THE CASE OF GOVERNOR WEST

"I am going out of office with less money than I had when I went in and I will not be a candidate for re-election."
The above statement was recently made by Governor West at a meeting of the emergency board at the state capitol.
Perhaps no governor in the history of the state has been more thoroughly toasted over the fires of his political enemies than Oswald West. An issue of an orthodox Republican daily without some criticism of the governor is a curiosity. If he asserts that the Holy Bible was the Book of God, some "Knight of the Press" would very promptly question his sincerity. If he walked to his apartments at the state capitol he was pictured as playing for the votes of the people. If he rode, he was proclaimed an aristocrat. If he attended a meeting of the state land board it was asserted that he did so because he had some political axe to grind. If he missed a meeting he was neglecting his duties as chief executive of the great state of Oregon. Nothing that West has ever done has pleased his enemies, and what he has left undone has displeased them.

Had he allied himself with the friends, instead of the enemies of vice he would have been just as severely criticized by the opposition as he has during his tenure of office. His cardinal sin is that of being a Democrat and a crime of this magnitude is never forgiven or condoned by the old line Republican organization.
Now the governor says that he has had enough. He has found the governor's office both unprofitable, and in many respects unpleasant. He has given his time and ability to the service of the state and now proposes to devote his energies to the work of earning a competence for himself and his family.
The case of Governor West is similar to that of hundreds of other public men. Ingratitude of friends, hostility of enemies and lack of appreciation on the part of the public, not infrequently drives the best brains of a state out of public office. The game is hardly worth the candle and this, few realize until after they have served in a public capacity.—Albany Democrat.

USING BOY-POWER

Ishpeming, Mich., is beginning to make some use of the boy-power in its schools. H. W. Foght of the United States bureau of education reports that in the last six years high school students from the manual training department of the Michigan town had been employed in the various school buildings. In one summer $3,000 was paid for student labor. The boys have repaired roofs, laid cement floors, built brick walls and installed plumbing fixtures. A gymnasium to be erected by the boys is from plans drawn by seniors in the high school.

Even at this, it remains to be seen whether the high school boys of Oregon City can not yet give the Ishpeming boys pointers as regards the use of boy-power during school days.

Man-About-Town

The scene now shifts from Mexico to the world series.
$2,000.00 in paid admissions at the county fair. Not bad.
Good morning! Have you tried the new fire alarm system?
Clackamas county baby crop is not to be sneezed at either.
Live Wires hummed Tuesday at second weekly fall meeting.
New Portland and Oregon City railroad seems to be a sure go.
Gladstone youth held a noisy wedding "chivaree" Monday night—as usual.
Why shouldn't Live Wires sizzle when plunged into the water question?
The vegetarian should worry over the announcement that beef steak will soon be a dollar a pound.
At a late hour no treaty had been signed between the county health officer and the "medics."
Rumor says the Oregon City "Prohis" are planning to absorb the wet spots of the town this fall.
There are folks who are still wondering over the old question: "When is a chief of police not a chief of police?"
An athletic field in Oregon City, easy of access to all, would strike a mighty popular chord with many people here.
News note says California messenger boy has purchased an auto. Not a bit surprising in this day of the generous "tip."
Genial Dr. Ford has been chosen to the Oregon City pastorate for the next two years by the State M. E. Conference.
Winter dances are now in order and from indications last year's "steps" will be appropriate if not fashionable, at the coming functions.
A real, live elephant at the Canby fair, is said to have created no little excitement among Oregon City Progressives who attended.

You fellows who thought you were too hard up to pay all your taxes last March, can fork over the balance any time now—along with the winter wood bill.

Old "Henry" last of the Mollalas has gone to the Happy Hunting grounds—with strange tales of the coming of the steam engine into the land of his forefathers.

An applicant for divorce alleged here last week that her booze-loving husband had pawned the piano among other things. Such an act, in itself would naturally be followed by a lack of harmony in the home.

Old timers agree the state fair is the best ever this year, basing their conclusions on the fact that the sun smiled all through the opening day of the 1913 session, no doubt.

A New York official has entered into an indeterminate sentence at the state prison just to see how it feels to live behind the bars. As New York officials have a habit of breaking into prison, this chap is probably just acclimating.

That little piece of detective work in which local sleuths traced a flour-thief a mile or so by a trail of flour, was made possible by a wee little hole in the corner of the sack Sounds like a Sherlock Holmes yarn, but the "coupe" took place last week in every detail.

Albert Kidder, the youth who stole the horse belonging to an Oregon City woman a week or two ago, and who was committed to the reform school by Judge Anderson, proved too foxy for the Salem officials, slipped away and walked all the way to his home in Oregon City. The 10-year old was promptly corralled a second time and was taken back to Salem by a local official.

Grown-ups are just kids after all. Remember how you used to play circus for months after the "greatest show on earth" had played the old home town? And remember how every "kid" in the neighborhood did the same thing? Walla Walla has just inaugurated its first annual "Frontier Days," a vest pocket edition of the Round-Up. The Dalles will soon have its "Rodeo" and within a year or so every important town in the West will be putting on an imitation of Pendleton's famous show.

The P. R. L. & P. Co. conductor on the Oregon City-bound car should move up the line about as fast as any of them if genuine courtesy counts for anything. One morning last week when the train stopped at Seventh street, an Indian squaw, aged and rheumatic started to leave the car. The conductor noticed that the step might be difficult for the old Indian, picked her up in his arms and lifted her to the ground as tenderly as if she were his own grandmother, and all the time kept a warm, good-natured smile on his sandy countenance. Most any conductor will help a pretty girl from the car; some few will assist her mother, but not many will take pains to see that a toothless old female Indian gets "off on the right foot."

Application Coming Fast
County Clerk Mulvey was flooded with naturalization applicants last week, following a recent order to the effect that all who had taken out first papers should present them at once, or be forced to begin all over again their desire to become citizens of the U. S. Many applicants have taken their first papers, but had failed to come after their final citizenship papers. Saturday night was set as the final time in which applicants could present their first papers and all day Saturday crowds of citizenship seekers flocked the clerk's office.

In Memoriam

One by one the brave defenders of our Country in its hour of greatest peril are summoned to answer the final roll call. By the death of Comrade Enos Cahill, who passed away at the residence of his daughter in Portland, September, 7th, 1913, Meade Post loses one of its most influential, patriotic and active members. Almost at the first sound of the bugle Comrade Cahill placed his name on the muster roll of Company I, 80th Ohio Infantry and for three long weary years patiently endured all the privations and hardships that fell to the lot of the Union Soldier, his military career ending with Sherman's great march from Atlanta to the Sea. After the close of the rebellion Comrade Cahill removed to Oregon and made his home in Oregon City. He has held many positions of trust and responsibility, and always acceptably and creditably performed any duties assigned him. He was a good and true soldier, an honorable citizen, and his removal to the Great Beyond creates a vacancy in our rapidly thinning ranks that cannot be filled.
To the surviving relatives and friends of the deceased this Post tenders its sincerest sympathies.

Indians on Annual Pilgrimage

The Warm Springs Indians were seen about Oregon City the latter part of last week, on their way home from their annual pilgrimage to the valley hop yards. The Indians were late in leaving their reservations this year and on the journey to the hop yards spent but little time here. On the return about 25 or 30 camped at Gladstone for several days.
