet come for penny postage. They recomm that the deposits in postal savings banks be loaned out to farmers at a little higher rate than is paid by the banks. The committee favored the postal express plan of Congressman Lewis.

The committee on good roads favored co operation between nation, state and coun between nation, state and county, each state working out the most feasible and practicable system of road building. The committee also favored national aid for road construction.

Among other resolutions adopted were these: Urge legislative bodies to legalize and protect co-operative enterprises in the interests of producers and consumers and interests of producers and consumers and demand a public audit of such enterprises similar to that now made of banks or in-surance companies. They urged legislation to exclude undesirable immigration and recommended an increase of the head tax and the enactment of an illiteracy test; also favored placing fines upon for-eign steamship companies for bringing undesirables. The Newlands river regu-lation bill was favored, to the end that all regulation projects be treated as units from the source to the mouth, and urged laws curbing the growth of water power

Action on a resolution that was referred to a special committee at the last annual session of the national grange "as to the adoption of some plan whereby the rank and file of the membership of the Order could secure such control over the acts of the national grange, its constitution and bylaws as the members may desire." The committee believed that under the present rules it "is now possible for the membership in each state to have and to exercise direct control over the doings of this body" by ascertaining the sentiment of the subordinate granges, which then should be expressed to the state grange meeting, and the state grange, through its delegates to the national grange, could make known its wishes on the matters in question. The report caused lengthy discussion and was finally adopted by a large The grange again recorded its opposition to proportional representation by so large a margin of votes as to indicate that proportional representation is still a long way off. Another matter that caused lengthy discussion was disposed of by the adoption of a resolution to the effect that a member of the Order having charges preferred against him in the national grange for offenses against the national grange or any of its members shall be tried by a committee of three, and the trial shall be held in the jurisdiction of the subordinate grange where the accessed the subordinate grange where the accused resides. The findings of the trial committee are then to be reported to the national

MAKING FRIENDS WITH MAMMON Genesis 33:1-15-April 20.

Be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving each other, even as God also the Christ forgave you."-Ephesians 1.32. R. V. N a previous lesson we saw that Jacob left his earthly inheritance to Esau, claiming only the great Abrahamic Promise. That Prom-a goodly family. regarding them as identified with himself in the Promise. His accumulation of flocks and herds was along the same line. About twenty years after Jacob had left home, he returned, under the Lord's "Jacob Prayed." guidance, with his flocks, herds and servants, to the land of his father. Naturally, he felt a timidity respecting Esau, and prayed to the Lord upon the subject, reminding Him of the Promise, in which he trusted. Then he sent word to Esau that he was coming. Next he prepared a gift of considerable value for those times-sheep, goats, camels, cattle and asses. This gift represented long years of toil on Jacob's part. These earthly things, however, Jacob valued as nothing compared with the great Abrahamie Covenant. He could give this goodly portion of earthly mammon to purchase Esau's good will, although he was under no obligations to his brother. He had purchased the first-born's portion, which included the major por-

Esau would all the more will ingly see Jacob's prosperity; for he realized that he had gotten the better of his brother, first by getting the patrimony, and secondly, by receiving so rich a present. Evidently Jacob's course was wise. He still had plenty. and God could give him more. His chief concern would be the Abrahamic Promise, the fulfilment of which lay beyond the present life.

The Lesson of Generosity. One lesson which we as Christians may draw from Jacob's course is that of generosity toward the world-those who have no interest in Heavenly promises. As Jacob was willing to set aside all earthly rights and privileges in favor of the Abrahamic Promise, so the Spiritual Heirs should do

As Jacob left his father's house, leaving all to his brother without contention, trusting only to the Heavenly Promise, so must we Spiritual Israelites forsake all earthly hopes, to obtain Joint-heirship with Christ in the Mes sianic Kingdom. As Jacob gladly gave presents to Esau for the sake of peace In carrying out God's arrangements under this Promise, so we as Christians should willingly give to our partners in life, our neighbors, friends and brethren, the larger share of earth's good things, if thereby we may forward the Lord's Cause in connection with the Abrahamic Promise, in which we trust. Mankind have their hearts set upon earthly good things-they know nothing higher. Christians, on the contrary, appreciate Heavenly things, esteeming earthly things as unworthy of comparison. We, like St, Paul, esteem all earthly things but loss and dross that we may win Christ-that we may win joint-heirship with Jesus in the great blessing of God by becoming members of the Spiritual Seed of Abra ham, that we may participate in the glorious work of blessing all the fami-
