Why abandon a plant that is nec-essary? It makes no difference from what source we get the water it cer-tainly will not pollute the water if it is pure when it is delivered to the sedimentation tanks, and we would be safe from transient pollution.

I am quite certain that if Centra-lia, Wash., had a filteration plant properly operated there would have been no typhoid epidemic raging in that city today, for the river they get their water out of is evidently a short stream. The river is the Skookum-Chuck, a jargon name meaning strong water. One would take from that that it was a swiftly running stream, and its watershed not thickly populated, but transient population is ever present, as in all other surface supplies. At least a part of the sewage and wastes from the inhabitants of the watershed finds its way into the stream and many lives fashions and decent ones too?
