FARM LIFE LABORIOUS

Boasting only the luxury of it is Pure Bunk, and Only on Paper

The capitalist papers never give any true picture of the actual life of the average farmer who has to earn his own living. For example take the case of a person coming into Clackamas county and purchasing a partly cleared farm, say 100 acres. He would be lucky to buy him a nice anywhere near a railroad for $60 an acre. This would be $6,000, and then he would have to invest at least $5,000 more for improvement, live stock, machinery and etc.

There is an investment of $10,000 required to get a start. He has to pay a bonus to the "system" of this amount in order to buy him a job. Then if he works early and late, say sixteen hours a day, rain or shine, he may make as much as $500 a year. Later on after he gets things going, and if his wife works sixteen hours a day, and the children all work, he may make $1,000 a year.

This is not very much money to support a family on. He could not afford to take a trip to Europe every year. He could not take his family for a couple of months to the coast or the mountains. College professors, preachers and other professional gentlemen who get from $1,500 to $2,000 a year are always complaining about poverty and seeking an increase of salary. The industrial welfare commission after laborious investigation decided that $500 a year is the least that one girl can live decently on. What reason then is there for boasting of the great wealth and dignity of the average farmer?

With an investment of $10,000 a farmer can barely make a living and it is a very laborious and slavish life at that. Thousands of farmers reported to be worth from $5,000 to $10,000 go away from home, hopping, teaming, and at other work whenever there is an opportunity in order to get a little ready cash. But the interest on $10,000 at ten percent (what the banks get) would be $1,000 a year. This is more than the $10,000 farmer usually makes altogether. From which it appears that the farmer either gets no interest on his investment, or else he gets no wages for his labor and that of his family.

A wealthier class of farmers owning 300 to 500 acres capitalized at $30,000 to $50,000 do not average above $2,000 a year income. But the interest at 10 per cent on their capitalization would be $3,000 to $5,000. So the same rule applies to them. Either they get no interest on their investment or else they get no wages for their labor. Their investment is merely a bonus to buy a job. The average farmer cannot afford to pay sufficient wages to his hired men (if he hires any) because he cannot make it in his business. Farming is not a profitable business.

Understand I am speaking of the average. There are smart guys who do better than the average. But there are more who fall below the average and ultimately drop into the proletariat, or propertyless class. And we must remember that if all the farmers were smart guys and produced exceptionally big crops, there would be such a surplus that the markets would be glutted and they would all go broke.

This is always the case with hops, potatoes, chickens, eggs, berries, anything that can be handled with small capital. Grain and stock farming are not profitable any more at all except on a large scale requiring a big investment of capital.

The boasting about the great prosperity of the farmer originates with the gentlemen who farm with corkscrews. These gentlemen employ other gentlemen to play on type-writers the melodious lays about the luxurious life of the farmer. And the rubes are expected to take it seriously. Some of them do.

Salisbury's Eye Salve

Is the Right Remedy for All Abrasions of the Eye. If the wound is cleaned and the salve applied promptly the healing process begins at once at the wound from the inside outwardly, thus performing a perfect cure that severs no nerves. The salve works on the outside too quickly, pus forms under the surface and breaks out into a running sore that is hard to cure and inevitably leaves a bad scar. Owners of blooded stock prefer this salve to any other for that reason and they use it not only on the animals, but on human flesh as it does its work quickly and thoroughly.

Price 25c, 50c and $1.00. James F. Ballard, Prop. St. Louis, Mo. Stephens Eye Salve is a healing ointment for sore eyes.

Another Woman's Case. Providence, R. I.—"I cannot speak too highly of your Vegetable Compound as it has done wonders for me and I would not be without it.
