

Ogle Mt. Mining Co.

Have Property Where Nature Has Bestowed Choicest Treasures

Only waiting for spring to open the mountain roads for the necessary daily supplies, Ogle mine stands ready to make good the claims of the men who have been digging and developing the mountain for eight years.

One after another of the assays have shown the ore will pay $7.00 per ton.

A cyanide plant is completed which has a capacity of from 100 to 150 tons per day, and will furnish employment to about 40 men.

One of the best mining engineers in the country, E. F. Spaulding of the E. M. & M. E., has proven beyond all doubt that the cyanide plant will extract the gold and silver.

It has the approval of the Corporation Commission under the "blue sky" law of the last legislature, (under which many a mine in Oregon has been forbidden by the commission to sell its stock) and has had no restrictions placed on it.

There's the ore, there's the assays, there's the plant.

The stockholders have had an unwavering faith in the Fairclough brothers from the start, and they have responded time and again for the development money. The brothers have backed their faith in Ogle mine by their own money and work for many years, and this has done as much to inspire confidence in Ogle mine as all the assays.

The opening of this mine promises to be one of the real valuable assets of Clackamas county.

A mine that pays is indeed a "gold mine," as it simply brings more wealth into the country without taking any out, and the man who owns stock in a mine that makes good usually gets a nice little pension for life—for gold mines are invariably stayers, and after years of development grow richer and show more ore.

And when Ogle makes good, there is little doubt but many other claims in that vicinity, which have been held for years, will follow in development

Entrance to Mines on Ogle Mountain.—Buildings Over Shaft.

Is there any way to get by them? There have been a lot of time and money put into the long tunnels of Ogle mine.

It is not a wild cat, stock selling proposition.

Ogle mine has never yet sold a dollar's worth of stock, unless the dollar was needed for actual development work of the mine.

The company officials have always adhered to the policy of not selling a dollar more of stock than has been absolutely necessary to develop and equip the mine, and so firm has been the faith in the ultimate outcome that time and again the stockholders have increased their holdings, rather than to have the stock scattered.

From the start the undertaking has been largely a Clackamas county enterprise, and Clackamas county money has largely financed the mine work from the first little hole at the top of the mountain to the third big tunnel at the base comprising 4,700 feet of development and the completed and Clackamas county will be prospecting and located to a finish.

Time and again Ogle mine has had offers to sell, but the stockholders have always reasoned if it looked good to English syndicates and Eastern capitalists, it looked good for Clackamas county, and they have held on.

It has been a long, hard struggle to get the necessary capital to keep up the years of development work and to finally install the cyanide plant, but it has all been accomplished and when spring permits the work will start.

Probably over half of the stockholders of Clackamas county have a personal knowledge of the mine. Singly, by pairs and in parties they have made the long, hard trip over the mountains; have had their own assays made from the specimens they themselves have taken from the drifts, and these men have an abiding faith that Ogle mine will make more than good.

PRICE BROS.,--CLOTHIERS

Oregon City's Leading Clothing House

It is very apparent to the careful observer that Oregon City is forging ahead, and in every line of business she can lay just claim to having representative establishments, which are able to hold their own in any equal field with the best houses in similar lines.

This is most emphatically true in the clothing line, which can be proven beyond a doubt by a visit to the modern store of Price Brothers. The efforts of this firm to secure a collection of the best productions in clothing, shoes, and gents' furnishing goods are well worthy the recognition which is due to enterprise and a careful study of popular needs. These efforts consist of placing before the public the best makes on the market, and at prices which are in every case an honest equivalent. In the clothing line the productions embody all that art can secure in neat, stylish, well-fitting and durable garments. The line of shoes carried embrace the leading makes of the world's largest factories, while the furnishing goods assortment is attractive in style and varies in quality, and like the other lines contains the productions of the leading makers. Every article leaves the establishment with a guarantee that it will be just as represented, and by this method of doing business lies the success of the house, for it indicates a thoroughly honest policy which is bound to win popular favor. The store of Price Brothers is a modern business house, and reflects credit upon the mercantile interests of Oregon City. The firm is enterprising and wide-awake and fully merit the large and growing patronage which they built up.

Oregon's Ideal Climate

The Climate of Clackamas County One of Its Most Valuable Assets

A Land Free From All Climatic Extremes

An important thing to be taken into consideration by the homeseeker and investor is that of the climatic conditions of a community. A dependable climate is one of the farmer's assets—part of his working capital. It has two relations—one to crop production and the range of production, the other to comfort and health. The climate of Clackamas County is all that could be desired and offers every advantage to the different branches of industry, and is conducive to economic efficiency. The county is free from cyclones and blizzards, and is a land where the farmer can work out of doors every day in the year.

The summer temperature is moderate, owing to the cool winds which blow up the Columbia River from the Pacific Ocean, or down from the eternal snow covered slopes of Mt. Hood. The winters are very mild, and cold weather is of short duration. This being the fact, life here is lived at its best, with an absence of discomforting features and an assurance of conditions that tend to the highest possible healthfulness.

The air is a tonic charged with health giving properties, which is so essential to health and comfort. In fact the climate is one of the most valuable assets to Clackamas County.

OREGON CITY SHOE STORE EXCLUSIVE DEALERS IN FOOTWEAR

Classed among the mercantile houses of Oregon City which stand as the best representative in their line is that of the Oregon City Shoe Store, located at Seventh and Main Streets. This house is an exclusive footwear establishment, handling productions of a world-wide reputation for durability—productions that give satisfaction to its patrons. Among the brands to be found at this store is that of the John H. Cross shoes for ladies, the Dry Sox Shoes for men and Holland shoes for boys, together with the celebrated Martha Washington line. The store makes a specialty of shoes for tender feet, and has established a well known reputation in this respect. They also make a specialty of arch supporters having the reputation for selling more of these goods than any one store in Portland. The stock carried is complete in every respect, and embraces a large variety to choose from, ranging in all quality and prices, and to meet all tastes and conditions. The latest styles will always be found at this store, while the prices will compete with any shoe store in Portland or any other large city. Cautious treatment, good service and honorable dealing characterizes the management of the house, making it a reliable and desirable place to trade. An up-to-date repairing department is also conducted, and in every way the Oregon City Shoe Store is a worthy and creditable business house, and deserves the patronage of the local public. The business is under the management of Mr. L. J. Lagesson, a public spirited and reliable business man of this city.

F. B. SCHOENBORN, 7th Street Grocery

When writing about Mr. F. B. Schoenborn and his grocery establishment, it is to bring into prominence one of Oregon City's progressive and enterprising business men and high class business houses. Some three years ago Mr. Schoenborn succeeded the firm of Miller and Miller, since which time he has proven his ability and the requirements that go to make a successful business man. Since taking over the store, Mr. Schoenborn has made many improvements. He has installed new fixtures and enlarged the stock until he has brought the store up to its present modern appearance. The line of goods carried embraced the most celebrated brands on the market. The motto of Mr. Schoenborn is "good groceries at the lowest market prices," and this, together with honorable dealing and courteous treatment, has won for him the excellent patronage which he now enjoys.

The store is located at 420, Seventh Street, and conforms in every respect to a first class grocery house. Mr. Schoenborn was for eight years in the employ of V. Harris, during which time he learned the business in all of its details, and became well acquainted and very popular with the public. He is a native of Clackamas County, having been born eight miles from Oregon City. He may be termed as a "self-made man," and it goes without saying that his business ability, public spirit and pleasing personality will win for him continued success in his future business career. Mr. Schoenborn has many friends throughout this section and can well be classed among the young and hustling business men of Oregon City.

The Crown-Columbia Company

Industry That Is Source of Revenue to Many Homes In and Near Oregon City

The advantages possessed by Oregon City as a center for the manufacture and shipping of pulp and paper, has resulted in the establishment of enterprises in this line, which are among the largest in the country, and their operations have been the foundation of Oregon City's growth and prosperity.

Engaged in this line of industry and commerce on a large and extensive scale, is that of the Crown-Columbia Paper Company. This is one of the three large paper mills, to which Oregon City can point with pride, and which have so largely contributed to the up-building of the city. This industry is situated across the river from the business portion of the city, by the great Willamette Falls and is equipped with the latest and most modern machinery used in the manufacture of their product. In fact, the plant stands as a model of high class construction.

Employment is given to upward of 250 people at the mill, thus it can be seen that the Crown-Columbia Paper Company is a source of revenue to many homes in this vicinity, and the fact that perfect harmony prevails among the employees and the management, speaks in the highest terms for the character of its operations.

Besides the Oregon City plant, this company also operates mills at Camas, Washington, and Floriston, California, making the company the largest manufacturers of paper and paper bags on the Pacific Coast. Naturally the management of such a huge enterprise has given much attention to the perfection of a system and this, together with its enterprising methods, in keeping the equipment of their industries up to the highest standard of efficiency, has given the Crown-Columbia Paper Company a commanding place among the large institutions of the west.

Another crown gem feature of this company, is the fact that the management is possessed of a public spirited nature. In every enterprise that promises to benefit the locality, in which their industries are located, the company is always found among the first to give financial aid, thus by its liberality, the company has been an important factor in the growth, progress and development of Oregon City and Clackamas County. The benefits which Oregon City derives from the Crown-Columbia Paper Company is an ever-yielding revenue to the business and industrial activities of our city.

U'REN & SCHUEBEL Prominent and Well Known Law Firm of Oregon City

The bar of Clackamas County holds a high position as compared with the other counties of the state, and comprises men of high legal talent, who have framed laws for Oregon, which have been followed by other states.

This statement applies most emphatically to the well known law firm of W. S. U'ren and Chris Schuebel, whose ability and thorough knowledge of the law has gained for them a state wide reputation. Mr. U'ren is the father of the initiative and referendum, which is being rapidly adopted by other states throughout the Union.

Both Messrs. U'ren and Schuebel have seen service in the state legislature and in other political fields, always filling the office with much credit to themselves, and to the satisfaction of the people. They are both lawyers of exceptional ability and have always taken an active part in the affairs of our City and County, both municipal and professional, and are men whose opinion is regarded as being of weight and value.

Mr. U'ren comes before the people of this state at the next primary election as a candidate for governor, and his friends have the utmost confidence in his success. His record as a leader in progressive government has made him already prominent in the state's affairs, and his contributions to the history and past campaigns has shown that he is a power to be reckoned with. So taking it all in all—the law firm of U'ren and Schuebel reflect great credit upon the bar of Clackamas County.

JONES DRUG CO. A Modern Pharmacy

With a view of faithfully portraying the present progress and development of Oregon City and Clackamas County, it is necessary for us to make mention of many of our prominent business houses and citizens who have been foremost in bringing about these unexcelled conditions.

Using this logic as a standard, prompts us to make special mention of the Jones Drug Company, whose store is one of the business institutions which reflect credit upon the mercantile interests of the city. As to the stock carried, it can be said that the store handles everything that is to be found in any modern and high class pharmacy, and the interior bears every evidence of progress and able management.

Mr. Linn E. Jons, the executive head of this business house needs no introduction to the people of Clackamas County. He is probably the most widely known man today in this county. Having represented the people at the legislature on two different occasions, he gained a popularity which comes to men of integrity and enduring worth. He is now serving his second term as Mayor of Oregon City, and as an advocate of good clean city government, as one having a strict sense of duty toward his fellow citizens, Mr. Jons seems to be the right man in the right place. As a business man and as a citizen, Mr. Jons is highly esteemed by all, and his striking personality and the interest he displays in trying to accomplish still better conditions for the vicinity is crowned by his extreme popularity.

WILLIAMS BROS. TRANSFER & STORAGE COMP'Y

Williams Brothers Transfer and Storage Company needs no introduction to the people of Oregon City, for their business and reputation as long established. However, it is only just that we bring into prominence their latest step of progress in establishing their auto truck delivery between Oregon City and Portland.

Alive to modern improvements and every facility to render good service, and with a view of benefiting our local merchants, this firm is operating an important factor to the local business man.

The large sign to be seen on their truck, bearing the name of Oregon City indicates the local pride and public spirit of the firm, and should be given due consideration by all those who believe in the saying of "Patronize Home Industry." It is the intention of the firm to put on another truck in the near future, at which time they will maintain a two-and-one-half hour service.

Williams Brothers Transfer and an auto truck delivery upon the most modern plans. They have recently bought a large and modern Velie auto truck, which they are putting into service between this city and Portland, making two trips a day, on schedule time. The firm maintains a depot and warehouse in Portland, located at 205 Washington Street, where goods are taken; and from there loaded in their truck in a manner which insures and enables them to render prompt and efficient service to the Oregon City merchant, and this fact should prove as an im-

Storage Company do a general transfer business, and make a specialty of moving safes, pianos, and furniture. They also deal in building material, embracing sand, gravel, cement, lime, plaster and brick. Their Oregon City office is located at 612 Main Street, where all orders are given on prompt attention. They fully merit the business of our local merchants having goods brought from Portland, for they are prepared to render unsurpassed service with their new auto truck carrying the name of Oregon City.

J. H. MATTLEY

For the past five years Mr. J. H. Mattley has been numbered among the business men of Oregon City, coming here from Corvallis, at which time he purchased the store of W. H. Davis. Mr. Mattley is a dealer in new and second hand household goods, embracing stoves, ranges, tinware, graniteware, shelf hardware and notions. In fact the stock embraces everything for the household, comprising various lines too numerous to mention.

This store is located on Seventh Street, on "The Hill," and is one of the prosperous business houses in that thriving business district. By selling his goods at a reasonable price, together with honest and upright dealing with the public, Mr. Mattley has established a liberal patronage and gained a reputation as a reliable and public spirited man. He is a man of a public spirited nature, and since coming to Oregon City has proven himself to be of that type of men who make for any community a good citizen. He has formed many friends here and is held in the highest esteem by all who know him.

STRAIGHT & SALISBURY

In the history of modern sanitary progress, no line of business is looked upon as being of more importance than the plumbing trade, and in this branch of enterprise Oregon City has a firm which is capable of executing work of the highest standard, and whose ability as plumbers stand second to none.

This firm is composed of H. E. Straight and H. C. Salisbury, whose office is located at 817 Main Street. The business of the firm embraces plumbing, tinning and general jobbing, and the scope of their operations extend throughout Oregon City and the surrounding small towns. The firm established the business in 1907, since which time they have executed many contracts which proves their knowledge of the business, and which stand for durability and satisfaction. They employ only skilled and competent workmen, and under their supervision each job bears the marks of expert workmanship.

Both Mr. Straight and Mr. Salisbury have had many years' experience in this branch of trade and have mastered the business in all of its details, and stand as Oregon City's leading plumbers. They are public spirited men and have much faith in the future progress of their city.

OWEN G. THOMAS

A most excellent example and the high character and quality of Oregon City's blacksmithing industry may be found in the business of Owen G. Thomas, whose place is located at Fourth and Main Streets. Mr. Thomas purchased Mr. Story's interest in the business about three years ago, the firm being formerly Story & Thomas. The business comprises general blacksmithing and horse shoeing, and the equipment of the shop is such as to execute work of the highest standard for quality and durability. Mr. Thomas is a man well versed in this branch of industry and when a job is turned out at his shop it stands for satisfaction.
