ABOUT THE HEALTH OFFICER

Rev. Spiess Makes a Few Observations And Asks Some Questions It is not my desire to butt into the sparring match brought on by Dr. Schultze, but as I am interested in the matter under discussion I would like to make an observation or two. Dr. Norris was not removed from office as the result of a political agitation. On the 23rd or 24th of July the Courier and other papers published the removal of Dr. Norris by the State Board of Health. The State Board had the matter before them for several months, and were the body legally empowered to act in the matter. In answer to the physicians paper endorsing Dr. Norris several articles were published in which questions were asked regarding the very matter the good doctor expatiates on. The article was published in your paper March 14. As Dr. Schultze signed that paper perhaps it will be just as well to go back to the article published March 14th and answer those questions. No one else has done so and he is the announced champion; "his hat is in the ring." As to the appointment of Dr. Van Brakle, if the good Dr. Schultze will make a few inquiries he will find that about the time Dr. Edward's article appeared in the Enterprise, some one who is not a minister and who fought on the other side, suggested to Dr. Van Brakle to make application and also handed his name to the judge. Now if it is the wish of the doctors as seems expressed in Dr. Schultze's letters to the Enterprise to place the whole matter before the public, and if the Enterprise wants to give space in its daily for the publication of it, all I ask is to be given equal space with the other side. I do not ask for this publication but if the other side wants it, we will not refuse, provided that we are given equal space in the same paper. And all matters can be laid before the public for their judgement. In several articles published as well as in private letters between myself and some of the parties interested, I expressed the desire to place any matter between us, private and public, before a committee and that their findings shall be published. So far this offer has not been accepted.

MADE A NICE HIT

County Library Exhibit at Canby Fair Attracted Much Interest

One County Fair exhibit which calls forth much favorable comment, not only for the attractiveness of the exhibit itself but for the excellence of its purpose, was that entitled "For County Libraries." The exhibit consisted of numerous original posters, suggesting different phases of the county library work, together with two characteristic groups of books. One of these was a general collection, containing books of interest on various subjects as well as several volumes of fiction and children's books. The other was a fine collection of agricultural books. The books were loaned by the state library. Much interest was manifested in the books, especially in the books on agriculture. Most of the people who passed stopped to give more than a passing glance at the posters. The one which attracted most attention, or at least furnished the most amusement, was that in which the Canby Irrigator played a prominent part. Miss Price, the librarian, with Mrs. W. S. U'Ben and Miss Myrtle Buchanan, were present at the booth almost constantly, and did yeoman's service for the cause of county libraries, in explaining to all who were interested just what the county library idea means, and in giving out copies of a letter to voters in which this is carefully set forth. The characteristic feature of the county library system, as distinguished from the state system of traveling libraries, and from the centralized city library, struck everyone favorably. This is the placing of great numbers of small individual libraries in various communities, thus enabling the people to get books without making a trip to the central library, and at the same time to feel an interest in a more or less permanent collection of books, which grows with the community, an interest which is lacking in the traveling library, which moves on every few months. By the county library system, books of ephemeral matter, such as new fiction, moving on to some other center when the first one is through with it.

GUILTY OF PERJURY

Circuit Court Jury Finds C. W. Carothers Gave False Evidence The case of C. W. Carothers, under indictment for perjury, has attracted considerable interest at the circuit court, and Wednesday night the jury brought in a verdict of guilty, with a recommend for mercy. Judge Campbell will pronounce sentence later. The indictment was the outcome of a gambling affair. Clarence Miller was one of the participants, and he pleaded guilty and was fined $25. Before the grand jury Carothers testified that he knew nothing of the affair; that he did not know Miller was there, and had never been in a game where Miller had part. The grand jury returned an indictment because of this evidence, and the trial jury brought in a verdict of guilty of perjury.

THE ARMY.

The Americans are a shrewd, wise people, usually gifted with foresight, but they have not shown it in their attitude toward the army and navy policy. Congress continues to be reluctant to maintain an adequate army. It's easy to get money for a militia, for a militia has votes and friends, but a regular army is far different. There is a saying that the Lord looks after children and drunkards. This certainly ought to be extended to the United States, of course our separation from foreign countries by oceans is cause for not assuming too heavy a burden, but we are very, very much nearer Europe and Asia--many, many times nearer--than we were in Washington's time. Occasionally we get a lurk and notice our position, but luck has been with us in the past, and we cannot assume that it will always continue thus.--W. H. Taft.

French Officers Are Ill Paid.

The poorest men in France are the army officers. In fact, they would starve to death if they had a family unless they can double their official resources by private means. A captain has an income of $820 a year. The average captain, according to statistics, has a wife and three children and can not live on less than $1,685. No wonder the places of army officers go begging in France--Boston Post.

He Dodged.

"So Burroughs owes you money? Well, I think he'll pay you back some day, but you can't make him hurry." "Don't you believe it. The mere sight of me walking along the street has made him hurry several times lately."--Philadelphia Press.

Modest Fitzgerald.

Edward Fitzgerald was utterly careless of his fame. He lived to be an old man, yet not one in a million of his fellow countrymen regarded him as a poet, even if they had heard his name mentioned as an old chum of Alfred Tennyson. Yet he translated "The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam" long years before his death. He kept it "chucking about," apparently not thinking it worth publication, and when he did print a few copies nobody took any notice of it. Today it is one of the most famous poems in the world.

First He'd Heard of It.

Harry returned to Sunday school, after a long absence, on the day on which tickets for the annual picnic were distributed. He trembled in his seat when the teacher began a quiz on the lesson of the previous Sunday. Finally his turn came. "Harry, who slew Goliath with a pebble?" "Honest, teacher," said Harry, "I don't know; I didn't even know he was dead."--New York Press.
