REFLECTIONS (By John Stark)

"I must take my turn at the mill, Imust grind out the golden grain. I must work at my task with a res-Over and over again."

Often we think that the unneces-sary grind of life's daily toil becomes a burden to us. Oh so often, we wish for a rest from the maddening sameness of the daily struggle for exist-

We are weary. We see those who toil not, neither do they spin, yet are enjoying a life of luxury, eating their bread (their bread?) in utter idleness so far as useful employment is taken

And yet the preacher has said if our life has been precious, it has been toil and trials. True, it is. There are worse conditions to the life of mankind, then that of purposeful toil tho at times we seem near the breaking point.

Will you calmly sit down to night while we may reflect life from dif-ferent angles, other than the front view? Perhaps the time may be well spent if we look to other lights and shadows than those which so directly concern the present moment. Just close your eyes and let me read to you a little, I can read fairly well for a rutabaga digger and I have some-thing of interest for all humanity to think about I will turn to page 11 of the daily Oregonian for December

"A man of 22 years arrived in Portland from Nova Scotia last month with a small sum of money, thinking he soon would find work So far nothing but failure is in sight. The man has pawned his clothes to pay room rent. In his desperation he has applied to the Associateted Charities to help him find any kind of a job. He is a high school graduate, has spent three years at college and has been educated as an engineer. He is capable of keeping a set of books and doing general office work but will take any kind of work that will keep him from becoming an object of char

It might be well that we go over this case a little, not because it is so singular but because it shows u condition of thousands of our brothers and sisters. Note the exceptional qualities of the young man, in the boasted Rose city at about the time the president tells us that the whole Note the exceptional county is prosperous.

This particular young man will be told the reason that he can find no work for his hands to do in order to obtain food for his stomach and that is because the Democrats have put toothpicks upon the free list. If he will just wait until the country ad-justs itself to the changed conditions or 'till the Republicans come back, things will go on again in the even tenor of their way. There is no thot of this all powerful government ex-tending its care to the unemployed unless he may be in the Jawsmith's Union and a place must be found for him, if not at home then in some foreign land, as a consul, minister or to it it would be so nice! Oh no! I did not forget the penniless young man simply because I stop-ped long enough to scold that big mouthed, much advertised and overrated hero of yours. No, not by all the high-priced crooks in Congress can I forget. (shall I tell you why?) but just tos how you the class characters of the government, I brought in the contrast.

There are tonight many young men ands ome who are not young anymore and oh the crying shame of it, women the children, small, helpless, little ones without shelter, without food, without friends, without a country, shivering along the highways or some chance vacant building. Perhaps there is nothing in the telepathy idea that I can see some of them as I sit here and write, with at least creature com-forts, humble though they be, still sufficient for my needs and which would seem a mansion to those unfortunate ones I can see tonight, while the elements seem to be doing double duty.

Perhaps the recollection of former days, days of terror until exhaustion numbed the senses to the actual situation, perhaps that recollection makes it seem so I can see others to-night in their sad phlight.

Did you ever have the sensation of going from plant to plant offering to sell the only goods you were posessed of, your labor power, and was turned away? Did you walk the streets of a strange city and feel all alone? Did you hear the soft togs of the piano coming to you from some attractive looking home and madden attractive looking home and madden you with the melody; and only that you were just then in a state of almost utter collapse, prevented you from doing some rash act against individuals who in themselves were in-nocent? No! Well then, don't sneer, even that handfull of pennies may not always be with you. Remember this, you are not too old to be hung, so you cannot know what may befall you

Hungry men are not in a position to be reasonable. It would seem far better to society to see that all were employed, the right to work to earn one's own living is not to be denied. Neither is the right to be lary a nat-

It may seem to you that a bank ac-count guarantees the right to idle-ness. By the eternal, no! In the sweat of your own face must you eat your bread. You have no right to filch

In my childhood I was told that toil was a curse put upon the human race because our common mother a few thousand years ago, exercised her mind in investigation, and that the curse was laid upon her children for-ever until the asbestos curtain would entertainments and put their energies into vices. We hear of the better classes. That is a lie. They are not classes. That is a lie. They are not away, and I call everyone idle who might be more usefully employed. Pathetic as that story reads of the young man, there are many worse cases just as deserving as he, who cases just as deserving as he, who cannot even get a press notice to help them out. What are we doing about it? Fiddling away in Washington on a currency scheme so that the business of the control of t nessness men may take advantage of greater gains, according to the purpose avowed by that pension pension-ing professor from Princeton, who is pulling down $1,500 per week to look after the interest of business. But you never now-a-days hear anything of the working man coming into their consideration, but why should you expect it when no workers are in Con-gress, only exploiters? Only recently I remarked to a neighbor that if the farmers want legislation they must, as a class, go after it. The answer which I received, was that farmers were not qualified for such positions. When I hear such nonsense I wonder if a kicking machine should be install ed close to the hitching rack for such

Would not eternal idleness be hell? Even if our animal wants were supplied? That is amply shown by the stores. Foster-loafing class who kill time by stupid Buffalo, N. Y.

The only class which can solve the problems affecting economic wellfare is the working class, but they must of themselves do it, not follow the lead of the jaw-smiths. all forms of exploitation First of all let all workers respec themselves, no matter what their occupation be, the workers are the only respectable people in the world. Learn that lesson well. Enter ye into the kingdom of self respect and all other things will be added unto you.

Of late years we hear a good deal of the importance of grading farm products and the farmers fall for that. Now of what good will graded products be to people without means to buy them? They may starve and the farmer may feed his graded products to his pigs. In the city the mon-eyless and jobless man is told to go back to the farm, take hold of a grub hoe and tackle the logged off land, and that kind of rot fills the press

But freely admitting that that bill looks very unjust, and may be even more unjust than the $1500 exemption bill, that does not justify this bill. If we passed an unjust bill last election, unintentionally that isn't reason that we should pass another bad one at our next election with the plain under-standing of the effect it will have.
