There is a movement on foot in Washington among those interested in the welfare of the school children which bids fair to solve in many instances the problem of lack of play ground during their recesses for the pupils of the public schools, a problem which, owing to the neglect of the school authorities of former years to provide sufficient space for the greatly increased number of scholars, has in very many cases become a most seri-

The solution of the trouble, as provided by the movement, is to appropriate a certain portion of the street during the recess time.

The proposed plan is to set aside a block of the street roadway during the recess time by means of ropes that can be readily adjusted to poles set in the curb in a few seconds. The barrier could thus be erected or removed by some of the older pupils almost instantly. It would not extend across the
