A WRONG IMPRESSION

Mr. Spence Corrects Comment Courier Made on the Debate April 25, 1914. Editor Courier:— I see that you have received an incorrect impression as shown by your comment on the Congressional Brotherhood.

I wish to correct a wrong impression you seem to have of my position on the good roads question. Under the heading "A Matter of Education" I find the following: "But if they (the farmers) take Mr. Spence's word of the case, to build five miles a year, and pay for them as they are built, instead of bonding the county and paying the big interest, then will they vote the proposition down."

My intention was to show that the yearly interest on the bonds would build five miles of good road each year and not that we should confine our road building operations to that limit. At the end of thirty years at that rate even we would have 150 miles of road all paid for, and no bonds coming due or, on the other hand the bond apportionment giving parts of the Pacific highway 10,000 per mile will cost $20,000 per mile, principal and interest in twenty years at $6,000 per mile as allotted under the bond proposition will cost $10,000 per mile, principal and interest in twenty years, and $12,500 per mile in thirty years. Every dollar in bonds will cost $2.50 in thirty years, compare that as an investment with a proposition of getting a dollar's worth of road for a dollar.

But I think we should build all the good hard surface roads that we can pay for each year, using say $100,000 of the county road fund for that purpose. At $5,000 per mile this would give us twenty miles a year and in four years we would be out of debt, and have more than we will get out of the $600,000 bond issue.

The total cost of the 77 miles of road at the end of the thirty years will be $1,500,000 or an average of nearly $20,000 per mile. C. E. Spence.

ORATORICAL CONTEST

Eight Students will Compete at Union Hall on May 8th

Canby, Ore., April 28, 1914. On the evening of May 8th an oratorical contest will be held in the Union Hall Schoolhouse, 3 miles east of Canby. The contest will be held between eight students of the Union school house, who have been training under the competent supervision of Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Larson, both of whom are excellent elocutionists. A splendid musical program has also been arranged. An admittance of 10c will be charged for all those over fifteen years of age.

County Superintendent, Calavan and Supervisor Vedder will act as judges. The third judge has not yet been chosen. The winner in the contest will be awarded a silver medal, the possession of which will entitle him to try for a gold medal and for other higher prizes. The others will compete again in June when the teacher, Miss Spence, will hold her school exhibit and industrial fair at the close of school. At that time exhibits from all the classes taken from the regular work will be shown, and prizes will be given on vegetables, needlework, manual art work, flowers, cooking and baking. Miss Spence has already started the work. All of these things have been made possible by the Parent-Teachers Association this winter. Through it the teacher can get in closer touch with the parents and so can accomplish much more along both an educational and social line. We hope to see one organized in every school in the state as soon as possible.

BAILEY-FRENCH

The marriage of Miss Alice Bailey of this city, and Mr. Emery French, of Parkplace, was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Taylor, in Portland on Wednesday afternoon, April 22, at 5 o'clock, the ceremony being performed by Rev. S. P. Davis, of this city, a personal friend of the bride. Only relatives and a few intimate friends of the contracting parties attended.

After the marriage ceremony was performed a reception was held at the Taylor home, and Mr. and Mrs. French left on the evening train for a brief honeymoon, returning to this city the first of the week, taking up their residence on Sixth and Jefferson Street.

The bride was prettily attired in the embroidered crepe, and her attendant, Miss Nellie Swafford, wore blue silk. The bridegroom was attended by Clarence Brunner.

The bride is a most estimable young woman of this city, and is a prominent church worker. She came to this city several years ago from California and has been employed as a stenographer in the law office of J. W. Loder.

The bridegroom has resided most of his life in Parkplace, and is a well known young man of that place and of this city.

Ernest Matthias Dead

Mr. Matthias is survived by his wife, of Portland, and two daughters, Sister Mary Monica (Miss Betta Matthias) and Miss Katherine Matthias of Portland. He also leaves two brothers, Fred Matthias of Oregon City; Adolph Matthias, of Portland.

The funeral services, which were largely attended, were conducted at the St. Andrews Catholic church in Portland on Thursday morning, and the remains were brought to Oregon City and interred in the family lot in Mountain View Cemetery. Many friends of the deceased of this city attended the services at the cemetery.

April Month of Wars in U. S. History The month of April has witnessed the beginning of all the big wars in which the United States has been involved. The first gun of the War of the American Revolution sounded at Lexington, Mass., April 19, 1775, when the British troops and the colonists clashed and eight Americans were killed.

April 24, 1846, the Mexicans attacked a detachment of United States cavalrymen and the War with Mexico was begun.

It was on April 12, 1861, that General Beauregard opened fire on Fort Sumpter, the gun that "was heard 'round the world," marking the beginning of the Civil War.

April 29, 1898, witnessed the action of the American Congress in directing the President of the United States to use the Army and Navy against Spain and by peculiar circumstances on the same day 16 years later Congress takes similar action in authorizing the President to use force against Mexico.—Mexico Intelligencer.

FISHING WITH AN AX.

Winter Sport In Which Tackle and Bait Are Not Needed.

When a man starts out in the dead of winter with only an ax under his arm and says he is going fishing one is inclined to smile and take his statement with a grain of salt. Nevertheless it is true that fish are "caught" with no other "tackle" than an ordinary ax.

Along the coves of fresh water lakes and ponds in the winter, especially when the first new ice has formed a transparent covering. It is possible to secure a number of good sized fish by means of an ax alone. These "fishermen" wear the heavy felt boots of the lumbermen, from which the rubber shoes are removed when they reach the ice. A bright sunny day is needed for this sort of fishing. In many of these coves and especially in such coves as are filled with rushes and water lilies in the summer pickerel, pike and other members of that fish family come to the surface of the water and rest within an inch or so of the ice. As far as known they do this to get in the sunlight, just as they sometimes float motionless near the surface of the water in the summer.

The ax fisherman in his noiseless felt boots walks slowly over the transparent ice looking for these fish. They seem to think that the ice affords a protection, and they are not usually frightened away. When the sportsman like "fisherman" sees a fish near the surface he steals up and hits the ice a resounding whack with his ax. Nine times out of ten the fish will be seen to turn belly upward and lay motionless. The secret of this is that the impact of the ax on the ice has forced the water against the fish's head with sufficient pressure to stun him. The fisherman hastily chops a hole through the ice, reaches in and pulls out his fish.—Detroit Free Press.

ANCIENT ARTIFICIAL LIMBS.

Iron and Wooden Hands and Legs and Plaster and Silver Noses.

There is in the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, an artificial leg, made about 300 B. C., of bronze, wood and iron. Who has not heard of the famous "Iron Hand" made in Nuremberg, Germany, in 1504, for the German knight, Goetz von Berlichingen? Among the old time Indians ears, noses and lips of plaster were quite common. One of their ordinary punishments being to cut off these useful parts of the human anatomy. Greek and Roman veterans who had lost a leg or an arm in the wars used to replace them by substitutes and Plinius speaks of a Roman veteran soldier who—about 150 years B. C.—was famous for the wooden hand with which he was still able to fight as an able swordsman. In 1604 the Duke of Brunswick had to use an artificial hand.

Artificial limbs with movable joints were also largely made by the famous Ambrose Pare—1517 to 1590—the celebrated French surgeon known as "the father of French surgery." He was surgeon to Henry II—1552—and also to Francis II., Charles IX. and Henry III. Later on Father Sebastian, a Carmelite monk, was renowned for the manufacture of movable arms and hands. About the middle of the seventeenth century Painsinelli, a Florentine surgeon, mentions artificial eyes of gold, silver and crystal painted in different colors. He also describes gold and silver ears which were either tied to the head with strings or else sewed on the skin of the scalp by the aid of gold and silver wire. Silver noses, too, are spoken of as having been in use for a long time.
