CHRISTIAN theologians hold it to be strong proof of the resurrection of Christ that the four evangelists' accounts of that transcendently important event differ greatly in detail while agreeing exactly in the great central declaration, which is the foundation stone of the Christian religion.

Matthew tells us that at dawn on the first day of the week Mary Magdalene and "the other Mary," whom we know to be the mother of James and Salome, went to see the sepulcher.

"And, behold, there was a great earthquake; for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

"His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow.

"And for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.

"And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye; for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified.

"He is not here; for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay.

"And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you.

"And as they went to tell his disciples, behold Jesus met them, saying, All hail. And they came and held him by the feet, and worshipped him.

"Then said Jesus unto them, Be not afraid; go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall they see me."

Matthew goes on to say that the eleven disciples went to Galilee as bidden and saw and worshipped Jesus there, though some doubted. There and then he gave them their mission to go forth and teach and baptize all nations.

Not one of the other three evangelists mentions the earthquake, but all tell of the coming of Mary Magdalene to the sepulcher and of her being discovered that the body was not there. But Mark says that she was accompanied by Mary, the mother of James and Salome. Luke says there were with her this other Mary and Joanna and the other women who had come with him from Galilee, while John describes her as being alone.

Mark's version is that the women found the stone rolled away, entered the sepulcher and saw a white robed young man sitting within, who bade them tell the disciples that Jesus was risen and gone to Galilee. Luke's version is that while the women stood puzzled in the empty tomb two men in shining garments then appeared to them and informed them of the resurrection. Nothing is said of an instruction to go to Galilee. But, according to John, Mary, seeing the stone rolled away, ran back to Peter and "the other disciples whom Jesus loved" and told them that the body had been taken out of the sepulcher. Then the two disciples ran to the tomb.

"The other disciples," who ran the faster, arriving first, but he did not go in until Peter arrived and went in first and verified the absence of the body. Here John mentions that Peter and the other disciple found the cloths in which the body had been wrapped, but John says, "As yet they knew not the Scripture, that he must rise again from the dead." After they had gone home Mary remained, according to John, weeping at the mouth of the sepulcher. Looking into it after a time, she saw two angels in white within, who spoke to her, asking why she wept. And she answered that "they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him." Just then, turning around, she saw Jesus standing there, but she did not know him. John declares that she even supposed he might be the gardener, who might have removed the body. She asked him for it. But he revealed himself to her, prophesied his immediate ascension and bade her announce it to the disciples.

We have seen that Matthew has the mysterious appearing after the resurrection to Mary Magdalene. Mark's gospel relates the same. Luke declares that he first appeared to two of the disciples who were on the road to Emmaus, but they did not know him. Mark tells of this appearance also and says he afterward appeared to the eleven as they sat at meat, presumably in Jerusalem. Luke tells of this, stating that it was in Jerusalem and that it happened the same day after the two had returned from Emmaus; also that Christ ate with the disciples "a piece of a broiled fish, and of a honey-comb."

But at that Mark as well as Matthew drops the narration, while Luke goes on to tell of his leading the disciples out to Bethany and thence in their presence ascending into heaven, while the gospel of John says that after eight days he visited the eleven again, on which occasion he allowed Thomas, the doubter, to touch his wounds and put his hand into his side. And a third appearance to seven of the eleven is related by John, this by the Lake of Tiberias, where they were fishing. Here is told of the miraculous draft of fishes, and here it was, according to John, that Christ ate with his disciples after his resurrection, but John bases his gospel without a word of the ascension except as it may be contained in this:

"And there were also many other things which Jesus did, the which if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written."

THE RESURRECTION OF MAN

By JAMES A. EDGERTON
(Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.)

If faith in man were music
And love of man were song,
Then might I sing a measure
To move the world along—
Its theme, the Christ that is to be,
The Christ in all Humanity.

Tried by his sense illusions,
Himself man has denied,
Has scoffed the God within him
And has been crucified,
Has borne his cross up Calvary,
The Christ in all Humanity.

Now from his tomb self builded
At last he shall be freed.
That will be resurrection
And Easter morn, indeed!
And he shall know himself and see
The Christ in all Humanity.

Hail him, the arisen,
With lilies at his feet,
Called forth by his own angels
In resurrection sweet.
Roll back the stone of self and free
The Christ in all Humanity.

A SENTIMENT FOR EASTERTIDE

Easter exemplifies the triumph of life. Life is the supreme fact. Let us believe only in life, refusing to be dominated by the unsubstantialraith called death, refusing to be diverted thereby from "the upward looking and the light." Then will Easter be to us the most significant, the most inspiring, the most uplifting of all the days that dawn.

Jay Upton Asks $15,000 Damages for Article Charging Fraud

Suit asking $15,000 for damages for personal libel filed at the courthouse Saturday of last week against the Oregon City Enterprise by Jay Upton, an attorney of Portland and a former member of the state legislature. Mr. Upton bases his suit upon an article printed in the Enterprise last Christmas, in which it was stated that by ways that were dark and otherwise discreditable Mr. Upton had defrauded a woman out of certain valuable property.

Some days after printing the article upon which the suit is based the Enterprise contained a correction, in which it was stated that the Upton referred to in the transaction was no Jay Upton, but was another man with a similar name. The "story" was given the Enterprise by a local attorney who was about to file suit against this other Upton, and who for reasons of his own rushed into print with the matter before filing his complaint.

Mr. Upton will probably be some time in getting $1500 or 15 cents. It was one of those confusions that are bound to occur in any newspaper, no matter what care is exercised. If a newspaper absolutely confirmed every news story or editorial comment it published, there would be only monthly publications.

The Enterprise published the story in full faith of its correctness. It made a correction as soon as it knew it had confused the names, and the Courier very much doubts that a fair jury will ever give damage verdict.

Tough, but the Right Dope

While some may criticize Recorder Loder for imposing so heavy a sentence, $25 fine and 90 days in jail, on G. W. Carlson for bringing liquor into the city, yet the people who want law enforcement will commend him.

There is only one way to make a certain class of people respect law, and that is fear of law.

Formerly saloonmen, found or pleading guilty to law violations, would take their fines of $25 with a smile. They were little less than more license at additional expense.

The fellows who clubbed in to bring this booze here from Portland knew it was a violation of the law, but they took the chances.

The next fellows won't take so many chances. That 90 days in jail will make many a booze packer think twice—and the second one will be "better not."

There is one way to stop liquor being brought into the city—and that is STOP IT.

Ninety days in jail will stop it. Mr. Loder is commencing right.

Dr. Russel, Opera House, April 9

At the Shively Hall in our city on Thursday, April 9, at 7:30 P. M., the noted and eloquent national leader in the temperance reform movement, Dr. Howard H. Russell, will speak in the interest of state and national prohibition.

For more than a quarter of a century his eloquent voice and pen have been continuously employed in opening the eyes of the nation to the cause of the drink traffic, and the final achievement of national prohibition will be a triumph for no single individual more than for Howard H. Russell.

At the great convention at Columbus, Nov. 15 to 18, when he launched the national prohibition campaign, he delivered an address on "The League, God's Plan," which moved that great crowd to a frenzy of applause.

Everyone will be glad of an opportunity to hear this man who has done so much for the temperance cause.

MEDICAL "TESTS"

NOT "FRAME-UP"

Mr. Latourette then rested his case for the physicians making the charge.

Van Brakle Gives Version

In his own behalf Dr. van Brakle told in detail of the visits of the several witnesses to his office. In regard to Smith he said the man had come to his office and told him that he did not want any treatment, but only a consultation.

"He was very evidently suffering from bronchitis," said Dr. van Brakle. His temperature was 99, and an examination of his chest confirmed my opinion of his bronchial condition. I examined his abdomen and found that he had a slight pain on the right side, but there was no eruption to be noticed. I marked the case down on my card as one of bronchitis with threatened malaria, and I also put down 'typhoid' with a question mark after it. I had no opportunity to make a complete diagnosis, and told the man to come again the next day. I am not like some doctors who can make a complete diagnosis the first time I see a case.

"Kobelnick came to see me October 1, and said he had a sore throat and wanted me to treat it. He said he didn't believe in osteopathy, that he had been suffering from a cold for the past five days and that he had similar attacks every few months. I found a swelling of his right tonsil and some white shreds hanging from it, told him that he had tonsillitis, gave him a treatment and told him to come back the next day, making an appointment with him. I had not completed my diagnosis, but the man never came back."

Sensation is Sprung

In discussing the case of the little girl near Concord, Dr. van Brakle said that he suspected when he found a notice from Dr. Mount that the case was one on which he was being tested out, and that for that reason he had proceeded with great caution, and had constantly sought something definite. He declared that Dr. Mount would not volunteer any information about the case, and only gave meagre answers to his questions. He said Dr. Mount was evidently embarrassed when he asked him about the case, and said that after he had received the negative report on the cultures that he took there was nothing he could legally do but to raise the quarantine. Though the case was first treated by Dr. Mount on October 11, Dr. van Brakle said it was not officially reported to him as diphtheria until October 17, when he received a report dated October 15.

On December 12 Dr. Mount had told him all about the case, said Dr. van Brakle, and had said:

"I am sorry I got mixed up in this case, doctor. You couldn't get a positive culture in the case because of the spraying of the throat and the antitoxin, and so you couldn't make a positive diagnosis. I am through with this dirty work."

Dr. van Brakle swore that he had never received any assistance from the state board of health as county health officer, and that neither the board or its secretary had ever answered any of his letters. A copy of a letter he sent the board charging Dr. Strickland with irregularity in reporting a case was identified by the witness.

At this point Mr. Latourette objected, saying that the state board was not on trial, and the state board sustained the objection.

Lively Tilts Occur

In the course of cross-examination some rapid-fire repartee was exchanged between Dr. van Brakle and counsel for the complaining doctors.

"Have you the degree of M. D.," asked Mr. Latourette.

"I have not," answered Dr. van Brakle.

"Then you don't claim to be a doctor?"

"I surely do claim to be a doctor, but I have not the M. D. degree."

"Well, doctor, can you tell the difference between a culture and a specimen?"

"I can, if you will define 'specimen,' replied Dr. van Brakle.

"I can't define it," said Mr. Latourette. "I don't know anything at all about these things."

"Do you believe in the germ theory?"

"Certainly do, if I didn't I would be a mutt."

"Then you are not a mutt," admitted Mr. Latourette.

Dr. van Brakle, in reply to questions, outlined the osteopathic treatment for diphtheria and other conta-
