The M. E. Church was filled to its capacity Sunday evening when a sacred, patriotic concert was given. Then a soloist of the evening were Miss Mary Adele Case, contralto and Mr. Oscar Lawrence Woodfin, baritone. Miss Case rendered "Star Spangled Banner," and Mr. Woodfin "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean." This was a rare treat for those attending and much praise was given for the splendid work done.

Will Enlarge Barclay School
The board of education at a meeting held Monday night, authorized to be levied a special tax of 8 and 3 tenths mills to go toward the construction and equipment of an addition to the Barclay school building and also recommended a special levy of 6 and a half mills for general school purposes for 1914.

The board states that on account of the growth of the school and the city it is absolutely necessary to provide more room for the Barclay school.

Telephone Hearing July 15
July 15, at the Court house in this city, the state railroad commission will hear the complaints made by members of the city council against the Pacific Telephone Co., on the charge of discriminating in telephone rates. The hour is 9:30.

This matter is one of long grievance in the city. The charges are that new comers and new renters have been charged more than old subscribers and there is plenty of evidence to sustain the charges.

The charges were brought by Councilmen Beard, Long and Toose, and Mr. Toose has worked hard and long to get together a mass of evidence showing these discriminations.

SOCIAL MATTERS

Mrs. George Harding entertained in a most delightful manner at her home Monday afternoon, the occasion being in honor of two committees who have had charge of the luncheons since September, given each week by the Live Wires of the Oregon City Commercial Club. The decorations of Mrs. Harding's home were very attractive. The place cards were hand-painted, ornamented with water lilies.

Attending were: Mrs. H. L. Kelly, Mrs. Robert Goodfellow, Mrs. F. T. Barlow, Mrs. Rosina Fouts, Mrs. R. C. Ganong, Mrs. J. R. Humphreys, Mrs. Charles Priester, Mrs. Charles Burns, Mrs. E. Gardner, Mrs. Nieta Lawrence, Mrs. E. E. Brodie, Mrs. M. L. Holmes, Misses Nieta and Evelyn Harding.

YOUNG, BUT SANDY

Youthful Bandit Holds up Milwaukee Bank at Midday
Easterners will think Oregon is still wild and woolly when they read how a 20-year-old boy held up and robbed the Milwaukee bank last week, but they will also think we are decidedly up to the minute when they read we had him safely in jail here in less than two hours after the robbery.

Virgil Pareen was the youthful candidate for wild west renown. He walked into the bank at the noon hour, pushed a 38-calibre revolver under the nose of the bookkeeper and ordered him to hand over the money in sight, about $50 dollars. Then he beat it. But a crowd quickly followed. He was chased to a mill property on the outskirts of the town, where he hid in the broom brush and then crawled into the water and hid under a turban wheel. He was soon dislodged by Sheriff Mass and his deputies, and was brought to the jail here, thoroughly chilled and cowed.

Arraigned before Justice Sievers he waived examination and was held for the next meeting of the grand jury.

The young fellow says his home is in St. Louis, that he was broke and desperate and he robbed the bank to get money to get back home.

The Knights and Ladies of Security of this city met at the Woodman Hall Monday evening when members of Kirkpatrick Lodge of Portland, came to this city by special car and put on the initiatory work. Twelve candidates were initiated into the mysteries of the order. This was followed by a short programme and refreshments. There was a large attendance of members, both from Portland and this city.

A SPLENDID PRODUCTION

"The Deerslayer" at The Grand Next Monday Night

In the olden days, before the time of the revolution, few settlers had travelled more than a few hundred miles from the seacoast except along the sides of the great lakes. Almost the only white men to be found were stray trappers and hunters and the and the soldiers in scattered British forts, placed there chiefly to protect lines of traffic, such as from Albany to Montreal. A little off this beaten path was Lake Glimmerglass, now known as Ostego and not many miles from Utica. It is here that the scene of the fascinating pioneer romance of J. Fenimore Cooper is laid, the story of Deerslayer. He was a man of peace and yet a mighty hunter. In knowledge of the ways of the Indians and of wood-craft, he excelled, due to the fact that he had been brought up by a Delaware tribe, who had cared for him after the death of his white parents. The story tells how Deerslayer, when helping an Indian friend, Chingachcook, "the Serpent" met with Judith Hutter, and of her hopeless love. It is a tale of heroism and noble self-sacrifice, an inspiration to better things, gripping throughout by its intensity and nobility of character.

"The Deerslayer" forms a most attractive subject for the moving-picture film, because of its freedom of action and its strong dramatic possibilities. The Vitagraph Company, always on the lookout for good things, have produced the story in a two-part photo-play, which will be shown in this city at the Grand Theatre, Oregon City next Monday July 14. All who have seen this wonderful picture on the screen unite in praising the production, which is at once educational and yet extremely entertaining.

Grand Jury Findings

Wash Smith and Louis Rimpler were indicted charged with exploding dynamite or giant powder in the Clackamas river on June 26.

H. H. Hughes was indicted for larceny of a conveyer chain and three lumber trucks valued at $84 from Shannon Bros.

The grand jury returned indictments against Clarence Miller and C. W. Carothers, charging Miller with permitting gambling in a house in which he was in possession of April 15. Carothers is charged with having given false testimony before the grand jury in the Clarence Miller case. Miller was formerly road supervisor in the Needy district.

A not true bill has been returned in the case of W. S. Smith, who was examined on a statutory charge. Smith is employed at the Eighth dock.

A. Chalmers, a prominent stockman of the state whose farm is at Forest Grove was in this city Wednesday. Mr. Chalmers is a breeder of the short-horn cattle and has some of the finest in the Northwest. He is arranging for the sale of some of his stock.

Wacheco Council Entertains

Wacheco Council, No. 21, Order of Poochontas, was delightfully entertained at the Knapp hall Wednesday evening at the close of the business session, Mrs. Minnie Hanson being the hostess. The evening was devoted to card playing and dancing. Mrs. Bessie Osborn was awarded first prize and Mrs. Elsie Bittner was awarded second prize, while Jack Frost carried off the booby prize. Vocal and instrumental selections were rendered during the evening.

The reception room of the Knapp hall never looked more attractively decorated in the national colors. Festoons of crepe paper were used with artistic effect. The tables were decorated in red and green. Ferns were used in the center, and huge bunches of the crimson rambler were arranged among the ferns, forming very attractive appearance.

Those attending will long remember the enjoyable evening spent there.

CELEBRATIONS

The employees of the Willamette Pulp & Paper Company gave their employees a picnic at Canemah Park on the Fourth of July. This is the second affair of this kind given by this company and will be long remembered by the men and those attending. Although the weather during the morning was somewhat threatening crowds commenced to gather at the park at an early hour, and by afternoon there were over 3,000 people in attendance, including families of the mill men and friends. All were presented with tickets which included free of charge, ice cream, rides on the merry-go-round, feast of barbecued meat, and a chance for the cash prize given at the entrance, the drawing, which took place at 6 P. M., and plenty of soda water. Lemonade by the gallon was given away. Much praise is given those having the picnic in charge.

One of the most successful celebrations on July 4th in Clackamas Co., was at Molalla, when several thousand people assembled at McFadden's Grove. Hon. G. L. Hedges of Oregon City, was orator of the day. The music was furnished by two bands, those of Molalla and Marquam, quartette, choruses and solos assisted in making an excellent musical programme. Mr. Hedges made an address that won laurels for himself. He is an eloquent speaker and was well-posted on the subject of his address of "Independence Day."

The day's festivities opened with a parade and was one of the best ever held in Molalla. Many beautifully decorated automobiles and carriages were in line, headed by the Molalla band. The second division was led by the Marquam band. A handsomely decorated Liberty car with Miss Marguerite Faurie as Goddess of Liberty and her attendants, Miss Laura Judd and Miss Goldie Harless, were surrounded by children, who represented the states and territories.

After the programme was given the remainder of the day was devoted to band concerts, dancing, games and sports as well as a baseball game between Molalla team and a team from Portland. One of the exciting events of the afternoon was the tug-of-war between Molalla and Marquam, and Marquam and Colton. Molalla and Marquam both won. The business houses, as well as residences were gaily decorated with the National colors.

A Quick Answer.

A Persian governor was out in the forest one morning in pursuit of game when his horse shied and nearly threw him. The governor looked for the cause and saw a very ugly little man standing in the path asking for alms. The great man grew angry and, in the fashion of the east, ordered the poor man to have his head cut off.

The poor man begged for mercy and cried, "What is my crime that I should be thus punished?"

"Your crime is your unucky face, which was the first I met this morning and which nearly caused my death."

"Alas," said the beggar, "but what must I consider your highness' face, which is the first I saw this morning and which is to cause my death?"

The governor liked the poor fellow's ready wit, and instead of carrying out his command he gave him a handsome

Sips of Authors.

Pope was wont to boast of his accuracy, but he blunders in translating the "Iliad," where he transforms Homer's "horned stag" into a "branching hind." Hinds do not possess horns. Campbell writes of aloes and palm trees in Wyoming, but neither of these trees grows there. In "Paradise Lost" Milton says, "Thick as autumnal leaves that strow the brooks in Valombrosa." The trees of Valombrosa, being pines, do not strow the brooks in autumn with their leaves. A certain English novelist put Bombay in Bengal. Not until the edition was printed was the mistake discovered, and, rather than sacrifice the edition, the author, evidently of a humorous turn of mind, had a slip of paper printed and inserted in each copy of the edition with the words, "It must be understood that for the purposes of this story and this story only Bombay is in Bengal."—Westminster Gazette.

Life's Little Tragedies.

He liked her. She was bright, well rear, amiable. He called at her home many times, and then a friend made a remark that set him thinking. Had he been absorbing this girl's attention in an unwarranted way?

He was not a marrying man, as the saying goes. He had no desire to give up the full measure of manly independence, yet there was but one way in which to make amends.

He asked her to marry him.

She had been expecting this for a long time, but, womanlike, affected a sudden coy reluctance.

"My father depends upon me so much," she murmured. "I don't see how I can leave him."

"Oh, well," said the man briskly. "I'm not exactly a brute, and if you put it in that way—why, let's say no more about it."

And he never did.—Cleveland Plain Dealer
