CONSIDER ONE ANOTHER. Romans 14:7-21-Nov. 9. It is good not to cat flosh, nor to drink wins, nor to do anything whereby thy brather stumbleth." -Romans 14:21.—Diaglott.

HIS lesson makes, perhaps, the strongest appeal of anything in the Bible in favor of total abstinence from intoxicating li-True, it is addressed only to Christians, as is the entire New Testament. Nevertheless, many can appreciate the argument; and to such it will appeal along the lines of the Golden

The rule for Christian living, as taught and exemplified by the Master, Is far more exacting than the Golden Rule, which is applicable to all men. Christ's followers are, of course, subject to the Golden Rule, but they voluntarily place themselves under a far more stringent rule. Their Covenant with the Lord is that in doing His will-in doing righteousness-they will ever stand ready to sacrifice even life Itself. This is what the Apostle meant when he declared that Christ pleased not Himself, but pleased the Father.

"None of Us Liveth to Himself." As for the world, they both live and die to themselves. Their own personal first with them. Only to Christ and the Church could these words apply; for none others have entered into such a Covenant of selfrenunciation, giving up present interests in exchange for a promise of a spiritual life hereafter, in the resurrection These are to live to the Lord-to do His will and not their own, to serve Him and not self, to lay down their lives in fighting against sin. When these die, they die unto the Lord in the sense that every member of the Body of Christ must die to the flesh before the entire Body can be glorified.

The Apostle proceeds to show that all judgment is vested in the Redeemer. Each member of the Church must ultimately stand the inspection of the Head of the Church. Loyalty to the Head of the Church will eventually bring membership in the glorious Church beyond the veil.

Let Us, Then, Judge Ourselves. The Apostle's argument is, that instead of judging fellow-members of the consecrated Body of Christ, we should be full of sympathy for them. We do not know thoroughly their trials and difficulties. Our keen sense of justice should find its principal exercise in self-criticism and in watchfulness not to do anything that would stumble a brother or discourage him or cause bin to fall away from the

How many find it easy to excuse self, while they are very critical respecting other's shortcomings! Our Lord warned His people against such an attitude, saying, "With what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged." If you are hypercritical and wish to measure others up to the full standard of perfection, the Lord will properly measure you by that high standard,

The Lord does not wish His people to think lightly of weaknesses and failures. He is, on the contrary, setting a high standard of love, sympathy and kindness. Love is the principal thing, in God's sight.

"Nothing Unclean of Itself."

While the Jew was forbidden the us of swine, rabbits, oysters, etc., these restrictions were tests of his obedience to God: just as the forbidden fruit was thereafter unclean to Adam and Eve. The Apostle's argument is that to the Jew who died to all hope of attaining eternal life through the Law Covenant and who became united to Christ, the restrictions of the Law Covenant would no longer be binding. And, of course, to the Gentile, who never was under the Law Covenant, its restrictions would have no application when he accepted Christ. But if any man's reasoning fe

Should we not be glad to lay down our lives for the brethren? If so, should we not be ready to abstain from using trifling liberties for our weaker brother's sake, for whom Christ dled? This is a strong argument. Rather preserve others from temptadon too strong for them by faithfully abstaining from everything that might appear evil in others' sight, however right it might be in your own sight, and however correct your own judgment of the Divine Law on the sub-

FREAKISH SHOWS.

Stage Fjascos In the Old Days In the Metropolis.

A SINGLE NIGHT "OTHELLO."

Wolfsohn Turned the Play Into a Near Riot and Never Acted Again-George Rignold's Melancholy Romeo to Six Ambitious Amateur Juliets.

The freak play or the performance that is a travesty is little in evidence today, but it does not seem so long ago when a slump in business sometimes emboldened even the most conservative of theatrical managers to re sort to extraordinary measures to attract at least one capacity audience. One of the early freak performances was intended as an event of great artistic value. The late Henry Wolfsohn, who afterward became famous as an impresario, aspired to the great Forrest's mantle. The great tragedian was playing at Niblo's Garden in "Othello" and Wolfsohn, then twentytwo, had saved a little money with the idea of purchasing the privilege of appearing as the Moor in New York once at least. His ambition appealed to Marie Seebach, the German actress, who was appearing in that year (1868) at the Theatre Francals on West Fourteenth street. Wolfsohn paid the manager $1,000 for the privilege, besides himself selling out the capacity of the theater.

Although the audience was composed chiefly of his friends and relatives, the portrayal was so ludicrous that a riot seemed imminent and was only prevented through an appeal to the audience from Mme. Seebach to consider her own position. Wolfsohn never trod

The next year in the same theater opera bouffe was the rage, owing to the tremendous hit of a comedian of the name of Gabel, who appeared as one of the two gendarmes in "Genevieve de Brabant." Gabel's popularity was so great that a benefit was tendered to him. He decided to present "Genevieve" as a travesty, the male principals assuming the female roles and the women those of the men. The house was sold out one hour after the advance sale opened. Speculators reaped a harvest.

The audience began to laugh before the curtain rose, the conductor was greeted with roars of merriment. Even the ushers were grinning in anticipation of a festival of fun. When Gabel appeared elaborately gowned as Genevieve it was fully two minutes before he was allowed to sing the beautifu! serenade number. He, too, was bursting with laughter. The same reception greeted each of the principals, but from then on the performance was about as enlivening as a funeral. The theater was half empty before the act ended. Gabel said the next day that he would gladly give back the $5,000 it yielded if he could forget the experience.

It was fifteen years before anything of this nature was attempted again. This time it was for the late Maurice Grau, who had suffered many reverses, that the benefit was organized at the Academy of Music. Grau himself arranged the program, the feature of which was a travesty of the first act of "La Grande Duchesse." The great Aimee, queen of opera bouffe, was cast for General Boum, the ponderous M. Duplan played the Duchess, and of this nature was attempted again. bership in God's Kingdom consist rath- cast for General Boum, the ponderous M. Duplan played the Duchess, and the droll M. Mezieres was Wanda. Seats brought as much as $15 each. The house was crowded, but, alas, the flasco was even more complete than at Gabel's benefit.

Booth's theater, then at Twenty-third street and Sixth avenue, was the scene of the next freak performance. George Rignold, famous as a matinee idol, was attracting all New York to see his "Henry the Fifth." Joseph Tooker, an ingenious showman, if ever there was one, conceived the idea of a special matinee of "Romeo and Jullet," with six amateurs to appear as Juliet. Rignold was the Romeo. Such a scene as was on view on West Twennever witnessed before nor since. As early as 9 a. m. the lobbies were packed, and the line to the box office reached to Broadway.

congregated in front of the theater, and the management, fully awake to conditions commissioned "big" Jim Brown, king of ticket speculators of that day, to "work the line." This Brown did so well that 4,200 persons, 95 per cent women, were packed into a playhouse seating 1,800 comfortably. The performance itself was so bad that Rignold would have quit in the fourth scene but for Tooker's plaintive plea to stick it out. Tooker's idea had been that the Juliets would be so bad that they would be funny, whereas than Marie Wainwright, who distinguished herself all the more by the contrast. I did some heavy lifting and the doctor said it caused a displacement. I have always been weak and I overworked after my baby was born and inflammation set in, then nervous prostration, from which I did not recover until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The Compound is my best friend and when I hear of a woman with troubles like mine I try to induce her to take your medicine."—Mrs. S. T.
